DUCE AND POPE APPROVE TEXT OF AGREEMENT

Catholic Action Clubs Are Permitted to Resume.

ACTIVITIES LIMITED TO RELIGIOUS WORK

Rome, Aug. 31 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XI and Premier Benito Mussolini approved the official text of an Italo-Vatican settlement today and provincial officials throughout Italy were ordered to reopen the Catholic Action Society clubs.

Police began removing seals from the doors of the clubs, which had been closed since the beginning of the controversy on charges of political activity hostile to the Fascist regime. In Rome the clubs will not be reopened until the accord is announced officially.

Officials' Tension Relieved.

There was a marked lessening of the tension among Italian and Holy See officials when it became known that the text had been approved. Prelates and governmental authorities quickly resumed their friendly relations. For three months the strain on Italo-Vatican relations had often approached the breaking point.

It was learned that both Fascists and church officials were satisfied with the accord, which provides, among other things, a means of avoiding further trouble over education of the youth of Italy. It was understood the government provided for special clerical inspectors to oversee Catholic studies in the Italian schools. The divergencies between simultaneous membership in Fascist organizations and the church also were believed to have been partly overcome, chiefly by restricting Catholic activities solely to religious work.

Bishops Get Jurisdiction.

The solution was expected to work more smoothly because of a decision to place the Catholic clubs under jurisdiction of the various bishops rather than under a central or national leadership.

Government sources said it was believed an official announcement of the settlement would be made within a short time. The text was printed privately at the Vatican print shop and distributed to the cardinals by messenger. Their approval was not necessary, however, as Pope Pius assumed full responsibility for the negotiations.

It was understood the Knights of Columbus Athletic Clubs in Rome, which are supported by foreign donations, would be reopened soon.

Gomez, Cuban Refugee, Arrives at Key West

Key West, Fla., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana, who is sought in Cuba as a leader of the recent rebellion, arrived here today aboard the steamer Florida.

Gomez said he was leaving tonight for New York, where he expects to make his future home. He said he would send for his family later. He had to evade the authorities in order to leave Havana but he declined to discuss how he did it.

Manila Welcomes Secretary of War

Populace Assured Data He Gleans Will Fix Hover Policy.

Manila (Tuesday), Sept. 1 (A.P.).—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley arrived today on the liner President Cleveland, and a crowd of at least 10,000 gave him a noisy welcome at the pier. In a statement concerning the purpose of his visit, the Secretary said:

"I bring to the Filipino people the greetings and best wishes of the President of the United States. By the direction of the President I have come to get a more definite understanding of the operation of your present system of government; also to secure first-hand information concerning political, educational, social and economic conditions which now prevail.

"In providing myself with this information, I plan to visit not only the centers of population, but many remote communities. I will converse with the people themselves, as well as the chosen leaders. On facts established and history heretofore made, the administration at Washington will base its future policy in matters pertaining to the Philippines."

Bids for Muscle Shoals Operation Open Today

(Associated Press.)

Bids will be opened by the War Department at 10 a. m. today for the leasing and operation of the Muscle Shoals power and nitrate plants.

Army officials late yesterday said two proposals had already been received, but that it was not expected they would be found satisfactory by the Muscle Shoals Commission. Indications have reached the department, however, that several more bids, more likely of acceptance, would be submitted today.

LEAVES UNION

THOMAS, IN TEARS, QUITS UNION POST

Loses Pension Also as He Decides to Remain in MacDonald Cabinet.

London, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Labor continued its warfare against the new National government today with an attack on J. H. "Jim" Thomas, dominions secretary in the cabinet and one of the most picturesque figures in British politics.

The National Union of Railwaymen, of which he has been an official for 35 years, demanded that he resign from the three-party government headed by Ramsay MacDonald, and he responded by quitting as leader of the union.

Mr. Thomas left the union meeting at which this action was taken with tears in his eyes. "This is a terrible moment for me after almost a life's work as leader of the national railwaymen," he said.

While Labor reprisals against the National government continued, the new cabinet pressed ahead with its work of slicing $600,000,000 from the budget. Prime Minister MacDonald flew down from Lossiemouth, Scotland, where he had been resting over the week-end, and the cabinet met in special session for three hours, adjourning at 7:30 p. m.

It had been expected that at the conclusion of the cabinet meeting an announcement would be made of the date when Parliament will be called in special session to consider the government's emergency economy measures. No announcement was made, however, and it was indicated the session would be postponed from September 8 to September 10 or 15. The delay was made necessary, it was said, by the complexity of the economy plans.

It was learned tonight that the railway union executives decided that Mr. Thomas, in view of his resignation, was not entitled to a pension.

Texas Oil Field To Reopen Today

Martial Law Modification Is Agreed on to Permit Rail Body's Order.

Austin, Tex., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The giant east Texas oil field, closed down by a martial law proclamation of Gov. Ross S. Sterling, August 17, will be reopened tomorrow under a new order of the Texas Railroad Commission.

The commission announced late today it had reached an agreement on the new order governing the field. Members refused to make known the terms of the order until tomorrow.

Commissioner Lon A. Smith said an understanding had been reached with Gov. Sterling whereby martial law in the 126,000-acre field would be modified to permit the order to become operative. A limited number of troops will be maintained in the field to aid the commission in enforcing the order, Commissioner Smith said.

REICH CUSTOMS PACT BELIEVED NEAR COLLAPSE

Hague Court Will Decide Today If War Treaties Are Violated.

NEW LOAN TO HELP AUSTRIA, FORECAST

Germany's Conditions Would Demand European Tariff Cut of 10 Per Cent.

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 31 (U.P.).—The Austro-German customs union agreement appeared tonight to be near collapse.

Designed to strengthen Austria and Germany by closer economic ties, the customs project has aroused such a bitter controversy among European nations that well-informed sources believed it would be abandoned.

The Hague court has been considering protests by France and other nations that the agreement is a violation of the war treaties, and a decision will be handed down tomorrow. There was no indication in official circles as to the nature of the decision, which will be of considerable technical importance in regard to Austro-German relations.

New International Loan.

A new international loan to bolster Austria's financial position was forecast as her "reward" in return for abandonment of the customs accord. It was believed the Austrian position in regard to the project would be thoroughly discussed this week by ministers attending the League of Nations and European union session.

Germany apparently has been considering the necessity of dropping the plan, under certain conditions, information obtained in Berlin last week indicated. The conditions which Germany would demand were understood to be a European agreement involving a 10 per cent reduction of certain tariffs which Chancellor Bruening has repeatedly criticized.

Harshly Criticized.

The Austro-German plan was harshly criticized when first announced as an accomplished fact last spring, but was defended by Austria as the only means by which her commercial existence could be assured. Germany defended the pact as within the terms of the war treaties, which prohibit a political union, and said it was merely a first move toward general European tariff agreements such as had been proposed by France in connection with the European union.

The next few months, however, saw Germany plunged into a financial crisis. The crisis was made more serious by the strained relations between Germany and France, due in part to the customs union plan. There have been many indications recently that the plan would not be pushed.

Veteran Aviators Seized In Chinese Rebel Plot

Los Angeles, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Floyd N. Shumaker, 41, and Winston B. Hall, 46, veteran aviators, were detained tonight on a telegraphic mandamus order from San Francisco as the outgrowth of a purported plan to purchase more than $100,000 worth of airplanes for a revolutionary faction in south China.

They were taken into custody after Capt. A. C. Jewell, of the sheriff's civil department, had seized $78,000 in cash which Jewell said was shipped to Shumaker from Denver. The seizure was made at an express office here. The message from San Francisco said bonds of $25,000 had been ordered for the two fliers.

COTTON HOPES TURN TO BAN ON PLANTING

Farm Board Decision Not to Buy Gives Interest to Cudahy Promise.

(Associated Press.)

With the decision of the Federal Farm Board not to buy cotton, distressed farmers turned their attention yesterday to hopes for concurrence in the Louisiana "no-cotton" plan by Texas and North Carolina, and to a proposal by the Cudahy Packing Co. to buy and store cotton in an effort to bolster the market.

Carl Williams, cotton member of the Farm Board, in announcing the board's decision not to purchase cotton "under any circumstances," said "continued purchase in the face of overproduction is not the remedy for the [illegible]."

Williams, eminent among [illegible] ard, after a discussion [illegible] shares of the [illegible] its cotton advance Co., a holding concern established by Col. Oliver H. Payne, face of [illegible] associated with John D. Rockefeller, had no "comment" [illegible] times of continued overproduction.

Meanwhile, Gov. Sterling of Texas awaited completion of a canvass of farmers and members of the State Legislature on their attitude toward a special session to consider Gov. Huey P. Long's "no cotton in 1932 plan," enacted into law by the Louisiana Legislature last Saturday.

J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, conferred with Gov. Sterling yesterday and announced 99 per cent of Texas farmers favored an immediate session to consider cotton acreage control.

McDonald said it was his opinion the rest of the cotton-growing States "would fall in line with whatever action is taken in Texas" in view of the fact that Texas produces one-third of the cotton crop.

Gov. Blackwood, of South Carolina, expressed himself as "gratified" at the response to his proclamation calling on farmers in his State to express their desires in regard to a special legislative session to consider the Louisiana plan. Farmers at 37 of 45 meetings in South Carolina went on record as favoring the Long plan.

The plan would become effective in Louisiana only on passage of similar legislation in States producing 75 per cent of the cotton crop. The law, as passed in Louisiana, would bar under penalty the planting, growing, or harvesting of cotton in 1932.

The Cudahy announcement was made through E. A. Cudahy, jr., president, in Chicago, who telegraphed all of the company's branches that beginning at once and until December

Graf Due in Brazil About Noon Today

(Associated Press.)

The Graf Zeppelin, giant German dirigible, was making its way over the Atlantic last night on its nonstop flight to Pernambuco, Brazil, averaging a speed of nearly 100 miles an hour.

Reports from Pernambuco said that, although the radio station had been unable to receive messages from the Graf, it heard clearly the messages sent from the dirigible. Great crowds were congregating to greet the ship, expected to land there at noon today.

Reports from the dirigible itself said that it expected to pass over the equator at 8 a. m. G. M. T. (3 a. m. E. S. T.).

It gave its position at near midnight G. M. T. (7 p. m. E. S. T.) in a message to the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen as 7.10 north, 28.20 west, adding that the weather was fine and the progress "satisfactory."

Miss Colt Withdrawn From White's 'Scandals'

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Ethel Barrymore Colt, 18, daughter of Ethel Barrymore, will not appear in George White's "Scandals" when the revue opens on Broadway Monday, Mr. White said tonight. She had appeared with the revue on its tour but decided to withdraw, he said, when the ideas for sketches planned for her "didn't turn out satisfactorily in actual playing."

Mr. White said he had been forced to give some of Miss Colt's songs to Ethel Merman when she joined the show and that as a result Miss Colt was doing only one number.

CONTROL OF ARMIES URGED FOR LEAGUE

Paul-Boncour Would Grant 'Mortgage' on All Forces to Balk Aggression.

Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Paris, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Joseph Paul-Boncour, foreign affairs chairman of the Chamber of Deputies, today issued to the Associated Press a statement in which he proposed that the armed forces of every nation be placed at the disposal of the League of Nations to put down wars of aggression.

M. Paul-Boncour, who will be one of France's principal delegates to the Geneva disarmament conference in February, declared France was ready to take that momentous step.

His statement was issued after careful preparation and painstaking examination lasting over a period of ten days.

Under his plan, the League of Nations Council would exercise "an international mortgage" on the forces of the nations in the event of a war of aggression. This "mortgage" would be exercised under Article XVI of the league covenant, which provides for the severance of all trade or financial relations by members of the league with a state which has committed the act of aggression.

The article also authorizes the league council to recommend to the governments that effective military, naval or air forces they should contribute to put down an aggression. This provision has for years been the basis of many orations and debates at Geneva. It finally was interpreted in the sense that it is the parliaments of the various nations which must decide whether and to what extent their countries shall contribute armed forces.

The Paul-Boncour proposal revives this entire problem for the Geneva disarmament conference. The French Socialist forecast that France would support his idea, saying it harmonized with the French love of peace.

The suggestion, it is taken for granted here, will arouse profound discussion, for it admits the right of mortgage of national defense forces by an international institution, and thus deeply affects the sovereignty of each country.

"When the disarmament conference agrees upon the actual figures of the defense strength of each country," M. Paul-Boncour said in his statement, "our idea is that these forces should cease to be forces left entirely to the disposition of these countries and that there should be an international mortgage upon them.

"I mean that the council of the League of Nations, when face to face with a case of proved war of aggression, should be empowered under article xvi of the league covenant to make use of them to settle a war crisis."

Limitation of armaments, he declared, is linked with the idea of Wardner, Idaho, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The towns of Wardner and Kellogg were endangered today by a forest fire that traveled four miles in two hours. Firemen poured water on the roofs of Wardner houses.

Von Gronau Plane Thought in Ontario

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A large airplane, believed to be that of Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau, German aviator flying the Greenland route from Germany to Chicago, landed late today at Longlac, Ont., a report received by the Canadian National Telegraphs here said.

Ottawa, Ontario, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Wolfgang von Gronau took off from Port Harrison on the eastern shore of Hudson Bay at 9:35 a. m. today. He is flying for Long Lake, Ontario. At 12:42 p. m. he passed over Cape Jones, 150 miles north of Moose Factory.

Von Gronau, who is flying to Chicago by way of Greenland over a route farther north than the one he followed on his trip to New York last year, landed at Povungnituk, a small village on Hudson Bay, Friday night. He flew to Port Harrison, where the Detroit fliers, Edwin Preston and Robert Collignon, have been landlocked for several days, on Saturday.

JONES RESIGNS AS AID TO DOAK AT HIS REQUEST

NOT A GOOD 'YES MAN,' HIS LETTER DECLARES

Calls Attention to Fact He Was Reappointed Despite Disapproval of Plans.

After ten years' service as director general of the United States Employment Service, Francis I. Jones resigned yesterday on the request of Secretary of Labor N. Doak.

Mr. Jones was notified on August 13 through a letter from John R. Alpine, supervising director of the service, that his resignation would be expected by Secretary Doak by the close of business yesterday.

In this letter, Mr. Alpine charged the retiring director general with "exceedingly unsatisfactory service" since the institution of the plan of reorganization and expansion of the employment service.

Mr. Jones, in a letter of resignation to Secretary Doak, commenting on Mr. Alpine's charges, declared that "unwittingly you have paid me a fine compliment in confirming the fact that in no degree am I responsible for the present ineffective setup." Declaring that records of the service will disclose that the present organization is "unsatisfactory and bitterly disappointing," Mr. Jones asserted that "it is a source of extreme gratification to me to know that I had no part in establishing it."

Disapproved of Plans.

Mr. Jones added that he was reappointed as director general by Secretary Doak in face of his disapproval of the reorganization plans. He averred that he retained his position because he hoped that Secretary Doak would be convinced of the futility of the new set-up of inexperienced men, abandon their fantastic methods and return the service to its former sane and sensible basis."

Mr. Jones observed that, if his services had been satisfactory to Mr. Alpine, he would have been false to his opinions, to himself and to his record. That his services were not unsatisfactory was proved, he asserted, by Secretary Doak in a letter to President Hoover in which he said that the work of the service had been efficiently managed.

Pigeon-Cote Found In Kidnaping Case

New York, Aug. 31 (U.P.).—New York's aerial police succeeded today in trailing a homing pigeon, which was supposed to carry ransom to the kidnapers of Edgar F. Hazelton, jr., to a roost in the rear of a Flushing Long Island residence.

Two planes took to the air before the pigeon was released. Then Patrolman Allen Van Hagen flew low behind the bird until it landed. He then dropped notes to detectives, who located the house.

The residence was that of Charles Kofernack, who told police he rents the pigeon roost to a man whose name he does not know. A police guard was placed at the home to await the owner of the pigeons. Police attempted a few days ago to follow another pigeon, but it escaped from them.

DIGGERS SEEK MORE BODIES NEAR GARAGE

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Indications that authorities are of the firm belief that additional bodies will be found on the Quiet Dell property of Harry F. Powers, 42-year-old salesman, where the bodies of two women and three children already have been located, was given basis this evening when convict labor was recalled to resume digging.

Officers, meanwhile, questioned Powers, alias Cornelius O. Pierson, in connection with the deaths of Mrs. Asta Buick Eicher and her three children, of Park Ridge, Ill., and Mrs. Dorothea Lemke, Worcester, Mass., a short time after counsel for the man talked to Powers in the county jail. The bodies of the women and children were found Friday and late Saturday buried near the quiet Dell "garage" Powers built.

Powers was questioned briefly, the officers said, and made a short, contradictory statement concerning Mrs. Lemke. They quoted him as saying:

"I went to Worcester, Mass., and brought Mrs. Lemke away from that city with me, and brought her down here. No; I will want to change that. I did not bring her to West Virginia. I don't care to tell where I took her from Massachusetts."

He spoke no more regarding the case, the officers said.

Downtown Clarksburg was thrown into a state of excitement late today when a report was circulated that a sixth body had been found in a well at Quiet Dell. Deputy Sheriff Simeon Bond said he was standing by the well when the last shovelful of dirt was taken out and that no body was found.

Sheriff William Grimm said drilling apparatus would be taken to Quiet Dell tomorrow for further digging in the abandoned well there. Officers said they were convinced they had not reached the bottom of the well when it was cleaned out today. It was drained to a depth of 12 feet.

The digging in the vicinity of the "garage" resulted from disclosure that Powers had made contacts with many women through matrimonial agencies. Mrs. Eicher and Mrs. Lemke were among those with whom he corresponded.

Detectives were studying a roll of film found in a camera, one of many articles located in Power's garage. The film was developed today and six pictures disclosed Powers with Mrs. Lemke. Apparently the snapshots were taken in the vicinity of Mrs. Lemke's home at Worcester.

One picture showed a river in the background, with Powers standing near a fence with his back to the water. He was wearing a light suit, apparently the one he had on when arrested. Another snapshot showed Mrs. Lemke, with the river and mountains in the background.

Police hinted tonight that legal steps would be taken to halt Powers

ROVER DRAFTS 15 CASES FOR BEATING QUIZ

District Attorney Spikes Rumors of Special Prosecutor.

HARKER'S CHARGES TO COME UP FIRST

Alleged Intimidators Are Summoned for Quiz After Complaints.

Evidence of third-degree activities in the Metropolitan Police Department gathered by the Department of Justice will be presented personally before the grand jury tomorrow by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover.

The Department of Justice has moved so swiftly in its investigation, following The Post's expose, that Mr. Rover will have five cases, described as "ironclad," to give to the jury, it was learned last night.

As quickly as the grand jury disposes of these charges of brutal treatment of prisoners by police, the Department of Justice will turn over to Mr. Rover at least ten additional cases for presentation to the grand jury. Still others are to follow, according to every indication.

The charges of James Henry Harker that he was punched, kicked and flogged with a piece of rubber hose by four First Precinct policemen will lead the string of cases before the grand jury. It was first believed that this case would be the only one to be opened at the grand jury inquiry tomorrow, but it is known now that undercover men have gathered such conclusive evidence in four other cases that the grand jury can start on them as soon as the Harker matter is safely out of the way.

Involve Same Policemen.

Several of the cases involve the same policemen, it was revealed as the sweeping grand jury inquiry became imminent.

Department of Justice officials declined to reveal names of the men involved in the fifteen cases they have worked up so far, and it is indicated that they will guard the names and the nature of the cases jealously to pervent friends of involved policemen from reaching complainants and taking steps to suppress evidence.

The decision of Mr. Rover to assume personal direction of presentation of the police brutality charges to the grand jury was reached after a two-hour conference between the district attorney, Thomas D. Thacher, Acting Attorney General, and J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation.

At no time during the conference was any suggestion made to replace Mr. Rover, with a special prosecutor. His decision set at rest all rumors that a special prosecutor would be requested.

During the lengthy conference Mr. Rover was presented a resume of all evidence secured by the Department of Justice in its swift investigation. He was shown pictures of Harker, taken by a Post photographer, shortly after the alleged beating, and presented with dozens of statements from persons who declare they know of cases of police brutality at first hand.

More Than Usual Secrecy.

More than usual secrecy will surround the cases about to go before the grand jury because the Department of Justice has received information of alleged efforts of friends of accused policemen to intimidate Government witnesses.

These reports led Department of Justice officials to issue a warning that drastic action will be taken against any one who attempts to hamper this inquiry, and it is understood that complaints from Government witnesses led to the summoning of the alleged intimidators before the Department of Justice for questioning.

Department of Justice agents continued their investigation yesterday, and again the First Precinct, where Harker charges he was beaten, came in for the major share of attention. Lieut. J. H. Lee and Private F. R. Tierney, sought for questioning by the Department of Justice Sunday afternoon, reported to the Bureau of Investigation yesterday. Lieut. Lee was given a subpena to appear before the grand jury, but Tierney did not receive one.

(Associated Press.)

Col. Thomas W. Darrah, chief of staff of the Third Corps Area, today will take rank as brigadier general despite the protest of Representative Wyant, of Pennsylvania to President Hoover and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff.

Representative Wyant's protest was based largely upon Col. Darrah having been relieved of command of an infantry brigade in France. The representative said he acted at the request of Pennsylvania National Guard officers who served under Col. Darrah during the war.

Gen. MacArthur said last night Col. Darrah would become a brigadier general today. Such promotions are subject to approval of the President before becoming effective.

Mr. Darrah's appointment, however, remains subject to confirmation by the Senate. Representative Wyant has said he would ask Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Senate military affairs committee, to conduct a hearing on Darrah's fitness.

Gen. MacArthur said the removal of Col. Darrah from his command during the war had been considered in the recommendation for promotion and found outweighed by his accomplishments in the service and the "circumstances" of the action. He called Darrah one of the three best infantry colonels in the Army.

Trap Laid Here in 1918 Lands Suspect in Murder

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A trap set thirteen years ago has snapped about William Brown, 55, and today he was on his way back to Massachusetts from Tennessee to face an indictment for the killing of his wife.

A pension based on his service in the Spanish-American War was the bait which led to Brown's arrest at the Soldiers' Home in Johnson City, Tenn. Word was sent back to Massachusetts today that Brown had waived extradition and was returning to Fall River in the custody of two officers.

Since 1918, Massachusetts and Fall River authorities had searched United States and Canada for him. Often there were reports that he had been seen, but no tangible proof, and always the trap was set. It was to the Veterans' Administration at Washington that the authorities believed, Brown would apply, sooner or later, for payments on his pension. Arrangements had been made to trace immediately any communications from him and just such a request, made a week ago, led to his arrest.

In the fall of 1918 men working along the waterfront here became suspicious of a package and opened it to find part of a torso. Later other packages, and finally the head, were found.

In the meantime, friends and relatives of Annie Donovan, 20-year-old Fall River girl who had married an itinerant mill worker named William Brown but known to his friends as "Tatto" Brown, became alarmed over her absence from home. They appealed to the police, who learned the dead woman was Mrs. Brown. In the flat Mr. and Mrs. Brown had occupied police said they found a table with bloodstains on it and other evidence which led them to believe the woman had been slain there. The medical examiner said the slayer had strangled and beaten the woman and then dissected the body skillfully with sharp knives.

At the Johnson City Soldiers Home, Brown told police he had been in the Veterans' Home at Danville, Ill., until June when he transferred to the Johnson City institution. He said he was born in Liverpool, England, and had been married twice.

HOOVER ABANDONS COAL PARLEY PLAN

(Associated Press.)

Inability to assemble a generally representative group has led the administration to abandon a plan for a conference on conditions in the bituminous coal industry.

Secretary Doak reported to President Hoover yesterday the results of a poll begun on July 22 to ascertain whether such a conference could be held. Then he made public a letter to John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in which he said:

"With operators representing the great bulk of the total labor employed unwilling to cooperate, and since the responses indicate that, at this time, it is not possible to assemble a conference representative of the industry generally, it does not appear that the calling of the conference to consider this plan would have any result."

160 Operators Polled.

One hundred and sixty operators were asked whether they would attend a conference on the bituminous industry and if they felt any satisfactory results could be obtained. Up to today 38 operators had answered favoring a conference, 21 expressed willingness to attend but questioned the value of such a meeting and 101 either indicated they would not attend or did not reply.

At a press conference the secretary said he "supposed" the letter to Lewis "closes the matter."

The bituminous coal industry for years has been in an admittedly bad condition because of overdevelopment and the trend of fuel users to gas, oil and waterpower. Unemployment is heavy in the coal districts and in many sections suffering has been reported among miners' families.

General Conference Asked.

On June 11 Lewis telegraphed President Hoover asking a general conference on conditions within the industry. The President informed Lewis he would do all he could. He instructed Secretaries Lamont and Doak to determine the attitude of the operators and labor. Lamont called a conference of large operators. At this conference the majority expressed the opinion that "little good" would come from a conference with labor.

A week later, labor leaders met at Doak's office. They complained that the operators at the Lamont conference were not representative and a list of 160 operators throughout the country was compiled. A joint letter was sent by the Secretaries on July 22 to these operators asking if they would attend a conference and if they felt any results could be obtained.

Doak's Letter to Lewis.

Doak's letter to Lewis follows in full:

"Some weeks ago you requested that a general conference of bituminous operators and miners be called to consider your plan for stabilization of the industry. In a desire to explore any suggestion that would be of assistance to the coal industry in its difficult situation the Secretary of Commerce and I, on July 22, jointly addressed the inclosed letter to the list of operators furnished by you as men whom you felt should join in such a conference. These invitations were sent out to 160 operators. Replies have been received from 38 favoring the calling of such a conference; 21 have replied questioning the value of such a conference, but expressing willingness to attend. The remaining 101 have either indicated that they would not attend or failed to reply at all.

"Inspection of the rated daily tonnage of the mines represented shows that the combined number of those favoring the conference and those willing to attend while questioning its value would represent about 450,000 tons. Those who declined or failed to reply would represent a rated tonnage of around 2,000,000 tons. Thus, with operators representing the great bulk of the total labor employed unwilling to cooperate and since the responses indicate that at this time it is not possible to assemble a conference representative of the industry generally it does not appear that the calling of the conference to consider this plan would have any result. The responses and records are open for inspection if you so desire."

Doak's letter to Lewis was accompanied by a copy of the letter sent to operators.

Alleged Informer Held in Blackmail

Man Is Trapped by Police in Alleged Act of Taking Hush Money.

An alleged police informer who is accused of having attempted to extort money from a defendant in a liquor case was trapped and arrested last night on Fourteenth street near Thomas Circle and charged with violation of Section 819 in the District Code, which covers blackmail. He is Joseph Raymond Gambaro, 44, 2809 Fifteenth street northwest.

Robert H. Adams, who pleaded guilty last week to a liquor charge and whose case was turned over to probation officers, said that Gambaro approached him later and threatened to press two more cases against him if Adams did not pay him $23.85.

The defendant agreed to the terms and notified his attorney, John J. McGinnis. Sergt. N. O. Holmes and Sergt. B. F. McAllister were called into the case and were waiting nearby when Adams kept his rendezvous with Gambaro last night.

Two of the men who, Topley said, were with him were arrested and booked on open charges. They are George R. Mock, 32, 3138 M street northwest, and Arthur E. Shoemaker, 30, 3118 M street northwest.

Jail's Star Boarder Out Again, In Again

'Face on Barroom Floor' Lands James Colbert Back in Number 9.

James Colbert, Washington's most locked-up man, yesterday morning ended a drunkenness sentence at the District Jail and last night was in the clutches of the law on the same charge.

Private John Sirola, of the Ninth Precinct station, where the 51-year-old Spanish War veteran was placed in a cell, said that Colbert has been arrested about 200 times for drunkenness. Sirola said he had arrested him 50 times himself.

This time it happened near the corner of Benning road and Fifteenth street northeast, whence complaints had come that a man of unusual aspect was enthusiastically reciting "The Face on the Barroom Floor." Colbert always recites this epic when in form, police said.

Giving 200 Nineteenth street southeast (the District Jail) as his address, Colbert declared that he usually is made orderly for Col. William L. Peake, the superintendent. Ninth Precinct police say Colbert draws a pension as a veteran of the Spanish-American War and that his bugle call started the fighting at the Battle of Manila Bay.

Daughter of Admiral Weds Submarine Officer

Coronado, Calif., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Miss Elizabeth Sanders Chase, 24-year-old daughter of Admiral and Mrs. Jehu Valentine Chase, and Lieut. Rex Smith Caldwell, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Caldwell, of Kansas City, were married today at Christ Episcopal Church. Admiral Chase is commander-in-chief of the United States Fleet.

The bride is a graduate of Girls School in Long Beach. Lieut. Caldwell was graduated in 1925 from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, where he was a football star. He is an officer aboard the submarine V-2.

VICTIM OF PARALYSIS TELLS BEATING TALE

Crippled War Veteran From Naval Hospital Claims Police Brutality.

Just one week after a general investigation was launched into police brutality charges a crippled World War veteran was beaten by a policeman in Congress Heights, according to a statement made last night to The Post.

The veteran, L. H. Ball, of Dante, Va., a paralysis patient at Naval Hospital, whose affliction causes him to stagger at times, said a policeman struck him several times in the face Sunday night because he suspected him of drunkenness.

The policeman started to take him to a police station, the veteran said, but after walking him a block decided to let him go.

He told The Post he was walking across Nichols avenue to a taxi stand when his weakened legs caused him to stumble. The policeman approached, accused him of "handing him a line" when Ball told him what his trouble was, then, he said, the policeman struck him when the patient answered him back.

"He hit me under the eye and I got mad and hit him with my cane," the patient said. "Then he let me have it. He hit me across the chin with a stick, and then started on me with his fists. I went down."

Hospital attaches said the man is a model patient.

Wife Seizes Home During Mate's Trip

Teacher at Dunbar High Dispossesses Husband as He Leaves City.

In absence of her husband, William M. Brewer, head teacher in the department of history of the colored high schools, and until recently a member of the board of examiners, who is visiting relatives in Georgia, possession of her home at 1010 Fairmont street northwest, was taken yesterday by Mrs. Mollie Gibson Brewer, teacher of French in the Dunbar High School. Mr. Brewer was dispossessed and his property put in storage.

Mrs. Brewer, last spring, moved from the home, which was purchased in her maiden name before marriage. Her departure, she stated, was under agreement with her husband that they both would move, live separately and rent the property.

He continued to live there, however, after she had moved into the Howard Manor, 654 Girard street northwest, and had sued him for divorce. The first opportunity for her to recover the property appeared yesterday after she was apprised of his departure.

MRS. GRACE PULVER SUES FOR DIVORCE

Washington Society Matron Seeks Reno Divorce; Eloped Six Years Ago.

Charging extreme mental cruelty, Mrs. Grace Waggaman Pulver, prominent Washington society matron, yesterday filed a suit for divorce from her husband, George M. Pulver, according to word received here from Reno, Nev. She requested the sole custody of their only child.

Mrs. Pulver, who formerly lived with her mother, Mrs. Alexander Legare, at 1737 N street northwest, eloped with Mr. Pulver shortly after her debut here about six years ago. Following their marriage the couple lived at 1726 Massachusetts avenue northwest. They separated a year ago, and Mr. Pulver took up his residence at the Racquet Club.

The elopement created a sensation in society circles. With the couple were the former Lila Roosevelt, who on the same occasion married James Lee, well known newspaperman. The double marriage came as a surprise to the friends of both couples. The Lees were divorced some time ago.

FRANCIS JONES QUITS AT REQUEST OF DOAK

tion between the retiring director and the Secretary of Labor, it was revealed, concerned the special employment service for veterans which Mr. Jones established. Mr. Jones favored the expenditure of more funds and greater concentration on this work, while Secretary Doak and Mr. Alpine were opposed to such expansion, it was disclosed.

Secretary Doak, it was shown, asked Mr. Jones what he proposed doing for trainmen and labor. Mr. Jones replied, he said, that organized labor takes care of its own and that war veterans represented a cross-section of all kinds of labor. If he could have spoken "honeyed words" or given "flattering looks," Mr. Jones told Secretary Doak, he probably would have fared better. He added that he did not happen to be a "yes man."

Brings Up Wagner Bill.

Mr. Jones reminded Secretary Doak that he advised President Hoover to veto the Wagner bill because it would abolish the specialized service for veterans and labor. Mr. Jones quoted the Secretary as stating in the letter that he could not approve a measure which proposed to scrap these agencies. Secretary Doak later issued instructions that superintendents of specialized veterans offices remove the "specialized employment service for veterans" signs and convert their offices into general placement offices, according to Mr. Jones' letter. The writer added that this order defied the expressed will of Congress.

The fight by Mr. Jones to prevent abolition of the veterans service was carried to the American Legion, it was revealed. After the national commander of the legion conferred with Secretary Doak the latter agreed to continue the specialized service. The outgoing director contends that he was willing to risk his position by protecting the Secretary from "the wrath of all former service men."

In recognition of his interest in the veterans' service Mr. Jones was given an honorary membership, a distinguished service certificate and an honor certificate and medal of Oal Cliff Post, No. 275, of the American Legion, at Dallas Tex. He was given a distinguished service award by Buddies Chapter, No. 11, Disabled Veterans of the World War. His work as director was praised by Roger W. Babson and the late T. V. Powderly, author of "Thirty Years of Labor."

Appointed in June, 1921.

Mr. Jones was appointed director general by former Secretary of Labor James J. Davis on June 3, 1921. At that time, Mr. Jones said, the employment service was in a "chaotic condition." It had been denied an appropriation by the lower house of Congress and the United States Chamber of Commerce had gone on record as opposing it.

After several years the real worth of the service was demonstrated by "hard and intelligent work on the part of its staff" and Congress increased the appropriation. At the last session, Congress made a special appropriation of $500,000 for the service because of the increase in unemployment. Last March Mr. Jones recommended the following improvements: Extension of the farm labor service, enlargement of the information service, further development of the State cooperative service and the establishment of 44 additional specialized employment offices for war veterans.

ROOSEVELT RELIEF RUNS AGAINST SNAG

Albany Republicans Ready to Pass Own Program If He Won't Compromise.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Republican legislators tonight began the assembling of their own unemployment relief program, prepared to pass it and leave it on Gov. Roosevelt's desk if he refuses to modify his own plan to compromise with that of the Republican majority.

The divergence of opinion between the Democratic governor and the Republican legislative majority arose primarily over the question of administration of the $20,000,000 relief fund the governor has recommended. The Republicans were cool to the governor's suggestion that a commission of three members—a "governor's commission"—should handle the dispensation of the fund.

The majority party members, returning to Albany tonight to resume the extra session of the New York Legislature, indicated they felt the administration of the fund could be best handled by an existing agency, such as the Department of Social Welfare. If the Democratic governor declined to agree in this, they indicated, they would introduce and pass their own program of bills, place them on the governor's desk for his signature or veto and leave him with the responsibility of deciding whether there would be relief.

Confronted with this threat to the smooth passage of his program through the legislative mill, the governor insists on his right to name the commission. He was confident tonight that any differences over the distribution of the money could be ironed out. It is known he has selected an outstanding man for the chairmanship.

The governor has predicated his appeal for a commission on the belief that the work was of an extraordinary nature, demanding the voluntary attention of administrators who normally would be beyond the inducement of any salary the State could offer.

Gov. Roosevelt is known to desire that the commission be headed by an executive of the type of Owen D. Young, who, like Walter S. Gifford, chosen to fill the chairmanship of President Hoover's commission, is one of the Nation's industrial leaders.

Another suggestion for unemployment relief reached the governor's desk today. Labor representatives advanced the idea that in adopting the governor's recommendation for a five-day week in all State or municipal work, wages should be paid for six days. The five-day week, proponents point out, would require the utilization of more labor while the extra day's pay would still further augment the effect of this phase of the relief program.

CHINESE IN MEXICO SEEK U. S. PASSAGE

Mexico City, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Sam Young, Chinese Minister to Mexico, said today that permission of the United States Interior Department had been sought to permit Chinese who have been ordered out of Sonora, Mexico, to leave by way of the United States without the necessity of obtaining special passports.

The minister said that the shipment of Chinese from Nogales to California, "in transit" to China, was possible through bonding arrangements with the United States Government, but that Mexican border authorities had been holding up their departure until a tax of $50 each was paid. He said he understood this tax would be raised to $100 tomorrow, when the time limit fixed by local authorities for Chinese evacuation from Sonora expires.

He asserted a considerable number of Chinese in Sonora were endeavoring to leave by way of Nogales, while others were leaving by way of Mazatlan.

The minister added that he had not yet received a reply from his request for an audience with President Ortiz Rubio to protest against the anti-Chinese campaign, but that as soon as he talked with the president he would cable his government for instructions.

Chinese in La Paz, in the southern district of Lower California, have also been given until tomorrow to make their departure, he said, and anti-Chinese measures are continuing in Sinaloa, Tamaulipas and other parts of the country.

Catholic Church Bombed In Heart of Mexico City

Mexico City, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A bomb exploded in La Profesa Temple, a Catholic church in the heart of Mexico City, late this afternoon, destroying a pulpit, smashing several confession booths and causing considerable damage to the main altar.

Only six persons were in the temple at the time and none of them was injured. They said they saw a young man in a brown suit place the bomb and flee to the street. Police are working on a theory the bombing may have been perpetrated by anti-Catholics from Vera Cruz.

Political Accord Basis Sought by 2 Panamans

(Associated Press.)

Francisco Arias Paredes, Panaman secretary of state, said yesterday he and Minister Harmodio Arias, who have been considered leading possibilities for the Liberal presidential nomination in November, had discussed the Panaman political situation thoroughly. Secretary Arias said: "Although we have been unable to reach any conclusion yet, I have strong hopes the party will go to the polls without a split."

Secretary Arias is dividing his time between Washington, where he and the minister are holding their conversation, and New York, where the secretary is purchasing planes for domestic airmail service. He indicated yesterday it probably would be another week before he is able to return to Panama.

FARM BOARD CASTS ASIDE SUGGESTIONS TO BUY COTTON

1, it would spend 10 per cent of the returns on its Southern sales to buy and store cotton.

Officials of the company estimated the sales in that period would amount to $10,000,000, and that $1,000,000 would be available for the purchase of cotton.

The Cudahy announcement said the cotton would be held for one year or until such a time as the price reaches 10 cents a pound.

Mr. Williams puffed thoughtfully on a cigarette as he announced the board would buy no more cotton. He supplemented it with a studiously phrased statement that the board's stabilization operations in wheat and cotton were futile in the face of continued overproduction.

From cotton, he turned to wheat with the comment that the estimated 12 per cent reduction in the winter wheat acreage "was not enough." As a means of further reducing the wheat acreage, Mr. Williams suggested that farmers living below the belt of 25-inch rainfall let half of their land lie idle this fall.

He said "summer tillage" was practiced to a considerable extent now below the 25-inch belt, adding that "summer tillage" was cultivating the soil and keeping it free of weeds without planting it to any crop.

Mr. Williams said portions of Kansas and the Dakotas, the Texas Panhandle, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana were below the rainfall belt he mentioned.

The clarification of a phase of the cotton situation came after conferences with Southern senators last week, and followed immediately a three-hour discussion with members of the cotton advisory committee.

This group, provided for by the same law which set up the board itself, came here yesterday in response to a call from Mr. Williams. He said at the beginning of his press interview that it was "only one of the committee's regular meetings," but later added that various relief plans had been discussed.

The committee members included Bradford Knapp, chairman, of Auburn, Ala.; Harry L. Bailey, of New York; U. B. Bialock, president of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, Raleigh, N. C.; A. H. Stone, vice president of the Staple Cotton Cooperative Association, Greenwood, Miss., and A. E. Kobs, of the Oklahoma Cotton Growers Association.

In support of his assertion that the estimated 12 per cent reduction in winter wheat acreage was insufficient, Mr. Williams said the crop this year was estimated by the Agriculture Department at 894,000,000 bushels and the carryover was placed at 319,000,000 bushels.

"That is 1,213,000,000 bushels of wheat, gentlemen," he said, "enough for a two-year domestic supply." He said his suggestion for a reduction in certain portions of the wheat belt would result in increased yields year after next.

"Wouldn't that give back the same old surplus?" some one inquired.

"Perhaps so," Williams answered, "but in the meantime we will have gotten rid of some of the problems that face us now."

Carlton Jackson, commercial attache at Rio Janeiro, yesterday cabled to the Commerce Department that Brazil had barred imports of flour for the next eighteen months. The cable said the action was taken to protect millers who are to purchase from the Brazilian government the 25,000,000 bushels of wheat for which 1,050,000 bags of coffee were traded to the United States Farm Board.

Herman Fakler, Washington representative of the Millers National Federation, protested to both the State Department and Farm Board yesterday against the board's exchange of wheat for coffee from Brazil.

The federation represents 70 per cent of the American flour millers. Its members interested in the Brazilian trade are located at Buffalo, N. Y., and in the Southwest. The organization's protest to the Farm Board was directed against the board's failure to include a deal on flour in its trade with Brazil. For several months, the federation has urged inclusion of flour in such dealings on the grounds that its exclusion takes away flour markets.

Fakler protested to the State Department against the Brazilian 18-month embargo on flour which Ambassador Moran at Rio de Janeiro advised the State Department yesterday had been imposed.

Since the Farm Board trade had been the cause of the Brazilian embargo, officials expressed an opinion last night they could not transmit the complaint to the Brazilian government.

BRAZIL DELAYS FUND PAYMENTS ON LOANS

External Debts Involved in Temporary Suspension Starting Today.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Sebastiao Sampaio, consul general of Brazil, tonight issued an official statement received from the Brazilian government announcing temporary suspension of sinking fund payments on certain external loans. The statement follows:

"Owing to the fall in Brazilian exchange which has resulted from prevailing economic conditions, the government finds itself unable to obtain necessary foreign exchange to provide in full service on its external debts. The government is anxious that any measures which it may be compelled to take to meet this emergency may not impede or detract from energetic execution of the plan for rehabilitation of Brazilian finance which was recently proposed by Sir Otto Niemeyer and which it is now engaged in carrying through, and it has had the benefit of Sir Otto Niemeyer's advice in determining upon the course which is now announced.

"The government has decided to suspend temporarily as from September 1, 1931, application of sinking fund of all its external loans except two funding loans and Brazil 7½ per cent 1922 coffee security bonds issued in London and New York. In the case of Brazil 6½ per cent 1926 sinking fund dollar gold bonds the next sinking fund has been paid to the trustees and will consequently be applied on October 1 next.

"The government hopes, with alleviation resulting from this suspension, it will be able to continue to provide foreign exchange necessary for payment of interest on its external loans. Until the government is of the opinion that application of sinking fund can be resumed without damage to exchange or carrying out of the plan on which it is at present working, it proposes to deposit with banks to be agreed upon sums in milreis sufficient, at rate of exchange of 4d (4 pence), to provide the several sinking fund payments as and when they become due.

"Should representations of bondholders so prefer, the government would be prepared to destroy sums in milreis referred to or employ the amount in redemption of internal bonds or apolices."

HEAD OF COLOMBIA PLANS TRIP TO U. S.

President Proposes Visit to Strengthen Credit and Fortify Finances.

Bogota, Colombia, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—President Enrique Olaya Herrera proposed a visit to the United States for himself in the interest of Colombia's financial situation in an open letter to the Nation, published by Bogota newspapers today.

No date was given for the start of the proposed trip, which was expected to come before Congress for debate.

(Associated Press.)

Minister Fabio Lozano, of Colombia, yesterday made public a telegram from President Olaya Herrera suggesting a visit by the latter to the United States.

The minister did not comment on the message, which he said was the first he had received on the subject.

The president's telegram said:

"With the idea of studying plans which might be carried out to fortify Colombian credit and strengthen the nation's economic situation, I have thought that perhaps I might be able to arrange a short visit to the United States, providing Congress and public opinion here will consider that my absence would not present political difficulty and that my trip would not change in the slightest degree the present tranquil atmosphere in the country.

"The project has not taken definite form and its realization would depend upon the converging of circumstances which would make it practical."

GUNMEN MISS AIM; SHOOT UP LINGERIE

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Six men in a dark sedan unleashed a charge of shotgun and revolver slugs at a poolroom in the East New York section of Brooklyn tonight, but missed their intended victims, a rival gang and shot up a women's lingerie shop.

More than a dozen women in the shop, on Sutter avenue, ducked into a back room as the bullets shattered a show case and imbedded themselves in walls. None was injured.

Police gun squads and emergency wagons arrived several minutes after the sedan had sped away toward Queens.

The officers said the car contained members of Meyer Shapiro's gang, which for two years has been opposing the group headed by Abe Reles for control of the slot machine racket in Brooklyn. Reles was in the poolroom at the time of the shooting. Police records show Reles and Shapiro have been arrested at least 20 times each.

Confesses in Execution.

A 22-year-old former Marine told police today that an argument over whether they should "stick to hold-ups or do some killing" led to the attempted triple execution in the slaughterhouse district of Brooklyn a week ago.

The statement, authorities said, was made by Barney "English" Wolfson, who admitted he fired some of the shots that killed one of three gangsters lined up against a board fence and wounded the other two.

While his disclosures were being investigated it was learned that the police drive on criminals during the past week has resulted in so many arrests that all city jails are overcrowded. Approximately 100 suspicious characters have been jailed a day since police inaugurated their campaign as an answer to gangsters who had slain a number of innocent bystanders in their defiance of authorities.

The latest innocent bystander to be shot by gangsters, Jennie Ballantonio, 18, was in a hospital with a bullet wound in her thigh. The girl was hit by one of several bullets fired by two extortionists at Joseph Santora, who told police he had been threatened with assassination for refusing to accede to blackmail demands.

Bandit Escapes Police Fire.

A pistol fight between a policeman and a bandit today threw a crowded Brooklyn shopping district into disorder. The fleeing gunman, who had just robbed a stationery store, bumped into Patrolman William Martin as he left the shop. The officer, unaware of the robbery, apologized and stepped aside. The bandit pulled a pistol and began firing.

Martin drew his own weapon and shot three times, but the gunman escaped.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 31

YEARS before the jazz age this group entertained Washington with the tender ballads and rollicking choruses of the last century. It was known as the Arion Quartet Club, a German singing society.

The singers were the pride of Washington in the late sixties and early seventies and won many prizes in competitions in other cities. The banner, prominent in the above picture, was won in a singing contest.

DISMISS CRAIN CASE, IS PLEA OF SEABURY

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Dismissal of charges of incompetency against Thomas C. T. Crain, 71-year-old district attorney for New York County, whom Tammany Leader John F. Curry personally indorsed for office, was recommended to Gov. Roosevelt today by Samuel Seabury.

Mr. Seabury declared, however, "The district attorney in many instances has busied himself ineffectively and a much-heralded warfare upon racketeers ended in a complete and abject surrender by the law-enforcing authorities in New York County."

The investigation was made by Mr. Seabury, acting as the governor's commissioner, after the City Club had asked Crain's removal. The commissioner said there could be no doubt of the diligence which the district attorney had exercised in his office.

In describing the manner in which the district attorney dealt with a situation existing in the magistrates' courts and the problem of curbing racketeering as inefficient, Mr. Seabury said in his 34-page report that both of those cases were special investigations outside the regular routine of Mr. Crain's office.

"In reaching my conclusion," Mr. Seabury said, "I have been very much influenced by the honorable public career that the respondent (Crain) has had. * * * There is not a line of proof that any failure to act in any of the cases referred to above was induced by any improper influence or any unworthy motive."

Mr. Crain is a former supreme court justice.

"The evidence before me compels the conclusion that the much-heralded warfare upon racketeers ended in a complete and abject surrender by the law-enforcing authorities in New York County," said Mr. Seabury.

"In reaching this conclusion I do not think that I minimize the difficulties involved in the problem that confronted the police department and the district attorney. I merely call attention to the self-evident and admitted fact that their efforts have so far failed

"An examination of the specific investigations that were made by the district attorney and the efforts that were made to put the criminal law in operation against the racketeers explains, I think, in a large measure, the reason why no substantial results were obtained."

Mr. Seabury then referred to the specific instances which came under his scrutiny. They were: Racketeering in Fulton Fish Market, in the millinery trade, in the cloth-shrinking trade and the general racketeering situation.

Fewer Wage Cuts Are Cited by Green

Labor Head Says Levels Generally Maintained Despite Slump.

(United Press.)

Wage levels in the Nation's industries have been generally maintained despite the economic depression, President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said yesterday in a statement issued to combat "propaganda being spread broadcast to make it appear that wages are being reduced universally."

The only opposition to maintaining wage scales, Green said, has come from "bankers, employers with limited vision and some economists."

"Despite the severity of the crisis," Green said, "wage cuts have been confined to smaller companies or the mismanaged industries. During the first twelve months of 1930 the number of firms reporting wage cuts per 100 firms reporting were 6.7 per cent; for the first six months of 1931, 9.9 per cent. This amounts to 16.6 per cent for the eighteen months. Contrast this to 92.7 per cent for 1921."

ESTATE OF WHITNEY TOTALS $239,301,017

Sets Record in New York; Large Bequests to Institutions Bared.

New York, Aug. 31 (U.P.).—Although Payne Whitney, financier and sportsman, died in 1927, his business genius had so carefully mapped the future of his affairs that his estate earned $52,721,000 in the next two years and finally attained the astounding total of $239,301,017, it was revealed today in a Surrogate's Court accounting.

It was the largest on record in this court, exceeding by $100,000,000 that of Mrs. Anna H. Harkness. Wise investments made by Whitney and the careful purchase of property caused his fortune to go through a mushroom growth that made him one of the world's richest men.

Much of the increase was caused by the rise in stock market securities in the boom days. They were values which shrank with the depression.

Many Stocks Listed.

Prominent among the stocks were 44,863 shares of the Northern Finance Co., a holding concern established by Col. Oliver H. Payne, who was associated with John D. Rockefeller in the founding of the Standard Oil Co. Other securities, subsequently sold by the executors, included shares of Standard Oil Co., of New York; R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., Nash Motors, Guaranty Trust Co., Corn Products Refining Co., and Vanadium Corporation.

Papers filed by the executors, Lewis Cass Ledyard, the United States Trust Co. and Lewis Cass Ledyard, jr., show that $17,364,012 was paid in taxes to the State of New York; $4,390,013 to the Federal Government; $353,886 to the State of Maine; $26,376 to the State of Ohio, and $44,985 to other States.

Other Amounts Paid.

In addition, $2,223,087 was paid to the Federal Government for income tax; $383,420 for amounts due on pledges to charitable and educational institutions, and $13,542,076 for debts, funeral expenses and administration costs.

The larger legacies:

To the widow, Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney, $811,282 in tangible personal property. To Finley Peter Dunne, Eugene Hale and Samuel A. Clark, friends, $500,000 each. To Harry Payne Whitney, a brother who has since died, race horses worth $41,000. To Katherine B. Barnes, a cousin, $100,000.

Of the residuary estate the widow receives $63,102,816; the two children, John Whitney Payson and John Hay Whitney, $31,551,408 each.

Among the big charitable and educational bequests were: New York Hospital, $21,691,593; New York Public Library, $7,230,531; Cornell University, $3,286,605; Yale University, $3,286,605; Nassau Hospital, $657,321; Groton School, $1,314,642.

MURDER OF ROOMER CHARGED TO WOMAN

12 Have Died in Her House; Insurance Held Lure; Confession Denied.

Detroit, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—While her attorney challenged a confession claimed by the prosecutor's office, Mrs. Rose Veras, rooming house proprietor, was held in the county jail tonight charged with the slaying of one of a dozen men who died mysteriously in her home during the last eight years.

Mrs. Veras and her son, William, were arraigned in Recorder's Court today on a charge of slaying Steve Mak, one of the twelve men. Mother and son stood mute and were held without bond pending examination September 4.

Prior to the arraignment, Duncan C. McCrea, assistant prosecutor, announced that Mrs. Veras had confessed to an unnamed person "not connected with the police department" that she had pushed Mak to his death from an attic window of her house after two attempts to poison him had failed.

After the arraignment, Frank M. Kenney, jr., attorney for Mrs. Veras, said she had denied confessing to the police or to anyone else, that she had refused to sign a paper offered her by officers because she could not read it and because her attorney was not present. Kenney said Mrs. Veras charged that the police told her that her attorney was in jail and would be kept there until she signed the paper they offered her.

McCrea said Mrs. Veras also confessed that she killed Mak to obtain insurance of which she was the beneficiary.

The assistant prosecutor said Mrs. Veras did not confess any other slayings. Investigators today continued their efforts to determine the circumstances under which the eleven other men died. Mrs. Veras is said to have paid premiums on 75 life insurance policies taken out by roomers in her home.

Capital Woman's Guess Is Mary Baker Case Link

Washington's Mary Baker slaying mystery and the Clarksburg, W. Va., murder orgy were linked yesterday when Sheriff William Grimm, of the West Virginia city, received a letter suggesting that Harry F. Powers might know something about the death of the Navy Department employe.

The letter was signed by "F. K. Moseley, 1430 W street, Washington, D. C." It developed that the correspondent was Mrs. F. K. Moseley.

"I was eating a peach the other day," said Mrs. Moseley yesterday, "when I had a hunch that Powers might know something about the Baker case. So I wrote to the sheriff. Oh, no; I never knew Mary Baker nor Mr. Powers, except what I read about them in the papers."

Confession Clears Life-Term 'Slayer'

But It Comes After Man Has Served 23 Years for Other's Crime.

Chester, Ill., Aug. 31 (U.P.).—A gray-haired old man, broken in spirit by 23 years of prison life for a murder he never committed, knelt tonight in prayer in his cell, not wholly convinced yet that another man finally had confessed the crime.

"I mustn't be too sure," the stooped life-termer, Jesse Lucas, murmured as tears trickled down his cheeks, "but I've never lost my faith in God's justice. The road has seemed hard, but it was clear. Especially was it a mighty temptation for me to say I did the murder, when the parole board twice promised freedom if I'd confess. I'm glad I didn't lie."

Lucas was sentenced to prison for life 23 years ago for the murder of Clyde Showalter, a young stock buyer. More than a month ago George R. Pond, a farmer, confessed on his deathbed to killing Showalter during a holdup. A movement has been started to obtain freedom for Lucas. It may be forthcoming in about a month.

MAN FACES DEATH PLUNGE TWO HOURS

Clings to 10-inch Ledge 150 Feet From Ground as Companion Falls.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A breaking scaffolding at the top of a 150-foot chimney tumbled one steeplejack to his death today, but his 63-year-old companion escaped because he was able to face almost certain death for two hours without collapsing.

Gondolfo di Primo, 40, and James Kemp, 63, had been working on the outside of a chimney of the Yawman & Erbe Manufacturing Co.'s plant, and today had pulled themselves on the frail board flooring of their scaffolding to the very top when the ropes slipped.

Di Primo cried out in alarm and the next moment was hurtling through the air. He was dead when picked up on the ground. Kemp, warned by his comrade's cry, grasped a rope and instead of plunging outward from the chimney landed on a ten-inch ledge eight feet from the chimney's top.

The fire department was called out but its ladders fell far short of the spot where the man hugged the bricks. Planes were pressed into service and attempted to lower ropes to the prisoner, but a stiff breeze frustrated this plan. While police stood about the base of the chimney holding life nets the Coast Guard arrived and went into action with a rocket gun.

At last a slender line was tossed over the chimney's top and Kemp, who by then had been balancing on his perilous wind-swept perch for two hours, cautiously reeled in the line and a heavier rope attached to it. A swing was sent up in the same way and seating himself in it the old steeplejack was lowered to the ground.

The man who had been helping with the ropes at the base of the chimney fell unconscious from nervous strain as Kemp was saved and it was thought Kemp himself would probably collapse. But stepping from the swing he walked unaided into the emergency room of the manufacturing company.

"I knew better than to let the thing scare me," he said. "I could have stayed up there a couple of hours more if necessary, because I wasn't nervous."

England Asks Austria To Repay $21,400,000

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The Official Press said today the Bank of England had asked Austria to repay $21,400,000 advanced last May to enable Austria to assist the bankrupt creditanstalt.

The Austrian National Bank, is preparing to meet the amount in installments. The hope was expressed in financial circles that the Bank of France would be able to relieve the position of the Austrian National Bank which is now obliged to take over this large block of Austrian Government treasury notes which were to have been placed abroad.

QUANTICO CORPORAL WINS RIFLE MATCH

W. A. Easterling Takes First as Capital Guard Ties for Second in Ohio.

Camp Perry, Ohio, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The Leech Cup match, first of a two-weeks' series of national rifle matches here, was won today by Corpl. W. A. Easterling, U. S. Marine Corps, Quantico, Va. He scored 104 out of possible 105 points on the 800, 900 and 1,000 yard ranges to defeat 1,460 military and civilian competitors.

Lieut. William R. Lane, National Guard, Washington, D. C.; Lieut. Raymond Presnall, U. S. Marines, Quantico, and Emmet O. Swanson, Minneapolis civilian, tied with 103 points each. The match was won last year by James McWillie, U. S. Infantry, with 103.

The chemical warfare match, fired on the 200-yard range, with each competitor wearing regulation Army gas mask, was won by Lieut. Alwin Kramer, U. S. Navy, Springfield, Mass., with 96 out of a possible 100. Lieut. Paul Lutz, National Guard, Detroit, and Sergt. Oddis L. Lowe, U. S. Infantry, also had scores of 96, but their targets were ranked inferior to Kramer's.

Los Angeles Wins.

Los Angeles police swept individual and team honors in the national championship police pistol match. The four-man team scored 1,111 out of a possible 1,200 points to beat Portland by 1 point. New York City was third with 1,104. The Detroit team, which won with 1,112 last year, did not place.

R. S. Nowka, member of the Los Angeles team, won individual honors with 284 out of a possible 300, and his teammate, C. E. Ward, was runner up with 275. Jack Lauthan, Oklahoma City, and George A. Marshall, Portland, Oreg., tied for third with 274. The police matches were fired at 25 and 50 yards, rapid, slow and timed fire.

Will Settle Tie.

Sixteen riflemen will shoot off tomorrow a first-place tie in the Camp Perry Instructors' match, in which they excelled 1,123 competitors. The match was fired from 200 yards, 10 shots rapid fire.

Scoring 792 points out of a possible 800, First Lieut. Walter R. Stokes, of the Medical Detachment, 121st Engineers, District of Columbia National Guard, took sixth prize among 191 competitors in the preliminary Dewar match, the first major event of the 22-caliber section.

The American Dewar Trophy was captured by Milo Coleman, of Pittsburgh, who tied and outranked Henry G. Adams, La Mesa, Calif., with a 794 total. Lieut. Stokes was tied with two others for fourth place, but was outranked into sixth.

Three More From Capital.

Three other Capital militiamen also were listed on the prize bulletin. Sergt. Theodore L. Harrell, Ordnance Detachment, and Capt. Just C. Jensen, Ordnance Department, State staff, each shooting 790 for sixteenth and seventeenth places, respectively, and First Lieut. Thaddeus A. Riley, Headquarters, 121st Engineers, totaling 787 for thirtieth prize.

Six District of Columbia guardsmen were graduated yesterday from the Small Arms Flying School, and awarded certificates qualifying them as instructors in rifle marksmanship. They are Second Lieut. Kern, Ordnance detachment, State staff, and Private Louis W. Panneton, same detachment. The school instructor was Lewellyn D. Tharp, U. S. Infantry, tank section, a native of Washington.

Labor Group Demands Death for Sheriff's Aid

Harlan, Ky., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Criticising Harlan County authorities for letting "thugs and deputy sheriffs who kill workers go free," the southern division of the International Labor Defense, Chattanooga, Tenn., today demanded the death penalty for Deputy Sheriff Lee Fleener, who killed Joe Moore, 40, and wounded two other miners during a pistol battle Sunday night. A similar demand in a telegram was received by Gov. Fiem D. Sampson at Frankfort.

Fleener was released under $5,000 bond today. He said he shot Moore and wounded Julius Baldwin, 30, and Jeff Baldwin, 32 brothers, when they started shooting at him as he stopped in front of a pavilion frequented by miners, and in which firearms recently had been seized by officers.

Goffstown, N. H., Aug. 31 (U.P.).—Harry Foster, 60, shot and killed his wife as she slept in their cabin here and then committed suicide by turning the gun on himself, it was discovered late today.

Police believed the double shooting occurred last night. The cabin is in a lonely spot at the foot of Mount Uncanoonuc. A passerby saw Foster's body on the veranda.

HOOVER BOND PLANS STIR TAX ARGUMENT

(United Press.)

President Hoover's plan of avoiding a tax increase at the next session of Congress by long-term bond issues has revived controversy as to the policy that should be pursued to meet the Treasury's growing deficit.

This was apparent yesterday in widespread discussion of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's announcement of a billion dollar refunding program which included a 24-year $880,000,000 bond issue and a $300,000,000 certificate issue to run for a year. Other bond issues are to follow later.

A group in Congress, which includes all the so-called independent Republicans and some Democrats, urges a fair and square recognition of the Treasury's dilemma and a revision of taxes upward to meet it, instead of borrowing huge sums of money and saddling some of the costs of the depression on the next generation.

Mellon Wants Tax Raise.

A tax increase, they contend, is inevitable later, with which administration officials seem to agree, and they argue that Congress might as well face the issue now. Regular Republicans and regular Democrats for the most part can not see it that way with an election just ahead, and are ready to support the bond issue stop-gap until a year hence.

Secretary Mellon is inclined to consider the problem purely from a fiscal standpoint, and is believed to favor a general tax revision, though he declined yesterday to discuss his position.

He suggested a broad revision of the general tax structure a few months ago, without specifying when it should be carried out, and laid emphasis upon additional excise taxes of a stable nature to supplement the fluctuating income tax. Since that time, it is known, he has been studying a program of revision.

Hoover Overrules Mellon.

The reputation of the veteran Treasury head, who has become almost a legendary figure among business men for his surpluses and his successive tax reductions, is more or less at stake at this time and it is believed he would prefer to offer a long-time tax revision program bearing his imprint. But President Hoover, apparently, has ruled otherwise.

Republican leaders argue that if tax revision were brought up at the coming session it might get out of bounds. The independent Republican group advocates increased levies upon the rich. Mellon has devoted his chief attention to reducing taxes on the wealthy, and it is his contention that lower rates produce more revenue than higher rates as the latter tend to drive wealth into tax-free securities.

Treasury officials insisted yesterday that the bond issue should not be interpreted in the light of any relation with tax policy. The Treasury had to have money, so it borrowed, they explained.

Doherty Attacks Issue.

The bond issue was hardly announced before it was attacked by Henry L. Doherty, oil magnate and capitalist, who criticized the issue of bonds instead of short-term notes with lower rates of interest. Mellon declined to comment on the Doherty letter to him, but will reply to Doherty, it is understood.

It was explained at the Treasury that short-term financing will not meet continued needs for money, such as is now the Treasury's problem, and that there are times when short-term money is more costly than long-term funds. Treasury officials expressed confidence that the issue would be oversubscribed.

TORRIO IS WITNESS BEFORE GRAND JURY

'Old Master' Given 3-Hour Grilling on His Star Pupil, Capone.

With Prof. Torrio, instructor in machine-gunning, whisky-cutting and beer-brewing, were two of his lesser students, Phil d'Andrea and Bobby Barton. D'Andrea is lobbyist for the Capone liquor-vice-gambling syndicate. Bobby is the hard-boiled chauffeur of the Capone money car.

They had been subpenaed to tell about the Capone millions, the Capone reigns of terror and the Capone slayings.

Others of their ilk will be taken before the grand jury during the next week and then, on September 8, Capone will go to trial on income tax evasion charges. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson will rule at that time whether Capone also must stand trial on 5,000 separate beer charges.

The beetle-browed Torrio, the ferret-eyed D'Andrea and the "Dese, Dem and Dose" Barton hurried from the Federal Building as soon as they could. Torrio spent three hours with the jurors, then slipped a pair of smoked spectacles over his eyes and covered his face with a newspaper in a dash past cameramen.

"Whatta town, whatta town," said Torrio. "I'm through. It's back to New York for me."

So whatever the "Old Master" told the jurors must remain a secret until a week from tomorrow when the details of Capone's life will be told in court.

CONTROL OF ARMIES URGED FOR LEAGUE

creating an international armed force which will insure respect for arbitral decisions and with a policy of imposing penalties on nations which have been declared aggressors. He said French circles were growing apprehensive over next year's disarmament conference.

"Europe's troubles, the campaign for the revision of treaties, the hypocrisy with which France's military strength is weighed with a total ignoring of France's responsibilities, and an evident jealousy of France's financial situation which takes no account of France's sacrifices—all are engendering the impression here that there is a deliberate wish to ruin France's national security," the statement continued.

M. Paul-Boncour expressed the opinion that upon the success or failure of the disarmament conference depends the future of peace. "People are watching France," he asserted.

The covenant of the League of Nations does not envisage mathematical parity of armament, he said, because the framers knew this would be duplicity and impossible.

Rome, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The first reaction here following the announcement of the proposal made by Joseph Paul-Boncour was one of amused skepticism.

There was no official comment, but well-informed persons voiced the opinion that M. Paul-Boncour was "seeing too far ahead" and "dreaming of French control of world armies through the strong influence of France in the League of Nations."

(Associated Press.)

Administration authorities withheld comment yesterday on the Paul-Boncour proposal. Some officials expressed the opinion privately, however, that such a proposal would meet severe congressional opposition.

SOVIET PACT PLAN STUDIED IN GENEVA

Economic Nonaggression Proposal Draws Favor in Principle.

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The Soviet proposal for an economic nonaggression pact was presented today by Maxim Litvinoff, Russian commissar for foreign affairs, to his colleagues of the Pan-European Commission's coordinating committee and obtained "in principle" a favorable reception.

The committee referred the scheme to a subcommittee which will seek to return it in a modified form acceptable to the spokesmen of the European states.

Litvinoff's project, therefore, will be given further consideration by the coordinating committee before that body drafts its general program for alleviating the European economic situation. This program is to be submitted to the full European Union Commission at a session beginning Thursday.

Spirit of German Policy.

"The Soviet nonaggression scheme conforms to the spirit of German policy, which works for an economic pacification of Europe simultaneously with political pacification," said Julius Curtius, German foreign minister.

But as in a country that appears flat from an airplane, said Andre Francois-Poncet, French delegate, "chasms and stubborn peaks begin to be evident" in the nonaggression project.

Meanwhile, a report of economic experts advocated "the widest possible collaboration of the nations of Europe in the sense of making Europe a single market for the products of any and every country in it."

The Soviet commissar described his scheme as a negative corollary to a "most favored clause," guaranteeing the signatories against special discrimination in the economic field.

Curtius Supports Plan.

Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, gave the Russian plan warm support. Dino Grandi, the Italian foreign minister, also approved the principle of the nonaggression idea.

Andre Francois-Poncet, French delegate, while indorsing the principle of nondiscrimination, suggested that the scheme was not so simple as it might appear. He moved to refer the Soviet's draft of the protocol to the League of Nations economic committee. An immediate decision would be imprudent, the Frenchman said.

Salvador de Madariaga, Spain's delegate, sympathized with the scheme, but felt that it was difficult always to distinguish between economic attack and defense.

The warnings of Washington and Monroe against "foreign entanglements" have lost their force, Senator Henry Berenger, former French Ambassador to the United States, today told the committee.

"American entanglement in world affairs is now complete," he said, "the penetration of American capital since the World War has made a 'European bloc' impossible, and provincialism appears to be a thing of the past for continents as well as for nations."

Failure of Signals Is Blamed on Fuse

Police Will Investigate Traffic Vicissitudes of Ball Fan.

Failure of traffic lights on upper Sixteenth street northwest to function properly for more than half an hour Sunday afternoon, causing a serious tie-up in heavy traffic, was laid to a blown-out fuse yesterday by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer.

Mr. Van Duzer said such mishaps are nearly unpreventable and that a standing order is in effect for traffic policemen to be dispatched to the scene of such disorder.

A tale of traffic vicissitudes encountered by a baseball fan on his way to and from Griffith Stadium Sunday afternoon, called to the attention of police by The Post, was promised investigation.

CHEST ASSOCIATION MAPS RELIEF DRIVE

Ten Field Representatives Are Chosen for Canvass of U. S. for Funds.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Field representatives who are to go into virtually all of the forty-eight States during the next three months to stimulate community participation in the Nation-wide welfare and relief mobilization received instructions and assignments today during a five-hour conference in the offices of the Association of Community Chests and Councils.

The mobilization was launched June 13 by the Community Chest organization at the request of the President's emergency committee for employment, and has now been brought under the President's organization for unemployment relief directed by Walter S. Gifford. Its purpose is to rally all communities down to the 25,000 population limit to meet their own needs this fall and winter insofar as possible through a combination of public and private local resources.

The ten men who participated in the conference are to canvass ten regions into which the country has been divided for organization purposes. They will follow up questionnaires sent out during the summer to determine actual needs and the status of local resources for meeting them, confer with public officials on the extent to which public appropriations will be needed, and stimulate fund-raising campaigns to be held between October 19 and November 25.

The President's organization will be drawn upon for help and reinforcement where needed and a consulting service will be offered in coordinating public and private effort and in formulating campaign plans.

5 DEFEND MOTHER IN VIRGINIA KILLING

Deny Charges of Brother That Woman Plotted to Kill Husband.

Amelia Courthouse, Va., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Three daughters and two sons of Mrs. Jeston Allen Jones today took the witness stand to defend her against a charge of murdering her husband, J. Will Jones, last January 8. Their testimony, for the most part, was directed against credibility of that previously given by her son, Robert, who said his mother plotted his father's death and even urged him to commit the crime.

Oscar Jones, indicted with his mother, took the stand for the defense late today after being advised that he need not appear unless he desired. Commonwealth's Attorney George K. Taylor subjected him to a rigid cross-examination. Charles Jones also was called.

Mrs. Antonio Ordonez, of La Paz, Bolivia, and Mrs. Emily Rickman and Mrs. Caroline DeHaven, of Carrol County, Va., aligned themselves with their mother and told of Robert's conversations with them and of alleged demands for money.

"Robert told me," said Mrs. Ordonez, wife of a former secretary of the Bolivian consulate at New York, "that he had it all in his hands, that if mother comes across everything will be all right. He said he wanted something besides words, that it took money to go to school and get somewhere in the future."

Senor Ordonez testified Robert said that if his mother assured him money enough to go to school he would have nothing more to do with the case.

Mrs. De Haven quoted Robert as saying it would be worth $10,000 to the Jones family to prosecute Richard Lee, a Negro farm hand now serving 20 years for the murder, because of the double indemnity provisions of an insurance policy. Robert Jones testified that his mother told him she planned to have Richard Lee kill his father.

Mrs. Jones listened intently while her daughters were on the stand. Her husband, J. Will Jones, prominent dairyman, was shot to death in bed the night of January 8. Mrs. Jones and her son, Oscar, were arrested after Richard Lee, in his trial, charged that he was offered $25 by them to commit the murder.

Hoover Will Talk On College Drive

Fess, in Making His Plan to Executive, Lauds Liberal Arts Movement.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover was requested yesterday by Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, to say a word for the liberal arts college movement and he consented to do so tomorrow before a committee.

The liberal arts movement, Senator Fess explained, is one aimed to make more secure the place of the smaller colleges. Senator Fess himself formerly was president of Antioch College.

"The small college," said the senator, "does not so much put the emphasis on research as it does upon the student as a personality. It stimulates ability to think rather than to store knowledge."

He explained that many of the 600 small colleges of standard grade have little, if any, support by endowment or from public taxation and that the movement was intended to establish more definitely the place of these institutions in the educational world.

Drive Local, Not National, Relief Director Emphasizes

Federal Government Contemplates No Campaign, and October 19 to November 29 Plea Will Not Interfere With Other Agencies, Gifford Says.

(Associated Press.)

Walter S. Gifford, national relief director, yesterday emphasized that the Federal Government contemplates no campaign for a Nation-wide relief fund.

"The President's organization on unemployment relief," he said in a statement, "is not instituting a campaign for a national fund, but plans Nation-wide support of local appeals for local funds."

Mr. Gifford said the period from October 19 to November 25 had been recommended for carrying on campaigns for relief funds.

"Insofar as all local campaigns are scheduled within this period," he said, "the President's organization hopes to render the maximum assistance and cooperation by mobilizing all national agencies for stimulation of interest in local efforts."

The statement was issued as a result of inquiries from welfare organization officials who feared a drive for national funds would interfere with their local efforts to raise money and to correct a general misconception of Federal plans.

Gifford said he would soon name a committee which would be responsible for stimulating interest in local efforts to raise funds. The chairman of the committee probably will be announced today.

The relief director over the weekend conferred with some of those he hopes to recruit for his organization.

Fred C. Croxton, assistant director, returned to Washington yesterday after touring the coal-mining regions of West Virginia and Kentucky.

He said that although he found more unemployment than last year in these sections, general conditions were much different because of the "bountiful crops." Thousands of vegetable gardens have produced a surplus of foods which are being conserved to relieve distress, he said.

Croxton reported that although the coal fields are one of the "bad spots" in the general situation, local authorities are making every effort to take care of relief needs. If they fail, he added, help will have to be found "somewhere else."

The relief organization announced yesterday it had been advised of the appointment of Frank Bane, Virginia commissioner of public welfare, as executive director of the American Association for Public Welfare Officials.

This association has been cooperating closely with the President's organization and has been charged with promoting the organization of public resources for relief of distress.

Last year 72 per cent of unemployment relief funds were of this character, originating from money raised by city, county and State taxation.

Bane, who will make his headquarters in Washington, will make a special effort to promote organization of public relief resources in smaller communities.

MRS. OMLIE SHARES HONORS IN AIR RACES

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Mrs. Phoebe Omlie, of Memphis, Tenn., tonight was officially announced as winner of the transcontinental handicap air derby from Santa Monica, Calif., after she had taken a large share of the honors at the national air races today.

The contest committee announced that Mrs. Omlie had won the handicap race, in which 50-odd women and men competed, with a rating of 109.19 points. She won the grand prize as well as the prize for the women's division. D. C. Warren, of Alameda, Calif., won the men's division of the race with 103.5 points.

The handicap derby was scored on the basis of comparative power of motor and speed of plane. The handicapping caused considerable resentment from several pilots, but none had formally protested the final ratings tonight.

Warren and three other men won second to fifth places, inclusive, with Lee Brusse, of Glendale, Calif., third at 101.84; Elden Cessa, of Wichita, Kans., fourth, 101.37, and Marcellus King, of Minneapolis, fifth, 100.76.

Mrs. Bowman Second.

Mrs. Martie Bowman, of Glendale, Calif., placed next to Mrs. Omlie in the women's division with 98.98 points. Next came Miss Mae Haizlip, of Ferguson, Mo., 98.90, and Miss Edith Foltz, of Portland, Oreg., fourth, 97.43.

The third day of the races, underneath a clear sky and blazing sun, was attended by approximately 15,000 spectators.

Hardly had the races started than C. Shirley Reitzel, of Akron, was slightly injured during the deadstick landing contest immediately in front of the grand stand when his Waco plane nosed over. He was sideslipping to slow his ship when a wing dug into the ground. The plane was badly damaged.

With the same Warner Rad monoplane in which she won the derby, Mrs. Omlie stepped out ahead in two 30-mile closed course races for women. In the first she led with an average speed of 129.8 miles an hour. She averaged 132.81 miles an hour to win the second.

250 Miles an Hour.

Another threat for the world land plane speed record of 278.8 miles an hour was made today by Lowell Bayles, of Springfield, Mass., who drove his Gee Bee monoplane 250 miles an hour over a 5-mile course.

It was still possible" that the Navy's new dirigible Akron would be at the races before the closing hour next Monday evening. The giant dirigible is still in its dock at Akron, being subjected to minor changes to strengthen its framework.

Two World War "enemies," who fought it out in the air, saw each other at close range for the first time when Maj. Eddie V. Rickenbacker, American "ace of aces," shook hands with Maj. Ernst Udet, German flyer.

Duke Miller Winner.

Duke Miller, Niles, Mich., won the men's free-for-all race for engines of 115-inch cubic inch piston displacement with an average speed of 91.1 miles an hour in six laps around a 5-mile course.

Walter Franklin, of Kankakee, Ill., did 89.133 miles an hour to finish second. Milton Lambert, of Niles, Mich., was third.

The women's deadstick landing contest was won by Mrs. Freddie Lund, Troy, Ohio. Mrs. Art Davis, East Lansing, Mich., was second, and Mrs. Mary Charles, Los Angeles, third. Mrs. Lund landed 41 feet 9 inches from the mark.

Homemade Plane Vies in Air Race

Craft Is So Small Owner Enters It Sidewise, Wearing No Shoes.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Ben O. Howard's homemade airplane is so small a man much larger could not get into it, but that does not keep him from challenging planes three or four times as powerful in the National Air Races here.

Howard's low-wing monoplane, painted white and named "Pete," was made in a garage back of his home in St. Louis. It has a 90-horsepower Wright Gypsy motor.

The plane is so narrow that Howard has to get into it sidewise. He can not wear his shoes while he is piloting it, for it is too narrow to let his shod feet rest on the controls on the floor. Every ounce of added weight is elimninated as far as possible.

Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Prof. Clifford H. Moore, 65, of Harvard University, died today. He was a native of Sudbury, Mass., and held degrees from Harvard, the University of Munich and Colorado College.

WOMAN'S ACCUSING OF POLICE IS DENIED

Mrs. Miller's Attorney Says No Complaint Is Planned in Riverdale Raid.

Although it was reported that complaint would be made to the county commissioners today about four Prince Georges County policemen who raided the home of a woman in Riverdale, Md., the woman's lawyer said yesterday that he knew nothing of any plans to lodge the complaint. In addition, Chief J. J. Crowley denied that the policemen had misbehaved during the raid, saying that he had already investigated the matter.

Deputy Sheriff Tom Garrison is reported to be ready to register the complaint with the commissioners. He is said to have received the information from Mrs. Katherine Miller, whose home was raided. According to Mrs. Miller, Garrison said, four policemen returned to her home after the raid and ate food from her icebox and drank the alleged liquor they are said to have seized. In addition, Mrs. Miller says that the alleged still found in her home was not in operation when the raid was made. She claims that the officers lighted it after they reached the house, and then made the charge of operation.

Mrs. Miller was arraigned in court last week and asked for a jury trial. She is represented by Attorney Robert W. McCullough, who said yesterday that he knew nothing of his client's complaint to Deputy Garrison. Chief Crowley said that he had been told the charges would be brought, and had then investigated, finding nothing wrong.

Automatic Gear Devised To Float Land Planes

(Associated Press.)

The Navy is developing a device by which land planes will automatically be supported on the water when forced down at sea.

With the flotation gear now used on Navy planes it is necessary for the pilot to pull a release valve to inflate the supporting bags. The new device consists of a valve which will operate automatically through pressure of water on a diaphragm.

TOKYO'S SPOTLIGHT ON ANNE LINDBERGH

She Is Center of Attraction at Premier's Dinner and Colonel Is Pleased.

Tokyo, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—"It was Anne's party all right," chuckled Col. Charles A. Lindbergh tonight after the close of the most brilliant midsummer affair of its kind here in many years—Premier Wakatsuki's dinner to the famous couple.

Cabinet members and their wives and other distinguished guests were clustered about Mrs. Lindbergh, the daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, United States senator and former Ambassador to Mexico.

"She's the belle of the ball—no doubt about that," the colonel asserted.

Mr. Lindbergh entered into the spirit of the dinner with all his heart, he, like Premier Wakatsuki and the many other guests who are acquainted with the senator, making Mr. Morrow the subject of their conversation.

The premier introducing the Japanese guests to the Lindberghs, made it clear that nearly all present knew Senator Morrow in London, New York or Paris. The premier emphasized his great admiration for Anne's father

Mrs. Lindbergh subsequently had to answer many questions concerning her parents—their health, what her father thought of his daughter and son-in-law's Oriental trip, whether the grandparents had cabled anything about the Lindbergh's son, and various other matters.

The Japanese women in their picturesque, colorful costumes, too, enjoyed the dinner, it being an unusual experience, this feting of a woman by such high officials.

The Lindberghs will go tomorrow to Karuizawa, where they will be guests for several days at the summer home of Ambassador Forbes.

Shanghai, Sept. 1 (Tuesday) (A.P.).—Peiping dispatches said today that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh notified the American Legation that he and his wife will not visit Peiping during their forthcoming airplane tour of China.

The dispatches said the colonel was planning to fly direct from Tokyo to Nanking, the capital, at a date as yet unmentioned.

Distress Message Found In Bottle Called Prank

Coast Guard authorities here yesterday characterized as a prank the purported message of distress from a father and two children marooned for three months on an island in Long Island Sound, found in a bottle floating in Chesapeake Bay near Fairhaven, Md.

It was pointed out by the Coast Guard officials that, barring phenomenal current conditions, a bottle cast adrift in Long Island Sound would be borne along toward the Gulf Stream and thence be carried to Northern waters, probably washing up on Nova Scotian shores.

The note, which said that "Mr Smith is stuck on Fisherman's Island," was written in a childish scrawl. This was taken to indicate that a mistake could have been made in the location, "Fisherman's Island," inasmuch as there is no body of land by that name in Long Island Sound; although there is a "Fishers Island," 10 miles off New London, Conn. This island, however, has several summer colonies on it, and it was believed highly improbable that any one could have been lost on the island long without being found.

The bottle, with the note in it, was found by 10-year-old James Ferry, of Bethlehem, while playing on the sand at Fairhaven, 8 miles above Chesapeake Beach, Md., and who was visiting his aunt, Miss Helen McGarvey, whose local address is 610 Rock Creek Church road northwest.

PILOT DIES, THROWN BY STUNTING PLANE

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 31.—H. G. Glover, test pilot, Charlottesville, Va., was instantly killed, when he leaped or fell from an airplane which he was testing over Maugansville, several miles north of here this evening. The plane fell into a straw stack on the farm of Martin L. Horst, while the body of the flier was found partially buried in the soft earth several hundred yards away. It had struck the ground head first.

Glover came here today to get a plane to take back with him, a new Fairchild monoplane built at the Kreider Reisner Aircraft Corporation plant here. He took the plane into the air and flew north at a height of about 1,000 feet.

According to farmers who watched, the plane was being put through a series of stunts and was seen to spin a number of times, when a form fell from the seat and the plane began to roll.

Those watching the plane thought that it was a stunt and that a parachute on the man's back would soon open. But the form continued its way to the earth. The watchers rushed to the spot and found the man dead.

After an examination it was apparent no attempt had been made by Glover to open the chute, as the ring had not been touched.

According to word here, Glover was test pilot for the Curtiss-Wright plant at Baltimore for three years prior to going to Charlottesville, where he operated a flying club. He had come here to get a plane to fly back for one of the club members.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 31.—H. G. Glover, killed today in a parachute leap near Hagerstown, had been in instructor at the airport of the Dixie Flying Service, Inc., near this city, for some time. He came to Charlottesville in October of last year to finish his flying course at Wood Field so that he might obtain a transport license.

Glover was a native of Gloucester County and 26 years of age. He was the only child of his parents, who are making their home at the Jefferson Hotel, Richmond. He married Miss Minna Baukages, of Gloucester, who survives, with two small children, Elizabeth 4, and Margaret, 2. The body, brought here late tonight, will be taken tomorrow to Gloucester for interment.

Body of Airman Found After Dive Into Water

Hamilton, Bermuda, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The body of Cyril Nelmes, owner of a plane which crashed in Grassy Bay, near here, today, was found in the upturned fuselage of the plane after it had been towed to its hangar on Hinson's Island.

John Runger, of New York, who also was in the plane, was fished out of the water and was reported tonight to be suffering from severe shock, but progressing favorably. Nelmes was stunting above a tender on the way to take passengers off the liner Franconia when the plane suddenly shot into the water and was wrecked.

DO-X Drops Plan to Go To Races in Cleveland

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The German flying boat DO-X will not fly to Cleveland during the national air races.

It had been hoped to make the flight, but after long consultation today the officers decided that it was advisable to have the twelve engines completely overhauled before further flying.

SIR HALL CAINE DIES OF HEART DISORDER

Noted British Novelist and Playwright Succumbs at Isle of Man.

London, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Sir Hall Caine, noted British novelist, died at 10:50 p. m. tonight. He had been ill at his home at Douglas, Isle of Man, since last week. He was 78 years old.

Lady Caine and other members of the family were summoned to his bedside last Thursday.

He was suffering from a heart ailment.

Derided, laughed at and condemned because of some of his early literary efforts, Sir Hall Caine attained success the equal of which few authors could boast.

His English-speaking public on both sides of the Atlantic was larger than that of most writers and novel readers generally were eager for his latest work.

With a considerable leaning toward the eternal triangle, critics delared some of his plots crude and the result usually clumsy when, on rare occasions, he attempted to introduce a humorous passage. Nevertheless, Sir Hall gave ample evidence of his ability for fluent, graphic writing.

It would seem that Sir Hall always had in mind a dual purpose for the work—to please the reading public and then present the same subject dramatized so that it would appeal to theatergoers. Many of his book successes attained even greater popularity when presented on the stage.

In 1907 he was declared by the manager of the Lyceum Theater, London, to be the wealthiest novelist in the world. His theatrical royalties from America and England up to that time amounted to $450,000, the manager revealed, and it was said that the sales of his novels had produced an even larger income.

Sir Hall Caine was born May 14, 1853, at Runcorn, Cheshire, of mixed Manx and Cumberland parentage. At an early age he went to live with relatives on the Isle of Man where his boyhood, spent in a condition of poverty, considerably influenced his imaginative writings in later years.

His foster parents eventually sent him to Liverpool with the idea of making him an architect and he was educated with that object in view. He never practiced that profession, however, turning to journalistic work upon completing his studies, when he became a leader writer on the staff of the Liverpool Mercury.

Newspaper writing became so unsatisfactory to Hall Caine that it is related he petitioned for shorter working hours and a reduction in salary so that he might devote more time to novel writing. After six years in Liverpool he went to London on the invitation of D. G. Rossetti, with whom he lived and acted as secretary and companion to the poet-painter until the latter's death.

Sir Hall was married and had two sons. One of them, Derwent Hall Caine, became an actor of note and appeared in the leading roles of many of his father's dramatic works.

Los Angeles Is Visitor Short Time in Newport

The Los Angeles, with Commander A. H. Dresel in charge, arrived here this evening and was moored for a short time to the U. S. S. Pakota in Newport Harbor.

Airmen Postpone Race to Cleveland

Bad Weather Holds Eight Fliers at Los Angeles Until Tomorrow.

Los Angeles, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Because of poor weather conditions over Arizona, New Mexico and the Middle West, the eight nationally known aviators entered in the Los Angeles-Cleveland air race today postponed their take-off scheduled for tomorrow and set Wednesday morning tentatively.

Latest weather reports will be received at a conference tomorrow night. The aviators said they could leave as late as the morning of September 5 and still arrive in time for the Cleveland air carnival.

The fliers here for the race to Cleveland and possibly to New York are: J. H. Doolittle, St. Louis; Capt. Ira Eaker, United States Army; James Hall, New York; Walter J. Hunter, Robertson, Mo.; Beeler Blevins, Atlanta, Ga.; Col. Arthur Goebel, Los Angeles; Harold Johnson, Chicago, and Lou Riechers, Arlington, N. J.

IN AMERICA'S INTEREST.

The question of maintaining a first-class North Atlantic steamship service under the American flag, operated by Americans in the interest of America, is now before the Shipping Board. The United States Lines runs the risk of passing under a management which is interested in foreign competing ships.

Although the United States Lines might be operated under the American flag under the arrangement proposed by the International Mercantile Marine, it does not appear that there is any guarantee that these ships would be operated in the interest of the United States or that any guarantee could be enforced if the operators wished to give foreign ships an advantage.

The first duty of the Shipping Board is to develop an American-owned, American-operated merchant marine devoted to the protection of the commercial interests of the United States. To place American ships in the hands of individuals or corporations operating foreign competing ships is to take a risk. This risk should not be taken if it can be avoided.

The United States Lines was operating with growing success until the depression reduced its earnings, causing financial difficulties that impelled the Chapman interests to apply to the Shipping Board for assistance. It was not forthcoming, but since then the United States Lines has secured support from the Dollar-Dawson interest of the Pacific Coast, and is now strongly fortified.

Considering the large investment already made by the American company and the interest it has shown in building up a strictly national service, it seems patent that it should be given every consideration possible in safeguarding its holdings and in bridging over the present temporary decline in shipping earnings.

Chairman O'Connor is supported by some members of the board in his determination to take no chances in the Americanism of the United States Lines. He favors the plan that would keep the ships in the hands of men who are known to be free from foreign entanglements, and whose financial backing can not be traced to foreign shipping interests. He would carry out the program outlined by the board when it proposed to deal liberally with a corporation capable of operating the line and building necessary new vessels. Such a corporation has been formed and is supported by sufficient capital and shipping experience to make its plans successful. It is an American corporation entirely divorced from foreign interests.

The question before the Shipping Board has been made to appear one of clean-cut rivalry between equally acceptable bidders, in which the operators of foreign competing lines have made the higher bid. This is not a true statement of the case. The United States Lines are not up at auction. If they were, foreign interests could well afford to double their bid, in order to get possession of the American line and put it out of business while seeming to operate it in fair competition with their foreign lines. A foreign monopoly of the North Atlantic trade, over 75 per cent of which is of American origin, would be worth much more than any bid yet discussed. But Americans want no such foreign monopoly. They want American ships operating in behalf of American interests and capable of contributing to the defense of the United States in time of war.

The strongest and most successful shipping men in the country have joined in the arrangement to maintain the United States Lines. They are willing to undertake this enterprise on terms advantageous to the Government, and there is no question as to their undivided loyalty to American interests. When members of the Shipping Board analyze all the factors in the situation it is not to be presumed that they will run the risk of having American ships operated for foreign interests, directly or indirectly.

AVOID HIGHER TAXES.

The Treasury will have no difficulty in disposing of its new issues of bonds and certificates despite the unprecedented interest rates. Last June the Treasury offered an $800,000,000 bond issue at 3⅛ per cent interest and it was several times oversubscribed. The present offering of $800,000,000 in long-term bonds is at 3 per cent. But due to the plethora of capital now available for secure investment it will probably be oversubscribed. The $300,000,000 issue of one-year certificates carries only 1⅛ per cent interest.

It is significant that while many governments in all parts of the world have been forced to seek foreign capital and some of them have had to pay a premium for it, the United States Government can obtain all the money it needs at abnormally low interest rates. Not since the World War has a long-term bond issue been sold with interest as low as 3 per cent. Confidence of the American people in their Government is unlimited.

These Treasury offerings go on the market somewhat sooner than was expected. It is apparent that Secretary Mellon considers this the most favorable time to secure funds to meet the Treasury deficit and to consolidate short-term indebtedness. A revival of business activity is evidently expected this fall, which would mean a tightening of the money market and higher interest rates.

This issue of long-term bonds was made necessary chiefly by the increase in the public debt last fiscal year. Expenditures were increased $226,000,000, while receipts declined $861,000,000. The deficit at the close of the year amounted to $906,000,000 and the public debt was increased $616,000,000. It is fortunate that the Treasury is able to finance the extravagance of the last Congress at low interest rates, but that does not relieve Congress of public disapproval.

Another deficit in the Treasury is expected this year. Tax receipts and customs duties continue to fall behind last year's records. If Congress indulges in another orgy of spending the country will face higher taxes. It is believed that the Government can be financed without imposing heavier burdens on taxpayers if appropriations of the next Congress are held in check. When prosperity returns tax receipts will furnish the Government with a surplus to wipe out last year's increase in the national debt. An increase in taxes might delay the return of better times and thus accentuate the decline in actual revenue collected.

President Hoover is making strenuous efforts to cut down expenditures, so that higher taxes will not be necessary. It is certain that when the budget is transmitted to Congress it will be trimmed to the bone. It remains to be seen, however, whether he will be given cooperation on Capitol Hill. Individual congressmen who do not worry about making the budget balance will bring to Washington extravagant schemes for the aid of the farmer, the unemployed, for war veterans and other favored constituents. Unless their stampede is arrested by vigorous action by party leaders in both houses another large deficit will be piled up and higher taxes will become an absolute necessity.

HUNGARY'S NEW PREMIER.

When the venerable Count Stephen Bethen resigned his post as Prime Minister of Hungary, which he had held for ten years, it was to Count Julius Karolyi that Admiral Horthy, regent, turned. The moment of apprehension was safely passed without political upheaval and the new premier took office. His name is the same as that of the provisional president of the Hungarian republic formed soon after the war. For this reason the present minister has been confused with Count Michael Karolyi by a number of writers.

Count Stephen Karolyi, although a member of an aristocratic family, has always cultivated the most simple tastes and avoided any display of pomp. He refused to accept the automobile provided by the government to all cabinet members, and rides on the trolley cars. His stubborn individualism prompted him to state when he accepted his present post that he took office on condition that he would remain free and independent of political parties.

At the outbreak of the World War Count Karolyi opposed the entry of Hungary on the side of the central powers. After the armistice, when most of the country had gone Communist, he and Admiral Horthy endeavored to form a national government and army at Arad to oppose the revolutionists. Two years ago he became foreign minister and in that capacity frequently represented his country at Geneva. Although succeeding so noted a man as Count Bethen, it is expected that Count Karolyi's record will do him great credit.

CLARA BARTON MEMORIAL.

Celebration of the golden anniversary of the American Red Cross, established in 1881, as a result of American adherence to the Treaty of Geneva, will close officially at Dansville, N. Y., September 9, with an open-air tribute to Clara Barton, founder of the national society and organizer of the first chapter, which bears her name.

Public-spirited men and women helped Miss Barton launch the first unit in the little Lutheran church at Dansville, and joined with newly-formed chapters at Rochester and Syracuse in the first organized Red Cross effort just 50 years ago to assist the victims of a forest fire in Michigan. They will share with President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt of New York the opportunity of honoring this heroic woman.

The simple exercises will be held at Stony Brook State Park, during which the President will speak by radio to a Nation-wide audience from the White House. Gov. Roosevelt will address the assemblage. Some of those who will be present knew Miss Barton when she entered the old Jackson Sanitarium at Dansville in the late 70s, weary from her work with the wounded in the Franco-Prussian War, and disheartened by her first failures to induce the United States Government to subscribe to the Geneva convention. They anxiously watched her recovery and cheered her on to Washington in her fight to obtain American cooperation in the movement. When the treaty was approved and the national society formed in Washington in May, 1881, she returned to Dansville to rest. Within a few months she gathered her friends into the Dansville Chapter to embark on the policy since followed by the Red Cross.

THE FRENCH DEFICIT.

The deficit in the United States Treasury, the more serious financial difficulties of Germany and the banking and political crisis in England, have, in turn, so monopolized attention that the mounting deficit in the French budget has not been noticed until now. The latest indication from Paris is that France will close the year with a balance in red that will reach 2,500,000,000 francs, or approximately $100,000,000.

This is an increase of about $20,000,000 over the deficit for the fiscal year that ended March 31. Furthermore, France will receive no annuities under the Young plan this year. Revenues from business taxes have declined and France has suffered, in common with all the world, a notable decrease in foreign trade, colonial exchange of commodities having been particularly affected.

The new social insurance act, which will call for an expenditure of $20,000,000, increases in pensions and extensive programs for public works were not covered in the last budget estimates and will now have to be provided for. Expenditures for army, navy and air defense in France last year totaled $400,000,000 without counting colonial expenditures or the cost of permanent police or Republican Guard forces.

An estimate in the Journal des Debats computes the possible amount of the French deficit as high as $250,000,000, which is considered heavy in a budget totaling only a little more than $2,000,000,000. Publicity is being given this situation with the evident intention of impressing political parties and Parliament as well as government officials with the necessity of economy. France, with her customary thriftiness, may be able to forestall serious difficulties such as have recently plagued her neighbors.

With wheat prices where they are, it's about time that some one thought of a better slang expression for money than dough.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

From the Journal of Commerce.

A group of Chicago business leaders is organizing an association whose purpose it is to eliminate the Government from business. The group intends to bring political pressure to bear to secure the election to Congress of men who sympathize with this policy and are prepared to vote for the abolition of those official agencies that use the taxpayers' money to compete with the taxpayer in business. While sympathizing with this organized effort to rescue business from officialdom, it must be admitted that business men as a class have done their full share toward putting the Government in business when it has suited their immediate purpose to do so. Forgetful of the devastating effect of bad precedents, many leaders of industry have, moreover, not hesitated to demand governmental aid, subsidies and special assistance for themselves, without stopping to reflect that in this way paternalism is fostered and governments are encouraged to assume increasingly intrusive forms of activity.

The public is at the present time, indeed, being given a most instructive lesson in the methods by which demands for public ownership can be strengthened, and business men are playing an important part in encouraging such demands by reason of their obstructionist attitude toward the efforts of the railroads to obtain rate relief. The opposition that the roads are encountering is coming, no doubt, from large numbers of business men who would be among the first to lament loudly if our transportation system were to be transferred to the Government. Yet they are unwilling to make the personal sacrifices that, under a system of private ownership, unhampered by public regulations, would be required of them whether they liked it or not.

Our trouble—and it seems to be universal—is that we want to combine the advantages of private ownership with the paternalistic benefits that we hope to obtain from governmental incursions into the field of industry. To a large extent such intrusion is unavoidable in so far as it is limited to regulation of public service industries that are "affected with a public interest." At any rate, the world has passed the stage of development which permits unfettered control of certain great capitalistic enterprises by private individuals.

We can, nevertheless, do a great deal to prevent the extension of public regulatory activities into fields that are adequately protected by the existence of competing, efficient producing and marketing units. We can also prevent public regulation from developing into outright Government ownership and management of our public utilities by assuming an attitude that permits existing privately owned and operated organizations to earn reasonable returns. We can not, however, have it both ways—demanding that the Government keep hands off while denying to private agencies the latitude in fixing charges and determining conditions of service that is essential to the profitable conduct of their business.

In organizing to keep the Government out of business, therefore, Chicago's industrial leaders would do well to ask themselves if they are prepared to resist those innumerable indirect assaults upon private enterprise that are so insidious and so effectual as an entering wedge to throw open the doors to socialistic experiments that they deplore.

BUT SHANGHAI BOOMS.

While all the rest of the world, including the greater part of China, according to the Detroit News, during the past year was suffering from depression, Shanghai staged a boom. During 1930, according to reports from the United States consuls, the city enjoyed the most prosperous era in its history in the form of new building construction. In an effort to describe the modernized appearance of this great Oriental trading center, writers have variously called it the New York, Paris and London of China. In fact, from the new character attained by its modernized structures, Shanghai resembles anything other than a Chinese city. It has been almost entirely rebuilt.

A Favor Done a Proper Man Is a Mortgage on His Pride.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN people are hard up, merchants learn a great deal about human nature.

They learn, for examle, that a man in debt will cross the street to avoid meeting a creditor; that a debtor who has a little money will spend it with a merchant to whom he owes no gratitude rather than face the merchant to whom he owes money.

It is difficult to love those who have us in their debt. Note how quickly Europe's love, inspired by gifts in time of need, turned to hate when she was made aware of her obligations.

Many an Armenian massacre had its beginning in the desire of young Turks to settle with money lenders in the cheapest way.

Always and everywhere the man who owes feels for his creditor the mingled envy and resentment of an inferior.

And the less inferior he is in fact, the more he resents the circumstance that places him in the role of inferior.

If this is true when the debt is one of money, how much more it is true when the obligation was established by a favor.

You hear it said that gratitude is the highest law and an ingrate the lowest of men, but that is not true.

Gratitude itself is degrading if it remains a passive emotion instead of an inspiration.

The man who has a proper measure of self-respect recognizes gratitude only as something of which he must rid himself quickly.

If you do him a favor he is grateful; but his feeling of gratitude is a feeling of indebtedness, and he cannot again feel respectable until he has squared the account.

Do him too many favors without giving him opportunity to make return and his wounded pride will make him your enemy.

On the contrary, you can make him your friend by asking a favor. When he has done you a favor he has an investment in you that makes you more valuable in his eyes. What is more, his vanity, seeking to justify what he has done, will magnify your worth to assure him the favor was deserved.

The manager of one American firm won a market in Central America by asking a buyer—a total stranger—to find him a certain kind of Panama hat. Having done him a favor, the buyer was his friend.

Pride can make or break friendship.

It makes you hate those who feel generous at your expense, but it makes you love those who enable you to feel generous.

Army and Navy Jobs.

New York Herald Tribune.

Thomas D. Campbell, known as the "wheat king" of Montana, advocates short-term enlistments in the Army and Navy as a means of taking off the labor market the young men who would make suitable material for soldiers and sailors.

Both the Army and Navy are today far below the strength authorized by law or any treaty limitation. Merely as a measure of economy, we believe the policy pursued of reducing their personnel has been a mistaken one. At a time like this the Government could much better afford to maintain its armed forces at full strength than to find civilian jobs for those men it has turned adrift or for the other thousands whom it might have recruited. As Mr. Campbell has pointed out, it has an ample surplus of cantonments, of uniforms, of equipment and plenty of work in sight to which it might devote large numbers of recruits under the supervision of the Army Engineer Corps. Without attempting to pass judgment on the details of his plan, we think it deserves serious attention in Washington.

The Congress Puzzle.

Atlanta Constitution.

Whether the Republicans or the Democrats will organize the House of the seventy-second Congress in December is still a question in the political clouds.

There are yet more than three months before the assembling of Congress, and in that time other members may die. The mortality tables argue that they will; hence the status of the parties on December 7 will remain doubtful until that day.

Meanwhile peculiar things are worrying the political leaders of both parties. It is conceded that should the Democrats organize the House Representative Garner, of Texas, will be chosen as its Speaker. In the Republican caucus there is a sharp fight between the partisans of Representatives Snell, of New York, and John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, with the present prospect that Snell will get the party nomination.

Use American Ships.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

The failure of the Federal Farm Board to secure an agreement from Brazil providing that the wheat and coffee to be exchanged by the United States and Brazil be shipped in American bottoms will cost the American ship owners approximately $1,000,000.

If it is at all possible, the board should induce China to agree to the shipment of the wheat that country contemplates buying in American ships. Such a request of China is not at all unreasonable. The wheat is to be sold at a ridiculously low price, and on long-term credits. China ought not to hesitate to approve a plan of transporting the wheat in American ships, and allowing the owners of those ships the benefit of the business.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Observer Sees Change Coming in Britain—Capitalism to Go, Peaceably or by Revolution.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial in the issue of August 29, entitled "British Socialism," raises, but leaves unanswered, a number of interesting questions.

It is stated that the British Labor party has attempted to give the world a demonstration of how a capitalistic nation under the parliamentary system of government could be turned to socialism without an unheaval, and has failed. Is it to be assumed that since the Conservatives have tried, through parliamentary methods, to stave off disaster, and failed, and the British Labor party, through similar methods, has tried and failed, the only way out for millions of people who are starving in the midst of plenty, both in England and in the United States for that matter, is an upheaval?

If it is not to be through an upheaval, but, as you suggest, through the return of Stanley Baldwin and the Conservatives, is it fair to expect that those who have tried and failed will now succeed?

And if, as you suggest again, the salvation is to give British industry the benefits of a protective tariff, is there any reason for assuming that the protective tariff will do for England what it has failed to do for the United States—keep the workers employed and industry functioning?

Would it not be nearer true to say that the British Labor party has tried to administer capitalism more efficiently than the capitalist parties there have done, but that the inherent defects of the system, which permits people to starve in the midst of the plenty their labor has created, can not be cured without a change in the system itself? Whether that change is to be brought about gradually, by peaceful parliamentary methods, or by violent upheaval, will in a large measure be determined by the capitalist groups and their parliamentary representatives. It is not likely that even people who have a traditional respect for parliamentary institutions will be willing to perish rather than change the system. The dole, which you condemn, has been the price the British people have been willing to pay to avoid a violent revolution.

Please let me most earnestly request that you as a patriotic duty send to every congressman a copy of The Post of August 26, containing the editorial, which is the greatest, most enlightening and truthful ever written on this subject.

After reading this editorial and seeing the truth, American citizens will become so inspired with their patriotic duty that they will compel these international crooks and traitors in this country to flee to foreign countries or be hanged to the highest tree in sight as a warning to all others who might likewise conspire with a foreign country to rob our Government and its people.

ON SHOPPING TOURS.

To stay in the car or to walk round the block,
I am lost if I ever step in just to see
The lovely new things which the store has in stock.
Once within where the bargains are spread out to show
She knows very well that I'll never say "No!"

I've heard that some husbands, with splendid success,
Insist that their wives within reason shall keep
And can really convince them the costlier dress
Is not nearly so nice as the one that is cheap.
Well, let that sort of husband go shopping! Not I.
The prettiest gown is the one that I buy.

This counting your pennies is all very well
For those who are careful and thoughtful and wise,
There are men who can stand when the clerks try to sell
And look on temptation with lusterless eyes,
But not I! For when ever I'm coaxed in to look
I am caught like a fish who has swallowed the hook.

So when Nellie goes shopping I sit in the car
Or stroll up and down till she comes from the store,
I don't dare to go where the pretty things are
For I've learned when I do that it always costs more.
Confronted by splendors she knows what I'll do,

FUNDS PLEA LET-UP URGED ON VETERANS

Kansas City, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Spokesmen of the Hoover administration urged a let-up by former service men in their demands for additional Federal appropriations in addresses today at the annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, but found the organization's commander in chief pressing for action by Congress on new legislation.

Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, and Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, presented pleas for a delay in committing the Government to further expenditures for war veterans and their dependents.

Paul Wolman, of Baltimore, V. F. W. commander in chief, told the delegates that existing legislation was not adequate and outlined what he said was the program the organization hoped to have enacted by Congress.

Hines urged that veterans' organizations ask for no more until they have determined by a careful study the ultimate cost of laws already on the books.

Spending $900,000,000.

The administration pointed out the Government in spending approximately $900,000,000 a year for veterans relief and he said the "inevitable trend" was toward higher expenditures than first calculated for all forms of aid to former service men.

He said the immediate need was to obtain jobs for able-bodied unemployed veterans, adding that the Veterans' Administration was working with the Labor Department to provide employment.

Jahncke appealed to former service men to wait until the economic depression has passed, saying: "The fundamental principles of veterans relief was not at issue. He asked that demands for additional Federal benefits be held in abeyance "until the time—not far off, we hope, when increased expenditures would not have a seriously injurious effect upon economic recovery."

Program Calls for Bill.

Commander in Chief Wolman told the delegates that the V. F. W. was committed to a program calling for:

Enactment by the next Congress of a bill to permit full payment of adjusted compensation certificates, on which many veterans already have borrowed 50 per cent.

"Adequate hospitalization and domiciliary care for those physically in need of proper care and treatment.

"Equal recognition for the widows and orphans of the World War veterans with those of previous wars."

"Some measure of assistance by our Government for the dependent fathers and mothers of those who died as a result of their service, although technical evidence may be lacking."

In regard to payment of the adjusted compensation certificates, Wolman said the veteran was not asking "charity or a dole, but merely the same recognition for his services that this Government accorded the claims of citizens in the settlement of its war-time obligations." Distribution of the money would put the unemployed veteran on his feet economically, Wolman argued.

Hospital Construction.

Administrator Hines disclosed that more than $10,300,000 in hospital construction is under way and new projects authorized call for the expenditure of $13,000,000 more. When the present program is completed, he said, 63,459 veterans could be cared for in Government hospitals and soldiers' homes.

The prohibition issue, perennial subject of discussion at V. F. W. conventions, bobbed up in the form of a resolution drafted by the Wisconsin delegation calling upon Congress to submit the liquor question to a referendum by next June.

Soviet-Lithuania Treaty Of Neutrality Renewed

Moscow, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Ratification at Kovuo, of a five-year renewal of the 1926 treaty of neutrality and nonaggression between Soviet Russia and Lithiania was reported in the press today.

The signing of a protocol creating diplomatic status for Soviet trade representatives in Lithuania also was announced. This pact puts Russia in the status of a favored nation in trade relations and provides that she will look sympathetically toward the development of trade transportation through Lithuania.

Labor Day Prayers Urged.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Bishop Francis J. McConnell, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, issued a call to the churches today urging that the Sunday preceding Labor Day be set aside as a day of special prayer "for guidance in finding the way out of the present economic depression."

Liner Passengers Protest U. S. Raid

Cabins Ransacked While They Were Ashore for Savannah Visit.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A protest against customs inspectors in Savannah, Ga., who searched the ship there, was signed today by all passengers on the Grace liner Santa Inez and forwarded to the Treasury Department. The liner docked this morning.

The raid, passengers said, occurred while all on board except the crew's watch had gone ashore and cabins, baggage and personal effects were ransacked by six inspectors and their contents found scattered in disorder when the passengers returned to the ship.

The protest set forth the view that the search was made before the end of the voyage from South American ports and before the passengers had an opportunity to make customs declarations.

The haul of the agents consisted of a small quantity of liquor and half a bottle of medicine found in the cabin of Ezequiel Romecin Calderon, a representative of the Bolivian Government traveling to France on a diplomatic passport.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

CARD VALUATION.

IN Contract Bridge there is no phase of the game as important as that of an exact method of valuing the hand for bidding purposes. There are two types of hands that must be considered:

(a) Notrump bidding.

(b) Suit bidding.

Valuing the hand for the purpose of bidding notrump will first be discussed, however, without regard to distribution, the number of suits that should be stopped, &c.

An average hand comprises one that holds:

An Ace	1
A King	1
A Queen	..
A Knave	Plus
Total honor-tricks	2 Plus

The honor-trick value of the above (average) hand is slightly in excess of 2, and as there are four players at the table, the total honor-tricks that will average to be held in any one deal will average to be 8 plus. Therefore, the ratio of tricks won in any one deal (by Declarer and opponents) will be as follows:

Honor-tricks	8
Low-card tricks	5
Total playing-tricks	13

This ratio of 8 to 5 should be used as a "yardstick" in measuring the trick-taking ability of a hand, and can be accurately determined as the bidding progresses. To illustrate:

	Honor-tricks.
North makes a Forcing bid, which indicates the holding of	3
Total honor-tricks held by the partnership	5½

If the holding of 8 honor-tricks will average to win a total of 13 tricks, it is a comparatively simple matter to calculate the trick-taking ability of 5½ honor-tricks, using the ratio of 8 (honor-tricks) to 5 (low-card tricks).

If there are any Bridge players who remember enough arithmetic to use "ratio and proportion," the following will be illuminating:

8 : 13 :: 5½ : ?

(or 8 ÷ 5 :: ? : 5½ = 9)

"multiply the means and divide by the extremes:" 13 + 5½ = 72 ÷ 8 = 9. Therefore 5½ honor-tricks will average to take 9 tricks at a notrump declaration. The same method of calculations will give the number of tricks that will average to be won at a notrump declaration, when the partnership holds any specific number of honor-tricks. However, the combinations that are more vital are given below:

Partnership holds 4 + honor-tricks; the hand will average to win 7 total playing-tricks.

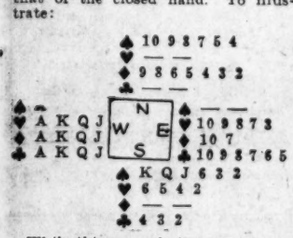
Partnership holds 5 honor-tricks; the hand will average to win 8 total playing-tricks.

Partnership holds 5½ honor-tricks; the hand will average to win 9 total playing-tricks.

Partnership holds 7½ honor-tricks; the hand will average to win 12 total playing-tricks.

When playing a safe declaration, while honor-tricks are important, they are not vitally so, as compared to the playing of a notrump declaration, due to the fact that at a suit declaration the run of an adverse suit can be prevented (as soon as Declarer or his partner are exhausted of the suit) by ruffing the same.

Distribution is also a tremendous factor, due to the ruffing ability of the Dummy hand, and at times to that of the closed hand. To illustrate:



While this example is very extreme, it illustrates the tremendous strength of a suit declaration in conjunction with very favorable distribution. West-East can make a Grand Slam at notrump, and a Grand Slam at either hearts or clubs unless diamonds are opened, whereas North-South can make a Small Slam against any defense at a spade contract, and the only honor-tricks held are the K Q J (1½) in the spade suit. This illustrates the fact that honor-tricks are not nearly as valuable at a suit contract as at notrump.

However, when an Opening or defensive suit bid is made, there is no assurance that this suit will become the final declaration and it is very necessary that all Opening or defnsive bids indicate a specific minimum honor-trick holding, thus enabling partner to be positive that he will be able to enter the hand should he "take-out" by bidding another suit or notrump. In case his bid is a notrump, he must know how many honor-tricks are to be expected.

In calculating the number of playing tricks (probable tricks) that can be won by the partnership at a suit declaration, the player has only two sets of values:

(a) Honor (high-card) tricks.

(b) Low (long-card) tricks, whereas the bidder's partner, in valuing his hand in support of the suit bid, has four sets of values:

(a) High and low cards of the suit bid.

(b) Honor cards in side suits.

(c) Low-card tricks in side suits.

(d) Short suit values (ability to ruff).

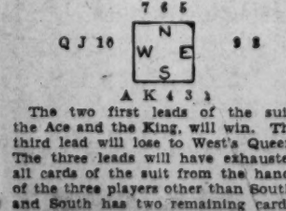
A K Q J 10

of the suit, it is apparent that 5 tricks can be won in the suit, should this suit be the trump suit. Holding:

A K 4 3 2

and partner ultimately supporting the bid, partner's holding in the suit should be a minimum of three small (x x x) cards. This would leave five cards of the suit to be divided between the two adversaries, and 75 per cent of the time this distribution would be three-two (3-2) as given below:



The two first leads of the suit, the Ace and the King, will win. The third lead will lose to West's Queen. The three leads will have exhausted all cards of the suit from the hands of the three players other than South, and South has two remaining cards, the trey and the deuce, which are now as good as though they were the Ace and the King. Thus it will be seen that honor cards have a promotional value, especially in the trump suit.

In calculating the trick-taking ability of a hand, the average trick-taking ability of the honor-tricks plus the long-card tricks, equal the total playing-tricks in the hand.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Summary of Responses to Opening One-Bids.

More than 90 per cent of Opening bids are one-bids and they include the range of hands varying from 2½ up to 4½ honor-tricks. An Opening One-bid is a leap in the dark and the selection of any final bid will largely depend upon the distribution and balance of honor strength in the Responding Hand. Raises show a distribution favorable to partner's suit bids; responses with new suits generally deny it; finally, no-trump Takeouts deny both the support in partner's bid suit and a biddable suit in own hand.

Good and Bad Card Holders.

I have often been asked, "Don't you believe some people are lucky in life?" Undoubtedly I do, although what is called luck is often ability. Still, one or two pieces of good or bad luck may change a man's whole life to his immense advantage. If a few good or bad hands could do the some at Contract, there would be some truth in the notion. But at cards the law of average comes in. Some people contend that this is not a law but a probability. They are wrong. For practical purposes it is a law. Our daily life, all commercial enterprises, and particularly insurance are based upon it. It works with absolute certainty and therefore is a law. If you take a level chance and say, toss a penny, the head may turn up twenty times in succession, but not forty. It may come up 70 times in 100, but not 700 times in 1,000. If I am asked, "Why not?" I reply, "Because the universal experience of mankind over an immense period proves that this never occurs." The percentage of difference in 10,000 throws would be trifling. There is no probability about this. It is certainty.

A man who plays cards occasionally may never average. A man who plays continually may and will have some months of very bad luck, and perhaps some years of rather bad luck. Suppose he plays 100 hands a week, 5,000 hands a year. In ten years he would have played 50,000 hands, a sufficient number for the law of average to work.

I have heard the objection made that one must not regard the matter as a simple level chance, because so many factors enter into it. You may have had bad cards, or, with good cards find the hands do not fit; you may cut the worst player at the table; the cards may be placed unfortunately; your mistakes may be expensive and those of your opponents may cost them very little and so on. Now, all this is true, but it doesn't upset your certainty of averaging. On the contrary, it makes it come quicker. A penny may easily turn up heads six consecutive times; the red at roulette may win six times; you may cut a black card out of a pack six times; you may guess wrongly six times which hand holds a certain play. There would be nothing extraordinary in any of these series of chance; it might take many thousands for the law of average to work. But the probabilities would be enormous that they would not all run against you. Winnings on some would balance losing on others.

The more you multiply your chances the fewer the number of each necessary to allow the law of average to work.

How is it, then, that some men contend that they are bad card holders? The answer is simple. There is a weak spot in their game. They may not know it, but there is. It is a certainty. I have known men who regularly lost on the year, when playing at certain tables, but who, when they changed to the tables where smaller stakes were played, steadily won. Did their cards then suddenly improve? Of course not. The standard of play was lower, that was all.

There are men who are bad losers and habitually grumble at their luck, in spite of the fact that they win on the average; but as a rule the man who complains of his bad luck simply advertises the fact that he is a bad player.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, August 31.

WEAR your flaring, in-at-the-waist summer coats for the last time this season when you're on your Labor Day holiday, my dahr-lings! For when you return to town, if you would follow the example of Mesdames Elegantes, you'll go straight!

Straight and angular! O-o-o-h, you don't have to turn your body into knobs and angles—merely your body's outer covering. Your silhouette must be straight, and the detail of your frocks, suits or coats, angular. And the combination of these two ideas makes out autumn things so stunningly different and smart!

The angularity of detail is a continuation of the earlier diagonal idea. Instead of having a diagonal line go straight across your frock, for instance, this diagonal line runs downhill, for, say, half or two-thirds of the way, and then turns sharply, and at an angle of just about any degree you please, runs uphill for the rest of the distance!

And what a joy to women whose proportions were Venuslike, possibly, but certainly not modern! The knowing use of angles, gentle or sharp, will add inches of length and deduct inches of width!

* * * *

The Beauty Sorceress.

"And did ice have anything to do with the rapid disappearance of your double chin, grandmother?"

"Et comment, my dear! First I applied a face cloth wrung out of hot, hot water, and then rubbed hard with a piece of ice! A persistent few days of this and voila — no more extra chin."

Black satin, my deahs, for just about every phase of autumn wear, and never more lovely does it appear than in the evening mode. And when it is handled with statelliness and restraint, as Bernard et Cie, handled it in the evening gown sketched for you today, it is most effective. The gown has a deep V decolletage, a draped bodice shirred at the center of the waistline, and a skirt whose front draping falls from an interestingly shirred section. And for adornment the brilliant strass ornament at the waist lent a charmingly sophisticated note.

Yes, it's a lucky season for us—in black satin we can combine in one fell swoop our feminine wish to be smart and our diabolical wish to be sophisticated!

* * * *

And for those who have not struggled in vain—reward! Reward in the shape of little combs like the ones sketched today, for the tresses that struggled manfully through the ugly stage to chic length. The comb at the top has etched crystal leaves; the center one is a modernistic affair of ivory and onyx, and the last wee one is transparent and opaque crystal and carnelian!

* * * *

Could you use a camipettti-slip? And how, sez La Chic Secretaire swatto voice, if you only knew what it's all about! Well, it's just what it says, a booful camisole and petticoat that hitch together to make a perfect slip! And the clever method by which all this changeableness is accomplished is described in detail in this week's illustrated leaflet, which awaits with bated breath and eager eyes your stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare Department of The Post.

Dare's weekly letter in The Sunday Post is of interest to every woman.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

IF September 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 p. m. to 3:40 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight.

Those who make use of the creative faculty in music, art or literature will find September 1 a fruitful date. It will be a dull, depressing time for those who follow an active business or profession, although there is a rainbow around the corner for them.

The child born on this September 1 will have an emotional and a sensitive nature, a strong love of home and tenacious desires. It will have an inclination to science and should specialize in this field of endeavor. It will develop into a broad-minded, highly intelligent individual.

Born on September 1, you are an active, busy person, and you never allow your brain to go to rust. Many of your hours of leisure are made pleasurable by the mental relaxation which good books afford. You preserve, through life, an abiding interest in everything, and this is the secret of your never growing old. You are a hard-worked individual—from choice—but not a hard-worried one. You have very deep feelings, but your emotions are rather suppressed. You are willing to share the troubles of others, but you suffer your own alone. Because of your extreme independence of spirit, you are left alone when sympathy and companionship would do you good. You are happy with people, and you are happy without them—you know how not to be bored, at all times, and in all places.

You are keen, whether at work or at play. You do not do anything by half-measures. In business you are hard-headed, shrewd and alert. It is seldom that you are caught napping in a deal of importance. You expect to pay full prices for your goods, and you are not amiable when cheated. You give a fair deal and you expect the same in return. As a rule you are even-tempered, but there are times when you are in a raging fury, and show it. You seek peace, contentment and comfort more than anything else in the world.

3—Richard Arlen—Movie artist.
4—Marilyn Miller—Movie artist.
5—Rex Beach—Author.
6—C. Campanini—Musical director.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

PLEASE tell me the names of two plants that are low-growing and therefore suitable for planting on graves. MRS. H. M.

English ivy and myrtle are about the best varieties for grave use.

You can plant the ivy at any time, but the myrtle had better be planted in the spring.

Please tell me if I can successfully start a clombing rose from a shoot, or must the shoot have buds on it? MS. F. A. S.

You can start any rose from a cutting or slip. Make the cutting 8 inches long. During the early fall bury it in moist sand either in a cool cellar, a coldframe or a well-drained spot out of doors. In the spring it should be rooted when you can plant it in some permanent place in your garden.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed specimen. FREDERICK D. V.

I have a small back yard in the heart of the city, but with a southern exposure. My lilacs are worm-eaten. These bushes are very old and alive with worms. My chrysanthemums, three roses and some of my phlox have a root disease. My sweet peas, which have been fed bonemeal and humus and have been watered daily, also sprayed twice with nicotine, are only eighteen inches above the ground. How can I improve conditions? J. N. T.

Your lilacs have no doubt been attacked by borers. The borers enter the wood and there spend the winter. In the spring they become pupae and in the early summer adults. Infested portions of the bush should be removed and burned during the late summer, fall, winter and early spring. The individual caterpillars can be cut out individually or they may be killed by running a flexible wire into their burrows. After removing the crawlers, spray the entire bush with arsenate of lead. Your roses, chrysanthemums and phlox have, no doubt, been attacked by root aphides. Root aphides are fostered by ants, which place the plant lice upon the stems of desirable plants and care for the eggs during the winter, later transfering the young lice to the roots along which they have made burrows. Fresh tobacco dust mixed with equal parts of air-slacked lime should be thoroughly worked in around the roots of infested plants. Be sure to water the ground after applying this preparation. You have given your sweet peas the proper treatment, but you have planted them too late. They must be planted in the fall or in late March.

WEIGH your telephone! Put on one side the calls you make to your out-of-town customers, or to old friends who have moved away from town, lost to sight but not to mind.

Add in the calls that save your wife countless steps each day, the calls that bring pleasant chats with friends, the calls that mean happy times for you both. Add also the emergency calls you may sometimes have to make to the fire department, the police, the doctor.

Then, on the other side of the scales, put the few dollars a month you pay for the service. There is no question which way the scales will swing. Nothing you can buy gives you so much for so little as your telephone.

NEGROES PLANNING REVIVAL OF PARTY

Perry W. Howard Is Favored by Robert R. Church to Direct Movement.

The first cocrete evidence of strong partisan organization of Negro voters on a Nation-wide basis, since the incoming of the Hoover administration, appeared here yesterday in the wake of the grand lodge convention of colored Elks in Philadelphia last week when it appeared that Robert R. Church, colored politician of Memphis, had given his tentative consent to revive his Republican league which was nationally supreme during the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

Church, a brother-in-law of the late Judge Robert Heberton Terrell, of the municipal court, and brother to Mrs. Mary Church Terrell, former member of the Board of Education, has developed and voted for the past several years in Tennessee, an organization 25,000 strong. He and Perry W. Howard, of Mississippi, are said to have all that is left of formerly important Negro political organizations in the South.

Howard has been favored by Church as strategist and director of the new political movement because of his effective handling of the partisan political situation which grew tense in the final days of the fraternal convention last week. It was learned yesterday that he had called in Perry B. Jackson, member of the Ohio Legislature; Monroe Mason, of Boston; John T. Risher, head of the National Benefit Insurance Co.; J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of colored Elks; Louis B. Anderson, Chicago alderman, now opposing Oscar De Priest for reelection; and Henry Lincoln Johnson, jr., for a conference concerning the new organization.

Others expected to attend include Judge E. W. Henry, of Philadelphia; Isaac H. Nutter, of Atlantic City, N. J.; Harrison Gaines, member of the Illinois Legislature; Dr. Joseph H. B. Westbrook, of Denver; Hugh Macbeth, of Los Angeles; Robert L. Vann, of Pittsburgh; Truly Hatchett and William T. Andrews, of Baltimore.

The organization is expected to differ sharply with an organization now being promoted by Representative Oscar De Priest, which has not as yet declared its partisan character.

It has been reported, from various places where Representative De Priest has spoken, that he was prepared to vote for himself as Speaker of the House of Representatives in case of a deadlock.

On the theory that such grievances as the Negro may have politically can be fought out better within rather than outside the Republican party, it was well understood among colored politicians yesterday that the movement to be headed by Church, with Howard as strategist, would align with it the organization of Louis B. Anderson, colored alderman, of Chicago, who is definitely out to defeat Representative De Priest for a third term in Congress.

Cinnabar Announced Discovered in Arkansas

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Dr. George C. Branner, State geologist, disclosed today that cinnabar, described as the most important ore of mercury, has been discovered in two separate localities of Pike County, Ark., about 100 miles southwest of Little Rock.

He said no determination of the commercial possibilities of the discovery could be made at this time, "but the whole thing is in prospecting stage and we won't know anything about the commercial end of it until the deposits have been opened up."

EASY ACCESS MARKS WOODLAND AS HAVEN

Beach Close to Capital for Use as Refuge at Any Time of Year.

Among many features which make Woodland Beach attractive to Capital residents is the fact that it is easy to reach. Many summer resorts are fine enough after you reach them, but it requires time and difficulty to get to them.

With Woodland Beach the situation is different. It has everything desirable in a summer resort and is still accessible. In addition to being only a little more than an hour's drive over good roads it is served by the W., B. & A. traction line and by the Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis bus line.

Three methods of transportation offer the purchaser of a summer cottage site there the opportunity to spend nights and week-edns at his or her lodge without a great deal of inconveninece. Just 32 miles away, the Beach is close enough to offer relaxation after a hard day at the office; a good night's sleep and there is still time to get back on the job the next morning.

You, too, may enjoy the advantages of Woodland Beach very cheaply. Lots at this delightful spot on the South River in Maryland cost only $93 and of this amount only $9 in cash, plus the price of a subscription to The Washington Post, is necessary before making a selection. The remainder may be paid at the rate of $3.50 per month.

Go down and look the Beach over. Search its 4½ miles of waterfront for a choice location for your cottage. See the summer homes which others have built; then get busy toward a place of your own where you may spend many happy summer seasons.

Aid Idea Borrowed, Declares Murray

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Gov. W. H. Murray, boomed in his home section as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, today charged Gov. Franklin Roosevelt, of New York, had "borrowed" his unemployment relief plan.

The Oklahoman laughed when shown a newspaper story recounting a proposal by Gov. Roosevelt that the New York Legislature increase income taxes to raise $20,000,000 for the jobless. Producing a resolution passed last week at Memphis at a Mississippi Valley relief conference, he explained the Roosevelt plan was the same as that embodied in the resolution.

Gov. Murray also announced today that another Mississippi Valley conference would be held in St. Louis between September 20 and 30. He criticized Secretary Mellon today for a projected $1,000,000,000 bonding project and said, "What they ought to do is raise the income tax."

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 31 (A.P.).—News of Gov. W. H. Murray's statement that Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York had used the Oklahoma executive's plans for unemployment relief and announced them as his own, was received with astonishment at the capitol.

Real estate valued at $100,000 and personal property valued at over $35,000 is located here, the court was told. A great portion of the personal property is a drug store at 475 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, which is valued at $25,000.

Suit Seeks Order To Move Garage

District Alleges Building Projects Four Feet Into Street.

District Commissioners yesterday began court action which they hope will result in moving of a metal garage on premises at 1701 Monroe street northeast, where it is said to protrude by slightly more than 4 feet upon public land.

A suit was instituted in the District Supreme Court asking a mandatory injunction against Jacob Siegel, 300 Maryland avenue northeast, owner of the Monroe street property, to stop him from using the garage until it is moved back from the parking, and also directing that he either dismantle it or cause it to be placed wholly within his own property.

The garage was constructed several years ago, before Mr. Siegel purchased the property, the Commissioners say. They tell the court they have served written notice upon him that he should move his garage within the confines of his property, but, they add, he has refused.

BEAN HELD IN $1,000 IN MAROSY DEATH

Ewell Bean, 26, of Rockville, Md., was held for the action of the November term of the Montgomery County grand jury after a hearing in the Rockville police court yesterday in connection with the death of Corpl. Mack Marosy, 1314 Eleventh street northwest, after an automobile accident August 23, on the Rockville pike, near Bethesda. A charge of manslaughter was placed against Bean and bond was fixed at $1,000 by Judge Charles W. Woodward, before whom the hearing was held.

Bean, who was proceeding north on the Rockville Pike near the Woodmont Country Club, testified that his car got out of control when the seat slipped out of its fastenings, striking the back of his knees. He said that despite his efforts to maintain control it veered across the road and crashed into Marosy's car which was coming from the opposite direction. Marosy, who was returning from the annual encampment of the Twenty-ninth Division of the National Guard at Camp Albert Ritchie, Md., died at Georgetown Hospital in Washington, shortly after being taken there.

Among those who testified was Walter Johnson, jr., son of the manager of the Washington Baseball Club. Young Johnson was driving behind Marosy when the accident happened and said that he saw Bean's machine swerve across to the wrong side of the road, colliding with that of Marosy.

Bean appeared in court still wearing bandages for injuries which he suffered in the crash.

Wallace Redwine, arrested a week ago by Montgomery County police in one of a series of raids on alleged speakeasies in the Conduit road section near Glen Echo, Md., was fined $200 yesterday by Judge Charles W. Woodward, of Montgomery County Police Court at Rockville. Judge Woodward also imposed a sentence of nine months in the House of Correction, which he suspended.

The judge told Redwine, who pleaded guilty to charges of possession with intent to sell of intoxicating liquor, that he would make him serve the nine months if he was arrested for anything in the county, even speeding.

Dance With Girl Leads to Suicide

Edgar Pyles Found Fatally Shot After Reproof by Landlady.

Reproof for his attentions to another girl at a church picnic caused Edgar Pyles, of Bowie, Md., to shoot himself after a quarrel with his landlady, Prince Georges County police said yesterday.

According to Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, who investigated the case, Pyles, who was 27, was upbraided by Mrs. Gertrude Kisser, at whose home he lived, near Bowie. Several hours later he was found near her home in a clump of weeds, shot near the heart by a .22 rifle. He died shortly afterward in Casualty Hospital. The man was found by two other men, who heard his groans while they were visiting Mrs. Kisser. Powder marks were reported on his body.

Police said that Pyles and Mrs. Kisser went together to a church picnic near Bowie on Saturday. While there, it is said, Pyles danced with a girl, incurring his landlady's ire. Mrs. Kisser's husband died in Anne Arundel County several months ago.

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL DISAGREES ON CHIEF

Selection From More Than Score of Applicants to Be Made Thursday.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Alexandria City Council, at a special meeting yesterday for the purpose of selecting a police captain, failed to reach an agreement. The matter will, it is understood, be taken up again at the regular meeting Thursday. The council will make a recommendation to City Manager Wallace Lawrence, who will make the formal appointment.

The council yesterday was said to have had before it 21 written applications as well as several made verbally, although the city manager announced some time ago that only written applications would be considered. Among applicants are understood to be Sergt. Heber Thompson, who, since removal of W. W. Campbell, has been acting captain; Sergt. George Everly and Sergt. Edgar Sims, latter being Alexandria's only detective sergeant.

Among other applicants not connected with the police force are understood to be John S. Arnold, commander of Alexandria Post of the American Legion; Capt. T. M. Hamilton, retired Army emergency officer; A. Harmon Roberts, former emergency officer; Everett Hellmuth and a number of others. No list of the applicants has been made public.

The police captain, who is head of the police department, reporting directly to the city manager, draws a salary of $2,700 a year. At one time Alexandria had a director of public safety in charge, under the city manager, of police and fire departments, but that position was abolished several years ago.

It is understood several of the applicants now being considered sought the position of director of public safety. It is not known whether or not this will bar them from consideration for the post.

ALLEGED VAGRANT STILL UNIDENTIFIED

Montgomery County Police Trying to Get in Touch With Prisoner's Kin.

The identification bureau of the Montgomery County Police is endeavoring to establish the identity of a man who gave the name of La Verne Francis Wheeler, 26 years old, of San Antonio, Tex., when arrested by Silver Spring substation police August 23. Fingerprints and description of the youth have been sent to police departments in that section and letters have been sent to his father by police.

Wheeler was arrested when a resident of North Chevy Chase drove into his yard and found him with another man in the yard. The companion escaped.

He was taken to Rockville and charged with vagrancy. Presented in county police court, Judge Charles W. Woodward attempted to question him, but obtained no better results than the police. Detective Theodore Volten, in charge of the identification bureau, became interested in the man and asked the judge to refrain from sentencing him until he could make some inquiries.

He took the boy to the headquarters room in the Rockville courthouse.

Later, when Volten started to fingerprint him, the youth appeared much interested in the process. In the course of patient questioning, he told the detective that he had worked at San Antonio, Texas, at an aviation field and that he had graduated from high school as a welder. He said his father was a garage proprietor at Phoenix, Ariz., and that his grandfather was the late Governor Sweet, of Michigan. He said that his uncle was sheriff of Los Angeles County, Calif.

Second-Hand Lumber Not Under County Ban

In an effort to correct an impression current in Arlington County that the ordinance adopted by the county board of supervisors at its meeting last Saturday prevents the use of second-hand lumber, Robert H. Forman, chairman of the Arlington County building code commission, last night said:

"The ordinance, as drafted by Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth, and adopted by the board of supervisors does in no way provide for the prevention of the use of second-hand lumber by any contractor, providing that such lumber is in the opinion of the inspector and engineer, safe and will not endanger lives of persons who may use the building which may be in course of construction."

Plans for an international celebration at Augusta, Ga., on November 14, of the hundredth anniversary of the Polish revolution of 1831, will be discussed at noon today with President Hoover by a group of Augustans, who are sponsoring erection there of a memorial to Dr. Paul Fitzsimmons Eve, famous surgeon hero of the revolution.

Poland recently erected a memorial to the noted Georgia physician, and the new Hall of Medicine in Warsaw is named in his honor. Dr. Eve is regarded in Poland with the same esteem with which America reveres the memory of Gen. Pulaski, who gave his life for the United States at the siege of Savannah in the American Revolution.

Tytus Filipowicz, Polish Ambassador, will unveil the memorial in Augusta, before the house in which Dr. Eve was born. President Hoover will be invited to head the assemblage attending the event.

Drivers Are Freed In 2 Auto Deaths

Prince Georges Inquests Result in Verdicts of 'Accident.'

Inquests held in Prince Georges County last night into two recent traffic fatalities resulted in verdicts of accidental death.

In Mount Rainier, a coroner's jury held William B. Bowser guiltless in the death of Stanley Scheerer, 2 years old, of Brentwood, killed by Mr. Bowser's car Friday. The other inquest, held in Hyattsville, resulted in freeing William James Hellar of responsibility for the death of Mrs. Suzette Carroll, of 43 V street northwest. Hellar, who lives at 1811 Wyoming avenue northwest, was the driver of an auto which was in collision August 23 on the Defense Highway near Ardmore road with another car driven by Mrs. Carroll's husband, Frank S. Carroll. Five other persons were hurt.

Meeting to Decide County Fair's Fate

Financial Failure May End Fixture of Rockville for 78 Years.

Directors of the Rockville Fair Association will meet tonight in the Farm Bureau office at Rockville to decide on the future of the Rockville fair, which has been a feature of county life for 78 years.

With a total of more than $20,000 showing in the "red" and a deficit of approximately $2,000 for the fair which closed recently, the officials are considering liquidating the $50,000 fair grounds and closing the fair for good.

As a probable last resort, it is expected, the directors will ask the Maryland State Racing Commission for permission to operate pari-mutuel betting at the fair. Should this be granted, the fair officials feel that they can save the exposition. The directors will discuss the possibilities of obtaining permission for betting at the meeting tonight.

Three Women Announce as Candidates for Board of Supervisors, a Body Disbanded Under Questioned Law; Mackey Leads Fight Against Provision.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The basis for a test case on the constitutionality of the act providing for the new form of government for Arlington County and which carries with it the abolition of the three magisterial districts, was laid yesterday when three women announced their candidacies for the county board of supervisors.

Accompanied by Capt. Crandal Mackey, who is leading the fight to retain the present form of government, Mrs. Catherine M. Rogers, of Arlington District; Mrs. Mary Mackey, of Washington District, and Mrs. Anna L. Allwine, of Jefferson District, filed with County Clerk William H. Duncan.

Declaring that the act is unconstitutional in that the State constitution provides for magisterial districts, Capt. Mackey says he will go before Judge Walter T. McCarthy and ask that the plan be set aside. Should the court rule the act constitutional the next object will be the Virginia Court of Appeals.

Capt. Mackey said he would, if necessary, take court procedure to require the county electoral board to include names of the three candidates.

Capt. Mackey in July appeared before the county board of supervisors and asked that they enter suit to test the law in order to save the expense of another election should the law be declared invalid by the courts. The board refused to take any action.

With already 47 persons filed for membership on the county board of five, in accordance with the new form of government, the political situation in the county is becoming more acute each day, in the view of old-line political leaders.

Thursday is the last day in which persons will have an opportunity to file as candidates for any county office.

WOODCOCK OPPOSES PROFESSIONAL SPIES

Will Not Prohibit Their Use, However, He Indicates; 'Air Corps' Burns.

(Associated Press.)

The use of paid informers or spies as aids to Federal dry agents was disapproved yesterday by Prohibition Director Woodcock.

Although indicating no general order would be issued, as was done last week prohibiting the employment of women as "blinos" or "decoys," Woodcock said he personally held the practice undesirable and thought it was on the decline.

"In some sections," Col. Woodcock said, "officials seemed to think it necessary to employ informers. Here in Washington, for instance, the police believe they can operate more successfully if informers are used, and the Prohibition Bureau pays the bill. Generally however, their use seems to decline as our agents become more efficient."

At the same time the Federal dry chief said his drive for economy in prohibition enforcement had resulted in a saving of $150,000 out of the bureau's $11,230,000 appropriation, which allowed for the employment of 500 new agents.

He said it was too early to determine whether the increase, which enlarged the prohibition force by about one-third, had brought a proportionate increase in enforcement.

The director revealed that a new avenue of enforcement had been closed temporarily with the disabling of the bureau's one-plane "air corps." It was seized in Texas, fitted with a dry agent pilot and located one atill from the air. The plane subsequently caught fire on a flight along the lower Mississippi River.

The prohibition director opposed the use of paid informers during a discussion of economy measures. He exhibited a resolution adopted by a recent meeting of deputy prohibition administrators gathered in New Orleans from Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida.

The deputies pledged "relief in and support of the provisions of the eighteenth amendment," and favored "limitation of the use of paid informers, except in rare cases where regular agents can not make the desired contacts."

The resolution named other avenues of economy such as limitation of the shifting about of agents so as to reduce traveling expenses, and the grouping of prohibition cases on court dockets so that agents may spend less of their time in the courtroom.

Woodcock said he intended to leave September 9 to continue his tour of inspection in the South, visiting Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida. He will then have visited every State of the Union since taking office a little more than a year ago.

Foul Play Hinted In Trolley Death

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 31.—Foul play was hinted today in the death of Arthur Cranford, 22, sign painter, of Annapolis, who was killed by a car of the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis Electric Railroad, one mile from West Street Station, shortly after 5 o'clock Sunday morning, and a jury of inquest, of which Police Justice Louis M. Hopkins acted as coroner, tonight was unable to fix responsibility and gave an open verdict.

Belief that Cranford was "bumped off," was expressed by members of his family, in view of the fact that his weekly pay envelope, auto driver's license and other personal effects were missing when his body was picked up by the train crew. Added to this, testimony was given at the inquest by A. N. Miller, motorman of the trolley car, that when he observed the object that proved to be a man, the body was lying directly across the tracks. Miller said the car was about 150 feet away and he was unable to stop in time, despite every emergency measure.

Young Cranford was seen by several persons late Saturday night, and after midnight and for two hours thereafter he was on an automobile ride with Emerson Johnson and another companion, both of whom he knew.

Death Ends Service of 49 Years in Division of Army Engineers.

Crisfield, Md., Aug. 31 (A.P.). Charles Hardenberg, known as the hermit of Watts Island, took his bride, the former Miss Katherine Seipel, of Jersey City, N. J., back to his lonely island today.

In 1908, Hardenberg left his law practice in Jersey City and made his home in an old Government lighthouse built in 1874. He says he used 500 decks of cards playing solitaire in his 23 years on the island. He went to New York City once to attend the funeral of a relative.

Although he was said to have one of the largest libraries in Jersey City, Hardenberg has few books on Watts Island. He has no radio, keeps no dogs, and three chickens are the only living creatures there besides himself and his bride.

JURY MAY PASS ON CANNON CASE DATA

Rover Calls for Records in Inquiry to Study Possible Legal Procedure.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover made the initial move yesterday in a possible presentation before a District grand jury of facts relating to Bishop James Cannon's anti-Smith campaign preceding the 1928 elections. Records of testimony before the Senate campaign funds committee regarding Bishop Cannon's administration of the campaign funds were turned over to Mr. Rover yesterday and he plans to study the date with a view to possible procedure against the bishop under the Federal corrupt practices act.

"As to the alleged violations by Bishop Cannon of the Federal corrupt practices act," Rover said, "I would not have to wait for any one to call my attention to them, as they have been stated in the press for several months."

Rover would not definitely say whether he would take the matter before the grand jury, pending his study of the data.

Mr. Rover also plans to consider the possibility of bringing charges of contempt against Mrs. Ada L. Burroughs and Dr. J. Sidney Peters, both of Virginia, coworkers of Bishop Cannon in the anti-Smith fight, for their refusal to testify before the Senate campaign funds body in regard to campaign expenditures.

2 Backwoodsmen To War on Gunmen

Oakland, Me., Aug. 31 (U.P.).—The age of chivalry is not yet past. Two knights of the backwoods, veteran guides and sharpshooters, boarded the Bar Harbor express for New York here tonight determined to end the killing of innocents by Manhattan gangsters.

They were Allie Whitenew Deming, 43, father of five children, and Fred Belmore York, 50, father of two. In rough Maine woods' garb and carrying rifles, the lean, bronzed hunters were naively confident that their chivalrous mission would be successful.

Allie estimated "two or three weeks" would be enough to rid New York of its gangsters.

Lady Astor Faced By Election Fight

Advertisement Seeks Man to Run in Opposition for Parliament.

London, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Nancy Lady Astor, the first woman to take a seat in the British Parliament, may be threatened with a Conservative challenge from her constituency at the next general election.

An advertisement in the personal column of a London newspaper today announces a "gentleman of Plymouth conscientiously believing that the present parliamentary representative from the Sutton division, should be opposed at the next election," would like to communicate "with a gentleman who would be willing to oppose the present member as an independent Conservative candidate."

Lady Astor was elected in 1919 and has run away with the race at each subsequent election except in 1929, when she had a plurality of only 211 votes over the Labor candidate.

RAILROADS OPPOSE POOL OF RATE GAINS

Both Western and Eastern Representatives Claim Plan Is Impossible.

Chicago, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Pooling of any increased revenue to be derived from higher freight rates was suggested at an Interstate Commerce rate hearing today and was answered with an emphatic no on the part of the railroads.

Two sections of the commission started today the hearings which are to conclude evidence on the railroads' petition for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates. At one, the entire day was devoted to the cross-examination of witnesses who first presented the railroads' case in Washington last month.

Luther M. Walter, counsel for the National Industrial Traffic League, conducted most of the cross-examination. He proposed the pool whereby the benefits of a rate increase would be diverted mainly to the railroads most in need. If the benefits could thus be limited, he said, the increase could be cut to 8½ or 9 per cent and the shippers thereby benefited.

To this proposal John J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and representative of the Eastern lines, answered: "To all practical purposes it is impossible."

H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul & Pacific Railroad and representative of the Western lines, said the Western carriers are unanimous in opposition.

The other hearing was devoted to the protests of Midwestern shippers to the proposed increase. Grain exchanges, cereal manufacturers, iron ore associations, tile, brick, lime and stone organizations, and makers of malt syrup all presented figures and arguments attempting to show that an increase in freight rates would be an added burden which they should not be called upon to bear, particularly at this time.

Second Rum Raider Finds Brentwood Police on Job

Scene: A house in Brentwood, Md.

Two town policemen are breaking up a 100-gallon still and destroying some mash.

Enter a county policeman.

It appeared that neighbors had heard the noise of destruction and called county police, saying a drunken man was breaking up furniture. Clifton responded to the call to find the "breaking-up" entirely legal and proper. The town officers arrested William A. Kelly, said to be a former Washington policeman, in the raid.

They also visited a house less than a block away and arrested Marion Milino, who was also charged with possession and manufacturing of liquor. In Milino's house, policemen said, they found a 20-gallon still, two barrels of mash and one barrel of alleged peach brandy.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

AFTER the boys permit a more or less comprehensive preview of the cream of their new season's product, they don't let a whole lot of grass grow under their feet getting it onto the open market. It doesn't seem longer ago than 1872, or thereabouts, that Paramount did considerable tearing of its figurative hair—or maybe I mean figurative tearing of its considerable hair, or something—in an effort to corral the ladies and gentlemen of the Fourth Estate in the quiet and unostentatious elegance of the Ambassador Theater to bend an eye on two days of screening of "An American Tragedy," "Huckleberry Finn," "The Smiling Lieutenant" and "Silence."

And now look at them! "Silence" has come and gone, "The Smiling Loot" has come and is goning and both of the other two are to be crashed upon an expectant and palpitant public come this week-end—"An American Tragedy," to reopen the Metropolitan, following its somnolent summer solstice; "Huck Finn" to pick up Friday where "Tom Sawyer" left off last Christmas week at the Fox.

"Huckleberry Finn," with Junior Durkin in the title role and Jackie Coogan, as Tom, will exert an unfailing appeal to juvenile audiences—just as "Tom Sawyer" did—and Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," by reason of the wide discussion that has attended its preparation and release, of course, is one of that short list of unusual pictures that simply must be seen, unless you wish to be the dumb one sitting about the wassail bowl in the gun room before joining the ladies.

It is a fine sign, however, that there are enough good films in the offing to enable the previews to keep fairly well abreast of public consumption.

This evening at six, for example, Mr. Rodney Collier and the officials of the Universal organization presiding over the variegated destinies of the Rialto Theater, are entertaining the hungry scribes at a sumptuous repast at the Mayflower, following which "Waterloo Bridge," Saturday's reopening attraction will be unreeled before their eager eyes and satiated appetites. And that, mind you, without even leaving the luxurious comforts of the ornate Connecticut avenue hostelry.

Knowing from past experience something of the ravenous nature of dramatic and news desks, Mr. Collier and his associates are taking no chances on the torpor that follows intemperate gourmandizing. They plan merely to wheel the guests around from the table to face the screen and trust to luck that the picture will be its own antidote for lethargy—which strikes me as being a very swell idea, indeed.

And reverting momentarily, I do not hold with the seeming majority who deemed Clive Brook miscast in "Silence," an interesting and deftly handled crook yarn, as I remember it from that distant preview.

If Mr. Brook is to be countenanced only in impeccably groomed drawing-room parts, then probably he was miscast, but to my notion playing a role different from his customary assignment did not constitute miscasting so long as he gave a believable account of his character in the story. This, it seemed to me, he did.

By the same process of reasoning, if any, Irving Pichel will be miscast in "An American Tragedy" to those who thought he had hit his true stride as the homicidal halfwit in "Murder By the Clock." The two roles are poles apart. Unless he is miscast in one or the other, Mr. Pichel is by way of being a pretty elegant actor.

Word comes from Mr. Stephen E. Cochran, who surely ought to be back from New York by now, that "Peter Flies High," the new Glenn Hunter vehicle with which the National Theater will inaugurate its new season on Monday, September 14, is shaping up nicely in rehearsal, under the direction of Myron C. Fagan, the author.

The report is that Mr. Hunter is virtually letter perfect in his role even now and that Washingtonians may look forward with every confidence to a sterling performance by one of its favorite light comedians a fortnight hence.

Let the dancing in the streets begin!

Leave it to that thrifty soul, Eddie Cantor, to keep the wolf from galloping clear down the hall. When he "vacations" in the East shortly he will stave off starvation, at least in part, by doing a six-week tour of duty as guest artist with Rubinoff and his violin, on that Sabbath evening radio hour so recently vacated by Mons. Maurice Chevalier—if Mr. Heini will pull in that "No Trespassing" sign for a moment and kindly look the other way.

Mr. Cantor, the cantor, will take the mike September 13, as I understand it, as a stopgap while he explains to Mr. Ziegfeld why he can't sign on the dotted line, unless he insists!

And don't think I won't be listening in with you, and you, and you, and you!

There are tough times for the gentry who said that the days of the personal appearance's big draw are a thing of the past. Last week the Earle watched its every house record—both in the matters of number of people and gross receipts—go bye-bye, with Joe Penner, in person, aiding Constance Bennett on the screen in pulling in the cash customers.

Then, no longer than a minute ago, Jim Lundy called up to say that Miss Polly Moran, whom I have not as yet had the pleasure of meeting, was greeted by a crowd of thousands when she emerged from the stage entrance of the Palace Sunday night and is goaling the citizenry at every performance on F street.

The season is opening to a hot pace and wouldn't it be dandy if it would last right through to spring?

And don't tell ME the days aren't getting longer!

Admiral Gleaves Ends Navy Career

Retirement as Governor of Home Marks Close of 58-Year Record.

Philadelphia, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Admiral Albert Gleaves retired today as governor of the United States Naval Home, thus closing a naval career of 58 years. The admiral, who expects to return to private life here, will be succeeded by Rear Admiral Thomas Washington, of San Francisco, who will take charge September 15.

In the World War Admiral Gleaves had command of the American transport fleet and received numerous decorations for his success in convoying millions of American soldiers without loss of a single life through submarine attacks.

He was born January 1, 1858, in Nashville, Tenn., retired from active service in the Navy December 31, 1922, and was promoted to the full rank of admiral August 23, 1930. He had been in charge of the Naval Home the past three years.

ELIGIBLE MEN HERE OUTNUMBER WOMEN

Although women outnumber men in the Capital by 22,883, there are 1,986 more "eligible" males than females, according to Census Bureau compilations.

There were 63,695 single men in Washington last year, and only 61,709 single women, according to the bureau, which yesterday classified the population 15 years of age and over according to marital conditions.

The compilation showed there were 204,556 women here and 181,673 men.

Washington is also unique for the predominance of widows over widowers, the report showed. There were almost four times as many widows residing here as widowers. The latter account for only 4.5 per cent of the population, and the former 14.6 per cent.

In the Capital widows numbered 29,766 as against 14,503 for all Montana, 10,927 for Idaho and 5,155 for Wyoming.

Divorcees here numbered 2,992, compared with 1,808 divorced men. Divorce the country over involved only 1.1 per cent of the males over 15 years old and 1.3 of the females.

The bureau, which only a few weeks ago reported a marriage decline in 1929, yesterday issued statistics showing a larger percentage of the population married now than ever before. Only 53.9 per cent of the men were married in 1890, whereas 60 per cent of the men are married now, declared the report. Married women represented 56.8 per cent of the population in 1890, but 61.1 per cent now. At each census since 1890 the percentage of married has increased.

Married men the country over totaled 26,327,109, single men, 14,953,712; widowed, 23,024,936, and divorced, 489,578; when the last census was taken. Married women totaled 26,170,756; single women, 11,306,653; widows, 4,734,207, and divorced, 573,148.

Estranged Mate Slays Wife, 20; Wed Six Years

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 31 (U.P.).—A 20-year-old girl wife who married when she was 14 was shot to death by her estranged husband on Savannah's busiest street intersection downtown late today.

Walter Bragg, 29, shot and killed his wife, Estelle, at Whitaker and Broughton streets after she had rushed into a crowded cigar store in an effort to escape. He fired five times.

Northern Italy 'Ravaged' In Mimic Air Warfare

Milan, Italy, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Most of the larger cities of Northern Italy today were judged so thoroughly "devastated" by the mimic air attack of the past four days as to have become "helpless." Consequently an "armistice" was asked by the defending air force in the maneuvers.

Premier Mussolini has sent congratulations to Italo Palpo, minister of aviation, on the conduct of the air force, which had few accidents, and only one fatality. The entire Italian force of nearly 1,000 airplanes will pass in review at Perrara Thursday.

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE exact origin of the very descriptive term, chees champion, is somewhat clouded. One theory, of course, is that it fits the repugnance of a certain odor associated with a certain cheese whose pungency is such that it has come to be a synonym for anything smelly. This explanation is probably the best. Thus we have the cheese champions, athletes who have come into titles and lacked ability to live up to them in the manner in which the public has been accustomed to regard its champions.

Nineteen hundred and thirty-one has revealed one of the most notable cheese champions in the annals of American sports. The actual crowning of Johnny Doeg as United States tennis champion occurred in 1930, of course, but it remained for this year to turn him up as one of the prize championship flops.

The crowning insult to Doeg's national singles championship was delivered on Saturday when the U. S. L. T. A. seeded him Number Five in the title tournament to be staged next week. And he rated no better than fifth position behind Vines, Shields, Wood and Lott, for Doeg, the United States champion, had been beaten in five of the six Eastern tournaments that he competed in this summer. A sad contrast to the consistent triumphs of that other American champion, William Tatum Tilden 2d.

Boxing Chief Offender

With Tilden holding sway in the tennis sphere, the net game in recent history has been free from cheese champions. Boxing has been the greatest offender in this variety of flop. The pugilistic record is studded with the cases of inferior champions.

Most notable among boxing's cheese champions was Johnny Wilson, Wilson nee John Panica, met doddering old Mike O'Dowd at Boston and outpointed him to win the world middleweight title in a slow bout in 1921. The next year he met Bryan Downey, obscure Cleveland middleweight, and was knocked out by Downey in seven rounds.

Jim Jeffries is responsible for one of boxing's cheese champions. After Jeffries retired in 1905, he selected Marvin Hart as his successor and conferred on him the championship of the world when Hart knocked out Jack Root, a light-heavyweight. That Jeffries made an unwise choice was seen six months later when Tommy Burns defeated Hart for the championship. Hart's six-month reign as heavyweight titleholder is the shortest on record, under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, which came into being in 1892.

Tunney's Case

It required two fights with Jack Dempsey before Gene Tunney was removed from the cheese championship class by the great majority of boxing fans. Before meeting Dempsey, Tunney had been beaten by Harry Greb, who campaigned as a middleweight. He had been tossed out of the ring for an unsatisfactory fight with Jack Renault. When he beat Dempsey at the Philadelphia sesquicentennial in 1926, the result was shocking.

Numerous alibis were set up for Dempsey. He had been harassed by sheriffs with writs and other legal complications. His coffee had been poisoned. He had become infected from mosquito bites at his New Jersey training camp. It wasn't the old Dempsey. Tunney hadn't beaten much. He was the champion, but the public at large wasn't ready to grant that he was a real champion.

It was the fight in Chicago that established Tunney as an acceptable champion when he got up off the floor in the seventh round under a shower of Dempsey's punches and slaughtered the old Mauler in the eighth and ninth rounds, almost knocking him out. He got the long count at Chicago, all right, but no other man ever got up off the floor to beat Dempsey. The way Tunney polished off Heeney in his farewell fight solidified his position as a true champion.

Max Schmeling

The present world champion, Max Schmeling, was a cheese champion for more than a year after he won the title from Jack Sharkey on a foul. Schmeling was a badly beaten boxer when Sharkey's errant fists struck him low and delivered the title to Germany. Schmeling was the first champion ever to come into the crown on a foul. There was little to recommend him as a real champion until he stopped Young Stribling in the last round at Cleveland last July 3.

Another of our present world champions pulled himself out of the cheese champion class by his boot straps, as it were. Battling Battalino, world featherweight incumbent, who had done nothing of note, outpointed Andre Routis, washed-up title holder, in his home town of Hartford, Conn., and gained the title at the end of fifteen rounds.

That was in 1929. The following year he was beaten by Lew Massey, Bud Taylor, Cecil Payne (twice), Roger Bernard and Kid Kaplan. He escaped with his title by making his opponents come in overweight, taking no chances. Battalino's consistent defeats ranked him as one of boxing's most notable cheese champs. And then he confounded the critics. He risked his title against the redoubtable Kid Chocolate, hailed as the uncrowned champion, and gave Chocolate the first beating of the Cuban's career. Early this year he met Fidel Labarba, former flyweight champion, in another title bout, beat Labarba to the punch, and gave the clever Coast battler a boxing lesson, and won the fight in a gallop to lift himself definitely out of the cheese champion class.

By RICHARDS VIDMER
(Baseball Writer, Herald Tribune).

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, N. Y., Aug. 31.—The Ruth will out. With the bases filled and the Nationals leading by a lone run in the eighth inning, the mighty Babe stepped to the plate this afternoon and lifted a frail and futile fly to short right field to end the inning and leave Washington in sole possession of second place.

To hold that post the Nationals had to overcome the lead piled up when Lou Gehrig hit a home run with the bases filled in the fifth frame, they had to overcome the crafty curves of Herb Pennock and after they knocked him from the box they had to make the tying and winning tallies off Ed Wells, another left-hander. But they did all these things and came through with a 6-to-5 victory that left them in solitary, if not permanent, possession of second place.

Pennock in Rare Form for Four Innings.

When Pennock scattered four singles over the first five frames, never allowing two in the same session, the one run that the Yankees had made in the second inning looked as though it might be enough to hoist them into a tie with the Nationals. When Gehrig hit his thirty-eighth homer of the current campaign, putting him one ahead of Ruth in the race for slugging honors, it seemed to clinch the argument, for the bases were filled and four more runs rode home on the prodigious poke.

But the Nationals came along in the very next inning and tightened up the contest again after it had become somewhat loosened by Gehrig's wallop. Myer opened the sixth with a single, and when he was forced by Manush and Cronin lifted to center for the second out, there seemed no immediate hope of relief, but Pennock could not get the third man out.

Harris tripled, West singled, Bluege walked and both Kuhel and Spencer hit safely before Wells came in to relieve the failing Pennock. By the time he arrived on the scene the Nationals had four runs in and needed only one more to tie.

This they got along with the winning run in the seventh when Myer and Cronin singled, Harris doubled, scoring Myer, and West singled, scoring Cronin.

Hadley was pitching at the moment, having relieved Lloyd Brown at the start of the sixth and Bump received credit for the victory, but some of the credit must go to Fred Marberry, who came along and relieved Hadley in the eighth when the traffic on the bases was becoming quite congested.

Hadley Fills Bases in Eighth Round.

With one out, Hadley walked Lazzari and Combs in that session and, with the tying run on second, Marberry was beckoned from the bull pen. Byrd lifted to left for the second out, and then big Fred walked Sewell, filling the bases and bringing the mighty Ruth to bat.

But, as mentioned at the beginning of this chant of triumph, the Ruth will out.

Chapman ran his stolen base total to 53, dashing safely to second in the fifth and again in the seventh, but as he didn't get any further it did not matter particularly.

Gehrig's home run was his third in three games, during which period he has caught and passed the Babe for the big league leadership.

RUEL IS SENT TO TIGERS IN TRADE

BOSTON, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Harold (Muddy) Ruel, veteran catcher, today went to the Detroit Tigers in exchange for Marty McManus, Tiger infielder, the Red Sox management announced. Ruel left for Detroit today and McManus will join the Sox tomorrow. It was explained the trade was permitted at this late date because the Sox had secured waivers on Ruel and Detroit secured waivers on McManus.

Ruel caught for Washington in the days when the Nationals figured in the world series and has been with the Sox only since the opening of the season. It was a return engagement for him, however, as he played with the Red Sox before going to Washington, coming here from the New York Yankees.

McManus Formerly With Browns.

McManus is also a veteran, having played on the St. Louis Browns before going to Detroit several seasons ago.

Detroit, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Marty McManus, Tiger third basemen, who was traded to the Boston Red Sox for Harold (Muddy) Ruel today, had been with the Detroit team for nearly five seasons.

McManus came to Detroit from the St. Louis Browns in 1927 as a second baseman. Later he played at third base. Last year McManus had a batting average of .320 and his average thus far this season is .271.

LEONARD IN EXHIBITION.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 31 (U.P.).—Benny Leonard, retired undefeated lightweight champion, will make his first public "comeback" appearance at the Newark International Lague baseball park in a six-round exhibition with Tommy Freeman, of Hot Springs, Ark., former world's welterweight champion.

Wrigley Hopes Ex-Homer King Won't Be With Team Next Year.

Chicago, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Owner William Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs today said he "hoped that Hack Wilson will not be a member of the Cubs next season." He said the wish was a personal one, and that President William L. Veeck and Manager Rogers Hornsby would be permitted to do as they think best in the pudgy outfielder's case.

The owner of the Cubs said he liked Wilson personally, but that he didn't want a man on his club who failed to deliver. He pointed out that Wilson, who batted around .360 last season and set a new National League record of 54 home runs, was batting about 100 points below his 1930 figure and had hit only twelve homers.

Wrigley said the Cubs would like to buy Chick Klein, the Phillies' slugging outfielder, but that the Philadelphia club would not sell him.

Schaaf Stops Campolo in Seventh

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

Cut above and below the right eye, Campolo slowly settled to the floor to sit dazed and blinking in the bright ring lights after Schaaf nailed him solidly on the chin as they wrestled in a clinch. Referee Gunboat Smith, himself an old heavyweight of note, solemnly counted the giant Argentinian out. The seventh round lasted 2 minutes and 45 seconds.

Campolo, once picked by the late Tex Rickard to follow the spectacular trail blazed by Luis Angel Firpo, never had the burly Schaaf in any danger.

Schaaf Proves Able to Take It.

One right-hand lunge started a swelling under Schaaf's left eye in the second round and the frequent clinches the gawky Argentinian, 6 feet 6 inches tall and 225 pounds in heft, buried raking right hand shots in Ernie's sides. Schaaf never seemed bothered by these blasts, however, and after the first round it seemed only a question of time before Campolo toppled under Ernie's plodding, punching attack.

Out of the major heavyweight picture for some time, except for one defeat by Tommy Loughran, Campolo tonight was bidding for top line recognition again. The defeat dropped him from the ranks of the important warriors, but he gave the slim crowd of 15,000 in the Brooklyn Ball Park a good show as long as he kept his feet.

Schaaf Cuts Down Big Man.

Once the bell rang to start the seventh it was evident Schaaf's body belts and cutting head punches had drained all but a little of the giant Argentine's strength. As they locked in a clinch in Campolo's corner, Schaaf pushed the South American far enough away to take a full swing and clipped him solidly on the chin with a left hook. Campolo slid out of Schaaf's arms, sat dazed and wide-legged on the floor, and listened to the full count of ten.

The bout was scheduled for twelve rounds. The Associated Press score card gave Schaaf an edge in all but the first and fourth, which were even. Schaaf weighed 205½, giving Campolo an advantage of almost 20 pounds.

JACK WESTLAND.

Tramberia Stopped; Schwartz Flattens Sailor Gates.

By JACK ESPEY.

SAILOR BILLY LANDERS, blond Norfolk dynamo with a pile-driving punch, cracked down mercilessly on Jimmy Tramberia, swarthy Baltimore Italian, to score a sensational second-round knockout last night in the feature of a pulsating card at Fort Washington before a packed arena.

The finish was no more thrilling than it was unexpected, as Tramberia, a terrific puncher himself, collapsed, utterly exhausted, after 2 minutes and 42 seconds had elapsed in the second session. A series of short rights and lefts to the head from Landers' tireless, accurate mitts sent the Baltimorean crashing to the canvas, this all coming suddenly after Tramberia had been tearing into the sailor boy.

Preceding the last vital flurry, Landers prepared his foe for the finish with a steaming right to the stomach at long range. This blow was inserted in a split-second's time when Tramberia missed a terrific uppercut.

They were working on Tramberia for five minutes after the crowd began moving out. It was his first knockout in four years of boxing.

Landers to Meet Wolgast.

As a result of his victory last night Landers, now three times a winner at the fort, will receive a chance at Midget Wolgast, recognized as world's flyweight champion in New York and other States. The bout is slated for

MACKENZIE GETS 79 AT CHICAGO

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, Chicago, Aug. 31.—Roland Mackenzie, who moved to Hollywood some few months ago from Washington, led the three best known Washingtonians at the end of the first eighteen holes of the qualifying round of the National Amateur Golf Tourney here today, when he turned in a 79. George Voigt, former Washington star, now representing New York, shot 78.

Maurice J. McCarthy, former Georgetown University star, playing from Harrison, N. Y., turned in a card of 76 and is virtually assured a place among the qualifiers.

Going out in 41, Mackenzie staged a comeback on the last route to come back in 38, taking a birdie on the twelfth and eighteenth holes to do so. On the twelfth hole, which is the shortest one of the course, with a 110-yard length to it, including a water hazard, he was on the green in one to sing an 8-foot putt for a birdie two. On the eighteenth, which has a par 5 and a length of 572 yards, he teed off for a drive of well over 275 yards, was on the green in three, where he sank a 5-foot putt for a birdie four. He was paired with Carl Dann, of Asheville, N. C.

Tom Bones, from the Chevy Chase Club, Maryland, went out on his first nine in 41. He was paired with Chris Brouke, of Oakland Hills, Mich., and has not come in from his second nine as yet.

Shorey Goes Out in 44.

Shorey, paired with V. T. Broddus, Hillcrest, Okla., came out with a 44, having trouble on the way with his putts. The greens on which the course is being played are very fast, and Shorey, as well as other golfers, are used to slower greens.

On the fourth hole in particular, which has a par four, he made in seven. He teed off well to gain the green in four, but there putted for a seven. On nearly every other hole he two-putted to add costly strokes to his score.

Though Shorey and Bones will have to stage a comeback on the last nine in order to be in the play tomorrow so that they may qualify for the medal play beginning Monday, young Mackenzie stands a fair chance of qualifying with his 79.

Liska Is Returned To Nats by Orioles

Pitcher, Still Insisting His Arm Is O.K., Goes to Chattanooga.

Pitcher Ad Liska, optioned to the Baltimore Orioles by the Nationals, was returned by the International Leaguers yesterday and immediately shunted to Joe Engel's Chattanooga Lookouts. There is still some doubt as to whether the subway hurler's arm is strong again and it was partially because of this doubt that he was returned by Baltimore, despite the fact that he pitched a four-hit game there.

Liska, however, still insists that his salary wing is as good as ever and, in order to give him the benefit of the doubt, he was given this further trial in the Southern Association. He left for Chattanooga yesterday.

Some Folks Who Worry Over Minor Accidents Applaud K. O. in Ring

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—I hope I never have to take the witness stand and prove to a clever cross-examiner that prize fighting is sport and explain why I derive a kind of joy from seeing a big, dumb stranger, whom I have no reason to dislike, knocked senseless by a punch on the chin or the base of the brain.

When I come upon a street accident and find the victim stretched out on the sidewalk with the greenish tinge on his face which comes of being knocked, as we say, for a loop, I do not hop around and yell, "Yea. A beaut. Hooray for the Acme Hauling Co.'s truck No. 4." Neither do I exult over the victim, yelling "Ludwig Krauss, 39 years old, of 224 Cypress street, married, a collector for the Buckingham Palace Gardens Realty Associates, Inc., is a bum. He can not take it and he never could take it."

On the contrary, my instinct and the instinct of most people, including the most confirmed prize-fight customers, is to call a cop and an ambulance, fan the victim with my hat, run to the drug store for some drinking whisky, take down a lot of automobile numbers and get sore at the driver of the Acme Hauling Co.'s truck No. 4.

Yet, in all the prize fights I have seen, the flash of greatest beauty to me occurred in a preliminary bout the night Dempsey and Firpo were dealing one another blows at the Polo Grounds. In this preliminary one of the boys swung a terrific—I almost said beautiful—right-hand punch to the other boy's chin. The other boy was knocked unconscious instantly and fell forward in such complete anesthesia that he lacked even the instinct to fold his arms under his face as he hit the floor. If he had been hurt to exactly the same extent by a slap on the chin from a hoisting boom or a fall on a slippery floor in a hotel lobby, people would have been a-running from all directions and there would have been exclamations of "Give the poor guy air," "Who's got a flask?" "Rub his neck," and "He ought to sue."

But when this occurred that night in the Polo Grounds the customers bobbed up with a yell of delight, and, far from resenting what had been done to this inoffensive party, the people on the aisle reached out to pat the boy who did it as he went back to his dressing room. It had been a perfect knockout, but why it was a stroke of such beauty and why the victim's misfortune was so delightful to me, who had never seen him before and couldn't even recall his name a week afterward, I can give no explanation satisfactory even to myself.

One of the main troubles of the prize-fight industry right now is the lack of a champion who can knock people decidedly unconscious. There are plenty of excellent boxers in the profession, but the customers do not wish to see boxers box, much preferring to see punchers punch and the victims go down helpless and, for choice, pretty badly lacerated. I quite realize that in putting up their resistance prior to going down, the victims may lose their eyes and, unless they quit the ring in time, fall ill of a strange malady which blurs their speech and their minds and makes them walk as if overcharged with dope, known to the profession as fighter's dance. Regarded simply as

Seaver Among Quintet Tied for 3d; Star Players Down.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

BEVERLY COUNTRY CLUB, Chicago, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The barriers of Beverly today proved more baffling to the old guard than to the youthful brigade as Jack Westland, sharpshooting young Chicago district champion, seized and held a 1-stroke lead over the field in the first qualifying round of the national amateur golf championship.

First to start the week's golfing war and first on the scoring list all day long, Westland treated a mere handful of faithful home town followers to a dazzling exhibition at the outset. He reached the turn in 33 strokes, three under par, and finished a trifle erratic with an 18-hole total of 72, one over par. He was all through before the retired champion, Bobby Jones, joined the day's small gallery, but not a single one of his 135 pursuers could catch up with him or with Beverly's elusive par.

Moreland Threatens Leader.

It wasn't until late in the day, when the breeze died down and better control was possible, that Westland's lead was really menaced. Gus Moreland, of Dallas, the Texas champion, one of the "dark horse" contenders, romped over the incoming route in 34 strokes, one under par, to post a total of 73.

Bunched right behind were a quintet of top-flight entries at 74 each—Johnny Goodman, of Omaha; Charley Seaver, of Los Angeles; Francis Ouimet, Boston veteran; Arthur (Ducky) Yates, of Rochester, N. Y., and Lester Bolstad, of St. Paul, former Big Ten champion.

Ouimet alone of the old guard showed anything like old-time form, as disaster, in various forms, overtook such favorites as Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, of St. Paul; Dr. Oscar F. Willing, of Portland, Oreg.; Cyril Tolley, of England, and T. Philip Perkins, of New York, another former British amateur champion.

All of these stars were on the outer rim, as the day's competition indicated it would take 156 or, at the most, 157, to gain a place among the 32 qualifiers for match play, to be decided tomorrow in the second qualifying round.

Johnston, who failed to qualify at Merion last year in defense of his title, blew wide open on the homecoming nine to total 82, eleven over par. Although "Jimmy" offered not the slightest alibi, his friends asserted he was not in good health and competed more or less against his doctor's orders. Nevertheless, it was a stunning setback for the popular St. Paul star, who was accorded the No. 1 place in this year's "seeding" list. He will need at least a 74 to have a chance tomorrow.

Dr. Willing, runner-up to Johnston for the championship in 1929, jeopardized his prospects by tallying 80. Perkins, fourth on the "seeding list" and a big Eastern favorite, matched Johnston's card with an 82. Tolley blew himself to a weird 85, due to a four-hole stretch in which he dropped nine strokes to par.

The veteran Chick Evans, of Chicago, with a 79; Max Marston, of Philadelphia, another former champion, with 78, and William Lawson Little, jr., of San Francisco, 79, were other well-known performers who faced the necessity of hitting a faster clip to qualify.

It was a great day, on the whole, for the youthful brigade, which battered away at Beverly's obstacles with astonishing effectiveness. Westland, the leader, is only 29, but has had international experience. The three-time Chicago District champion was a college star for the University of Washington and won the French amateur crown in 1929, after Horses Returning to Improved Nearby Race Course.

Four $600 Purses Are Offered; 2-Year-Olds Compete.

WITH many a face of tender memory at the starting tape, a reconditioned track and plant in general, and the weather man showing a leaning toward the "mudders," Marlboro's historic old racing establishment will open today for a five-day meeting, in conjunction with the Southern Maryland Agriculture Fair.

Overseeing the action will be Joseph B. Boyle and Thomas Kirby Lynch, recently installed as general manager and assistant. Under their guidance the old plant has been refurnished and shines with newly applied paint.

Boyle stated yesterday that the caliber of this meeting's horses has never been equaled, nor have owners ever shown such a rush for stall space. All 300 stalls have been allotted.

The track itself is in good condition and has been thoroughly gone over. A complete resurfacing was done during the last two months, during which time 12 inches of soil and grading have been added.

Hump at First Turn Removed.

The old hump on the first turn, the rocks on which many a favorite has been wrecked, has been removed. The new surfacing is of a loamy nature. It is believed that this topping will make the oval faster.

The meeting gets under way today with a 2-year-old race and is featured by four $600 purses and three $500 events. The final handicap, next Saturday, is worth $1,000 to the winner.

2 Jockeys Refused Licenses in Illinois

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Jockey Dave Bryant, Louisville, Ky., who declares he was beaten and chased out of Chicago two weeks ago by gangsters for failure to "pull" a horse at Hawthorne, was denied reinstatement by the license committee of the Illinois Turf Association in executive session today.

Bryant did not appear, but presented his application for license by letter. He was suspended by the Hawthorne stewards at the time of the exposure.

The recommendations of the Arlington Park stewards that Jockey Guy de Peso's suspension be continued for the remainder of the year was approved by the commission. De Peso refused to ride Ironsides at Arlington after a nose-twitch had been put on the animal because of his unruly behavior at the post.

Yanks, Giants, Robins In Series for Charity

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—A baseball series of six games between the Giants, Yankees and Brooklyn Robins will be played following the close of the major league season, with 50 per cent of the profits devoted to unemployment relief, the mayor's committee on unemployment announced today.

The city series, originally suggested as between the Giants and Yankees, but broadened later to include Brooklyn, is the first of its kind ever played here.

No postseason city series have been played here for several years.

—Lincoln Fields Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

LINCOLN FIELDS RACE TRACK, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 31.—Two allowance events feature the program at Lincoln Fields tomorrow. The Dahlia, a test over the six-furlong distance for 3-year-olds and upward, and the Kensington, a six-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds, are the main attractions. The remainder of the card will bring out large fields to contest the events, under claiming conditions:

INFINITY, a consistent son of Eternal, carrying the silks of Mrs. R. S. Pollard, appears best of the nine thoroughbreds pitted against him in the six furlongs of the Dahlia, fifth on the card. In his last, the Pollard 5-year-old scored easily and with an eight-pound reduction figures to repeat. ABDEL has been route racing and will favor the shorter distance. In his previous effort, the Reid and Allen color bearer faltered after setting the pace to the stretch. SISTER ZOE has been freshened up and in this class may prove troublesome.

In the Kensington, fourth event, eight clever juveniles will face the barrier to contest the purse at six furlongs. KAKAPO, a recent winner at this track, is at the peak of her form and on her last effort, in which she defeated a large field, should carry off the honors. ANITA ORMONT has not raced recently and may need this. SHAKER LADY has shown consistent form of late and should share in the purse.

FIRST RACE—WITEON appears best. The Witticism colt has turned in several fast trials and is capable of taking the measure of this group. SWITCH finished second to Curmudgeon last outing and should go as well here. SIMPLE SINGER appears best of the others for the show award.

SECOND RACE—GRASSLANDS has shown steady improvement and is favored to annex the purse. MAI SAN, from the J. J. Troxler barn, finished third last start and should furnish the opposition. BUGS LEARY disappointed in recent efforts, but should last to gain the minor award.

THIRD RACE—LADY BATTS appears best of this field. Last start the F. F. Brant youngster turned in a smashing victory, and off that sterling performance should show the way to her rivals. TRIASSIC and MEMORANDUM are closely matched for the remainder of the purse, with the former selected for the place.

SIXTH RACE—ISLAM, from the J. Howard string, should romp to an easy victory. The son of The Porter is picking up 6 pounds off his last victorious effort, but this impost should not stop him from scoring over this mediocre field. TELA, a consistent plater, is the place selection, with SANTON, a clever winner last outing, favored for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—TARNISH was withdrawn yesterday and appears admirably placed in this heat. The Sand Mole filly has trained well and should carry her speed over the gruelling route. GORMOND has several clever races to his credit, and under the conditions is favored to force the pace. NURSERY RHYMES is on the improve and figures to gain a part of the purse.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MARLENE, $7.68, $4.86, $3.56; RAPID BIRDIE, $18.94, $8.72; PRECEDE, $5.14.

MARLENE, never far back and on the outside much of the distance, worked her way up gradually after reaching stretch and heading the leaders, drew out fast in the final stages. RAPID BIRDIE began slowly, remained far back until final three-sixteenths, where she moved up strongly. PRECEDE raced forwardly and had no mishaps. BOOBY BIRD had speed, neared the lead in the stretch, then weakened. BONNET, fractious at the post, was in close quarters in the stretch. WATER HEN met with slight interference. SUSU almost fell when crowded back at the far turn and was not persevered with thereafter. VOLCRY quit badly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Winner, Superior Stable's ch. f. (4), by High Time—Miss Jarbo. Trained by W. Renn. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:22 3-5, 0:46 1-5, 1:13.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUPREME SWEET, $5.64, $4.14, $3.08; PATRICIA ANN, $16.04, $7.88; NIFTY, $4.02.

SUPREME SWEET, easily best and benefited by lack of early competition, quickly increased her advantage at stretch turn and, maintaining good speed thereafter, won easily. PATRICIA ANN began fast, lost ground at the far turn and, shaking off NIFTY after a half mile, went evenly thereafter. Latter began fast, saved ground and faltered in final strides, but outstayed WILLA. Latter lacked speed to keep up and closed fast in front of outside in the stretch. CHICAGO GIRL, in close quarters at first turn, was steadied slightly after moving up in stretch. NELLIE CUSTIS had speed but weakened after three-quarters and bore out when entering stretch.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Fillies. Start bad. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:23. Winner, E. Haughton's ch. f. (3), by Thunderer—Flora McFlimsey. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:47 4-5, 1:12 2-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:46.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—REVERBERATE, $6.28, $3.14, $2.46; ANNIE REE, $2.82, $2.30; GREY KITTY, $2.64.

REVERBERATE, lucky at the start, followed the early pacemaker under slight restraint, quickly drew into command after reaching the final half mile, but had little left. ANNIE REE, a forward factor throughout, was forced very wide by GREY KITTY entering the stretch and disposed of latter, but did not threaten the winner. GREY KITTY, taken into the backstretch, had good speed, was weakly ridden rounding the second turn and weakened after bearing out badly. PEACE PRINCESS had no mishap. THUNWIN was never a formidable factor. OCCURRENCE was blocked by WEE DROP at the start. The latter was unprepared for the break and careened into OCCURRENCE.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:52. Off at 4:53. Winner, R. B. Allen's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DABSTER, $7.16, $4.38, $3.30; DELMONICO, $17.18, $8.00; WINNIE JO, $3.56.

DABSTER away slowly, was taken under restraint after moving up slightly rounding stretch turn and, responding strongly in final three-sixteenths, disposed of leaders to win easily. DELMONICO had speed, gradually wore down TIGER FLOWERS and weakened in final eighth, but outstayed WINNIE JO. Latter, under slight restraint for three-quarters, met slight interference in stretch, held on fairly well when clear. TIGER FLOWERS weakened in final drive. BEAR CRY had early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:23. Off at 5:25½. Winner, E. L. Snyder's br. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WATERGAP, $11.24, $6.52, $3.76; ANNAN, $8.26, $5.22; KING PIN, $9.84.

WATERGAP, rated along under steadying restraint to final quarter, responded well and, standing the drive gamely, got up in final strides. ANNAN had good speed, saved ground throughout and, holding on stubbornly, just failed to last. KING PIN raced wide and held on resolutely. NURSERY RHYMES, fractious at post, closed strongly. MADCAP MARVIN, crowded back slightly at first turn, lost some ground and lacked usual belated speed. ROYAL MANAGER was outrun throughout and went very wide at stretch turn. ROY had no mishap and sulked.

RAY STEELE IN GRAPPLE FEATURE

WRESTLING will be committed again tomorrow night at Griffith Stadium beginning at 8:30 o'clock when a couple of preliminary boys, yet to be appointed, dust off the mat for the subsequent features of the evening, chief of which will be a meeting between Ray Steele, hailed in many quarters as the "real" champion, and Don De Laun, who was waivered out of the Bowser circuit, and is now grimacing exclusively for Jack Curley and his provincial agents.

Tickets sales continued briskly yesterday and the gate bids fair to top 8,000 if weather and other exigencies are amiable. Ladies accompanied by escorts will be admitted free of charge.

Steele Made Hit in Bout With Roebuck.

Steele made a tremendous hit here last week when he overcame not only a local pride, but its attendant prejudice, by downing Tiny Roebuck after a spectacle of tremendous strength on the part of both performers. Steele's speed must be witnessed to be appreciated. He is as fast as Jim Londos—certainly one of the fastest men in any sport—and is 220 pounds of rock-ribbed muscles.

He affects many of Londos' mannerisms, chief of which are his method of "bicycling" away from an ominously rushing opponent, and his use of the airplane spin before his ring-bending body slams. He has not the color of Londos, but stands heads and shoulders above the 62 other boys on this circuit.

De Laun showed here last winter at the Strand, where he was beaten by Jack Sherry, one of the best boys in the other bunch. De Laun, at that time, was fairly new to the game, as evidenced by his perfectly formed ears and clean tights. They say he has become quite a veteran, in both respects. He is as big as Steele, but a lot softer.

Zaharias, Steinborn Noted for Roughness.

Two rough babies, George Zaharias and Milo Steinborn, will swap thorhammers and plain ordinary socks in the jaw in the semifinal.

The other get-togethers will be indulged in by Chief White Feather and Tom Drake, Tiger Nelson and Babe Caddock, "Tarzan" Romonoff and somebody, and the ever pleasing Doc Wilson and John Maxos.

All the boys are rassling together tonight in Baltimore, but "the show must go on" is the byword of the seasoned trouper, and these are seasoned troupers.

LA CORDOBESITA, in private life Maria de Jesus Alguin-Garcia, though now but 17 years of age, has already appeared in bull rings on more than 200 occasions. She started when only 13!

• • • •

Maria's skill comes to her naturally, for many of her ancestors were bull fighters. Her father, like the others, began riding blooded fighting bulls when he retired from the ring. He has four sons to whom he taught the art of bull-fighting. Maria was instructed as a matadora, along with her brothers, first in fun, but when she showed promise her father started training her in earnest. Her ambition is to enter the rings of Madrid and San Sebastian.

PRINTING OFFICE NINE GAINS GOVERNMENT LEAGUE TITLE

Corkins Is Tight in Pinches; Errors Aid Winners.

Constructioneers Will Play Commerce in Series Opener.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE won the championship of the Government League by defeating Naval Hospital, 9 to 5, in a wildly played game on the West Ellipse before a crowd of 5,000 fans yesterday. Despite the loose play of the Hospital nine the game produced many thrills and had the fans on edge throughout. The game was terminated in the seventh inning because of darkness.

The Printers assumed an early lead and were never headed, despite repeated threats of the Tars. The climax of the winners' attack came in the third round, when they got to "Rebel" Crews for three runs. Crews was finally banished to the sidelines in the sixth, Patterson, the shortstop, relieving him. Costly errors by his teammates, rather than "Rebels" ineffectiveness, were responsible for the Hospital Team's defeat. Five errors, all of which figured in the runmaking, were charged to the team.

Corkins Good in Pinches.

Frank Corkins, who twirled for G. P. O., was none too effective allowing ten hits. Corkins, however, was able to bear down in the pinches to save himself on more than one occasion. Patterson led the Sailors at bat with three hits in as many attempts, while Lew Hollis and Benny Schneider were best for G. P. O.

By virtue of its victory G. P. O. wins the right to represent the Government League in the week-day league's championship series which gets under way on the South Ellipse today. All series will begin promptly at 4:15 p. m. with 15 minutes of grace for tardy teams. Instead of moving the schedule back a day as had previously been announced, the game between the G. P. O. and Eldbrooke M. E., Georgetown Church League champion, which was to have opened the series, will be played Monday, September 21, as the last game on the program.

Efforts are being made to have bleacher seats erected around the South diamond, although it is improbable that the seats will be available for the games this week, if at all. Games will be played every day with the exceptions of Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays, nor will there be a game Labor Day.

RING INJURIES FAIL TO INCITE HORROR

people, these fighters are not a bad lot, and I would not wish to see any of them come down with fighter's dance, but when they are fighting I must resent it if they do not run the risk, and so do the rest of the patrons of the manly art.

Pegler Not Alone in "Depravity."

One comfort I have in confessing this depravity, and that is that I am one of a large body of my fellow men and women, including some of the very best people. There was a time when I stood in awe of wealth and social position, but the awe was dispelled when I found the very best people, as Tex Rickard called them, gathering at the ringsides in various parts of the country to enjoy the same low sport, if I may give it that name, just as a working title, which I enjoy. I had thought that the very best people were a superior lot; I was inclined to look to them for a high example, and I might say that the upper classes in this country never did anything to discredit their pretensions to superior quality and compromise themselves in the eyes of the lower classes as effective as their turn to prize fighting. The lower classes, not kidding themselves, always were aware that they had pretty low tastes, of which the least praiseworthy was their taste for fights and the knockout. But when they saw the better element trooping to the arenas to enjoy their favorite sport, they realized that the difference between themselves and their betters was not a spiritual difference but merely a contrast between the taxi and the limousine, the cap and the plug hat.

I don't want to get beyond my ankles, which is my maximum safe depth in discussions of this kind, but will any one explain why suffering and brutality are distasteful to me outside the ring, whereas when I go to the fights anything short of this is short measure?

24th Homer for Foxx As A's Blank Red Sox

Philadelphia, Aug 31 (A.P.).—With Waite Hoyt pitching his second straight shutout, the world's champion Athletics defeated the Boston Red Sox today, 3 to 0. The victory was also Hoyt's seventh for the Mackmen.

Wilcy Moore blanked the Athletics until the seventh inning, when Cramer's single to left drove in Hoyt and Bishop, who had walked and doubled, respectively. In the eighth inning Jimmy Foxx hit his twentyfourth home run of the season.

Ferrell's Two Homers Help Tribe Beat Chisox

Chicago, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Wesley Ferrell personally led Cleveland to a 15-to-5 victory over the White Sox in the first game of the series today. Ferrell held the Sox to six hits, but as good as his pitching was, it was far from being as sensational as his hitting.

In racking up his eighteenth victory of the season, the Indian righthander slammed out two home runs and a single, batted in five runs and scored four himself. Both homers were fine drives into the left-field stands, the first with one on, and the second with two mates aboard.

NAT RALLIES BEAT YANKEES BY 6-5

Al Schacht's whistle, which sounded like the quitting siren in a steam factory at first, dwindled to the chirrup of a canary with a sore throat when Gehrig cleaned the bases with his homer.

With all chances of a world's series gone, the Yankees are living in hopes of picking up a little extra change through a city series with the Giants. The Nationals haven't even that to brighten their future. Unless, of course, they play the Mohawks.

Purposely passing Ruth to fill the bases with Gehrig at the bat was not so much a matter of strategy as choosing the lesser of two evils.

The Nats moved to Philadelphia tonight for two games with the league leaders before resuming the battle for second place at Griffith Stadium on Friday.

G. U. AND C. U. START GRID DRILLS

Squads Report Today at Rehoboth, Brookland, Respectively.

WASHINGTON'S football season breaks into the summer sports schedule today in two widely separated places when the candidates for the varsity teams of Catholic and Georgetown Universities begin training, respectively, at Brookland and Rehoboth Beach, Del.

Head Coach Dutch Bergman will be on the scene in the spacious Catholic University Stadium to supervise the initial workout of the Cardinals, about 25 of whom are expected to be present. The Georgetown inaugural will be directed by Tommy Mills, who will make the trip to the Delaware resort this morning by automobile.

In each instance the prospect of a better season than was enjoyed in 1930 looms brightly and the boys doubtless will shove their noses down on the grindstone with plenty of vigor and enthusiasm.

Catholics first day program consists of two sessions, the first of which begins at 10 a. m. to continue until 11:30. In the afternoon the Cardinals will practice from 2:30 until 5:30 and a light scrimmage, something unusual for the initial day, may be included in the routine.

LANDERS KNOCKOUT VICTOR IN 2 ROUNDS

——AADD SUB FORT— — t——.

Baker Boy Billy Schwartz, Alexandria's curly-haired light-heavy, mussed up big Sailor Gates, of Norfolk, for a kayo victory in the third round of the scheduled eight-round semifinal. Gates, holding an 11-pound weight advantage, was the victim of a soft mid-riff and a series of Billy's hard left hooks coupled with snappy rights to the head. Preceding the final count, Gates took counts of nine on three occasions.

Henry Irving, ambitious preliminary boy, chalked up his third knockout in four starts by depositing Jakie Friedman, a none-too-eager opponent from Baltimore, on the floor in the second round of a four-rounder. The fourth knockout was credited to Nevin Barber, former District amateur featherweight champion, who, in making his professional debut stopped veteran Jimmy Kiggins in three rounds of the opener.

Soldier Clark, the Fort's popular lightwieght, won a six-round decision from Jack Quigley, of Washington, though he spotted his performance with some uncalled-for clowning in the latter rounds. Billy Hoe, Mohawk Club lightweight, outpointed Sailor Oden, Washington, twice flooring him in the fourth.

Seeded Players Win In Filipino Tourney

Form held true yesterday in the annual quest of the Filipino tennis championship as seeded players survived without undue trouble. In the nearest thing to an upset, Pimentel, brandishing a good forehand drive, and excellent court covering, carried Zamore, seeded player, to 7—5 in the first set, but then yielded, 6—0.

Domingo gave Ponacier only one game in their match, and the second round results were complete when Carballo defaulted to Eugenio. Eugenio went on in the third round to beat Butuyan, 6—2, 6—1, while Tomelden and Domingo were forced to stop on account of darkness after Tomelden had won the first set, 6—1 and was leading 2—1 in the second.

The Tomelden-Domingo match will be completed today, in conjunction with the start of the doubles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT.

PROF. E. P. Lyon of the University of Minnesota wrote recently that we were unable to prove the correctness of many of our medical opinions. For instance, we accept the truth of the legend—"Cleanliness is next to godliness"—without knowing or caring whether or not it is true. The proposition is so general that it escapes close scrutiny.

What is more practical, we base many health practices on the assumption that bodily cleanliness makes for health. We want to be healthy and in order to do so we keep clean. Keeping clean may occasion considerable expense as well as great inconvenience.

Dr. Lyon says there is no scientific proof that washing the skin with water and soap promotes personal health in any way, or to any degree. This is, of course, a challenge to people, and especially to scientists, to come forward with whatever they have to offer: It will not be enough to prove statistically that dirty people are more sickly. That might be because they were poorer, or live in poor houses, or because of some other coincidence.

There is one newly established group of facts that has some bearing on the subject. Diseases due to molds, yeasts and fungi are being recognized as of importance. So-called athlete's foot is now regarded as the most widely prevalent malady of which we have knowledge. It is due to fungus which grows on and in the skin. While the talk just now is pretty well concentrated on this member of the fungus family, and this important disease caused by it, there are many other known disorders caused by this group of plants.

There are reasons for thinking that many, if not most of the brown blotches of the skin are caused by parasites of this family. They cause the large patches under the arms and around the thighs, and they may be the cause of so-called liver spots.

There is a group of chronic lung diseases, some of which imitate consumption, the members of which are due to these vegetable parasites. Some of these parasites are capable of causing diseases of the skin which have been confused with cancer. Nursing babies develop a mouth disease that is caused by one of this family.

To make the argument tie in it will be necessary to prove that keeping the skin clean by frequent bathing lessens the prevalence of these parasites; that they grow in accumulations of dead skin and skin cells that are in the process of shedding. If these cells are washed away by frequent bathing the molds, yeast and fungi will not find suitable soil in which to grow.

We have considerable evidence to prove that now. However, we do need more in order to prove the point that cleanliness promotes personal health in at least one way.

SWELLING OF SHOULDER

A. T. F. writes: I am 51 years old and have a swelling about as big as a man's fist on the front part of my left shoulder. This swelling started about ten years ago and I think it is increasing slightly. It does not pain nor interfere with the movement of my shoulder in any way.

Would you advise that an operation be performed to remove whatever causes the swelling? I am informed that the operation is simple, and that the thing would peel out like an onion.

REPLY.

Plainly, you have had better advice than I can give you. Your physician thinks this is a benign tumor—a bursa, a cyst, or a fatty tumor that can be easily removed, and will probably do little harm if left.

WE HAD FOUND THE PLANETOID EROS TO BE A GIGANTIC SPACE SHIP—WHEN WILMA AND I ENTERED THROUGH AN AIR-LOCK IN THE NOSE OF THE VAST CRAFT, WE FOUND NO WAY OF GETTING "DOWN" TO THE INNER SURFACE OF ITS HULL — WILMA HAD GONE BACK TO OUR ROCKET SHIP TO GET HELP FROM DOCTOR HUER.
THEY BROUGHT A TELERADIOSCOPE AND OTHER EQUIPMENT BACK INTO THE AIRLOCK—
WHY THE TELERADIOSCOPE? WE CAN EXPLORE WITHOUT THAT!
HEH? PERHAPS—BUT WE'D BETTER LOOK THE INHABITANTS OVER FIRST! THEY MIGHT BE HOSTILE!
IN THE AIRLOCK THEY REMOVED THEIR SPACE SUITS—
JUMPING BELTS ONLY WORK AGAINST GRAVITY — NOT AGAINST CENTRIFUGAL FORCE — BUT WE MIGHT DRIFT DOWN ON SMALL PARACHUTES.
YES, HEH! AND HOW WOULD YOU DRIFT UP AGAIN ON THEM?
BUT WHEN THEY OPENED THE DOOR—EXPECTING TO FIND ME—
WHY, HE'S DOCTOR
GONE!—OH, HUER, HE MUST HAVE FALLEN OFF! —I MUST GO TO HIM—HE MAY BE SMASHED TO BITS!
STEADY, GIRL—STEADY! HEH—I'VE GOT A WAY TO GET DOWN!

STOCKS RALLY ENDS IN GENERAL DECLINE

Market Is Dull and Trading Centers on Few Issues; Rails Neglected.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Stocks lacked the courage or the incentive to follow last week's rally today, and fell back slowly during another session of dull trading in which activity was centered in relatively few issues.

Those speculative quarters which are still holding out for a livelier rally in stocks based on expectations of a fall pickup in business apparently are not prepared to force the issue; similar maneuvers a year ago ended dismally, and although present conditions are not exactly comparable, some operators want to be sure a rise would be justified. Stagnation in trade was all that could have been expected from August, but there is a mild degree of confidence in what September has in store.

Price declines for the most part were in a 1-to-3 range. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, New York Central, Atchison and American Telephone lost at least 2 net. Alaska Juneau and Purity Bakeries were sold in some volume, while Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck came under pressure when abandonment of the merger negotiations was announced. Rails as a group were neglected. Missouri, Kansas, Texas preferred dropped 2¾ on a single sale. Union Pacific was firm. Sales for the day amounted to 751,991 shares, or under the average for August. The month's volume, according to the Stock Exchange compilation, was slightly less than 25,000,000 shares, the smallest month's business since May, 1926.

Beneficial rains in Kansas, a bearish German crop estimate, a poor export demand and an increase in the visible supply depressed wheat, which lost ⅝ to 1 cent net. Corn closed with nominal changes on either side of Saturday's final quotations, while cotton lost $1.25 to $1.30 a bale, influenced by stocks and by the tone of the Liverpool market.

Sterling was firm in a quiet foreign exchane market. Cables advanced slightly, reflecting the strengthening of confidence as a result of the credit arrangement. Other continental rates were about steady.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Cotton was lower today. Prices reached the lowest levels of the day in the late trading. December sold off to 7.14 and closed at 7.15, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 25 to 28 points.

The opening was steady, 9 to 10 points lower, in response to the relatively easy cables and favorable view of the weather map. After showing net losses of about 16 to 20 points right after the call, prices stiffened up 3 or 4 points on some trade buying and covering. The demand was soon supplied, however, and prices worked gradually lower during the balance of the day under selling which seemed to be reaching the ring in comparatively small amounts from various sources.

The declines in stocks and wheat may have been reflected by some Wall street and Western selling, while Liverpool and the continent were credited with some of the early selling, and according to some observers there was a little more Southern hedging late in the day. October sold off to 6.94 and March to 7.45, and the close was within a point of the lowest.

Except for little spurts of activity from time to time, and a little more toward the close, trading was quiet during the day and the market was said to be waiting for fresh developments or for a better line on the end-of-August crop reports.

Liverpool cables attributed the decline in that market to hedge selling and liquidation, and said the market for cotton cloths in Manchester was inactive, with buyers cautious. Exports today, 24,248, making 195,777 so far this season. Port receipts, 16,735. U. S. port stocks, 2,742,064.

Curb Review

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The Curb Market drifted irregularly lower in the dullest session in three weeks today. The turnover was only about 160,000 shares.

In the utilities, North American Light & Power, which is accustomed to jumping several points in a few sales, tumbled 14 points to a new low for the year at 53. The break reflected a thin market rather than large offerings. Other issues in this group were in the main narrowly changed. Electric Bond & Share lost about a point, and Brazilian Traction was under pressure, possibly reflecting the suspension of sinking fund payments on some of the Brazilian National Government's external debt.

Oils were largely neglected, although Indiana sagged fractionally in a fair turnover. Cities Service closed off ¼. Pacific Western Oil, which does not enjoy an active market here, sold up to 6, a gain of ¾ of a point.

Industrials and specialties were mixed, several lightly traded issues fluctuating widely in a thin market. Aluminum Co. dropped more than 5 points, then reduced its loss to 3. Ford of Canada and Pilot Radio lost about a point.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube preferred declined 4½ points in an odd lot transaction. Mortgage Bank of Colombia American Shares made one of their rare appearances, selling at 8, off 10 points and a new low. These shares were offered in this country three years ago at 46.

Acetol Products, also an infrequently traded issue, appeared at 9¼, up 2 points and the highest of the year. Grier Stores sold up 1⅜ to 4⅞, also the best price of the year. A. O. Smith again advanced in an odd lot deal or so, closing 4 points higher.

BOND PRICES HIGHER IN LIGHTER TRADING

Rails Continue Advancing; Brazilian Loans Record Day's Widest Losses.

New York, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—The bond market moved irregularly higher today, although activity showed a sharp decrease. Sales on the New York stock exchange totaled $6,635,-000 at par value, the lowest aggregate turnover for a full session since August 3, when sales amounted to $5,906,000.

Demand was concentrated on railroad obligations, which continued to advance for the fifth successive day. Net gains of 1 point or more occurred in Baltimore & Ohio 4½s of 1960, Erie 5s of 1967 and of 1975, Great Northern 4¼s of 1961, Illinois Central 4¾s of 1966, New York, Westchester & Boston 4½s and Union Pacific 4s of 1968, all of which were active. Fractional gains among the rails were common.

The most important news of the day was the week-end announcement of the Treasury financing. The expectation among bankers is that this issue will be floated easily, like its predecessors, although the 3 per cent rate on the bonds is somewhat lower than the yields on comparable outstanding issues.

Foreign issues were irregular. Brazilian loans scored several of the largest losses, following the week-end news of suspension of amortization payments on the external debt of the national government. Interest payments on these loans, which approximate $800,000,000, including $200,000,-000 in issues floated in the United States, will be continued. The 6½s per cent issue of 1926-57 closed 7½ points lower at 39, the largest loss of the group. Other Latin-American issues, except Chilean bonds, were inclined to sag. European obligations were firm on the whole.

Public utility and industrial bonds kept close to Saturday's closing levels, although they showed a rising tendency. Warner Brothers Pictures 6s made sharp gains in active trading.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Wheat prices tottered uncertainly today as persistent liquidation by discouraged holders drove quotations steadily downward to the lowest levels for the current crop. All deliveries were affected, with September establishing a new all-time low of 45 cents a bushel, the lowest price any future delivery ever sold at on the board of trade. Cash wheat sold for 45 cents a bushel in October, 1852. The December delivery crawled beneath the 50 cent a bushel mark, leaving only the deferred March and May contracts above. Corn was erratic and weakened because of uncertainty over the deliveries that probably will be made on September contracts tomorrow.

Wheat closed weak at slightly above the day's bottom figures, ⅞@1¼ cents below Saturday's close. Corn finished mixed, ¼ lower to ¼ higher. Oats closed ½@⅞ off, and provisions unchanged to 35 cents decline.

Much of the selling in wheat was attributed to owners of September contracts who were reluctant to accept delivery. Buying demand was sluggish and it took purchasing by holders of indemnities to check the decline. Liverpool prices were down, reflecting a slow milling demand and continued Russian offers. Foreign crop reports indicated that crop estimates had been reduced considerably, but this was ignored.

World shipments for the week totaled 16,352,000 bushels, with on-passage stocks decreased 960,000. Advices from Germany placed the 1931 crop at 168,845,000 bushels, compared with 139,300,000 last year. Estimates on Germany's import needs this season were placed at 4,410,000 bushels, against 31,164,000 last year and 79,528,000 in 1928-29. Unofficial estimates on the size of the 1931 Canadian crop in the three Prairie provinces were 225,-000,000 bushels, compared with 374,000,-000 harvested last year. The Department of Agriculture said that Russian harvest operations were about 65 per cent completed, with every indication of a much smaller crop than a year ago. Present stocks offered for export come from the excellent crop in the Ukraine.

Corn turned weak after scoring a brisk early rally. Free selling met the advance, but there was considerable commission house buying on the setbacks, as well as some short covering. September corn was extremely erratic with a range of around 3 cents.

Closing indemnities—Wheat, September, 44⅞; 46¼@46⅝; December, 49⅛, 50¼@50⅝; May, 54@54⅛, 55¼. Corn—September, 40¾, 45⅜; December, 38⅝@38¾, 40½; May, 43⅜, 45½.

Note—The number of issues used in the price averages has been doubled, starting today. Instead of 10 industrials, 10 railroads and 10 utilities, there are now 20 in each group and a total of 60 instead of 30. Additional bonds have been so selected that the smaller and larger averages, kept experimentally for some time, have run almost exactly parallel. While the larger average is expected to make little if any immediate change, it is expected to prove more sensitive in the long run.

VALUES OF BUILDING IN DISTRICT DECLINE AS PERMITS MOUNT

1,143 HOMES ERECTED IN LAST FISCAL YEAR

Value of private building in the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1931, was $30,151,724, the annual report of Col. John W. Oehmann, inspector of buildings, made public yesterday, reveals. This was a decrease of $4,844,793, as compared with the previous year. Valuation totals for the four years previous were: 1930, $34,996,517; 1929, $47,743,195; 1928, $37,736,170; 1927, $49,776,865.

Commenting on the decline, Col. Oehmann states, "The decrease may be attributed in a large measure to the general decline of building and other activities throughout the country. It is interesting to note, however, that the number of permits issued during the fiscal year just ended showed 982 increase, 10,141 having been issued in 1931, as compared with 9,159 for the previous year.

The increase in the number of permits issued with the decrease in the value of operations would indicate that the type of activity conducted was of a general character rather than the speculative large construction. Notwithstanding the apparent small volume of building construction, the District of Columbia has been among the leaders in this activity for cities of its size throughout the Nation."

Records of Permits.

There were 9,620 permits issued in 1929; 9,802, in 1928, and 10,798 in 1927. In the last fiscal year, 478 business buildings were erected, as contrasted with 521 in 1930; 237, in 1929; 580, in 1928, and 699 in 1927. There was a gain in apartment construction, 113 having been constructed in the latest fiscal year as against 56 in 1930, 70 in 1929, 59 in 1928 and 109 in 1927.

Dwellings built during the 1930-31 period numbered 1,143, as compared with 1,032 in 1930, 1,423 in 1929, 1,539 in 1928 and 2,477 in 1927. The total number of new buildings last fiscal year was 1,734. In 1930, it was 1,609; in 1929, 1,740; in 1928, 2,178 and in 1927, 3,285. In the past fiscal year there were 6,214 repair jobs effected, in 1930, 5,662; in 1929, 6,015; in 1928, 5,019; in 1927, 4,926.

While necessarily broad, data for accurate information not being available, Col. Oehmann's estimate of the number of structures in the District of Columbia is 125,136. Of these, 91,388 are of brick, 326 of stone, 1,293 of concrete, 727 of tile and 31,252 of frame. During the last fiscal period, there were erected 1,503 brick structures, 48 stone, 64 concrete, four tile and 115 frame. There were 183 brick and 170 frame, a total of 353 structures, razed during that period.

Classification Increase.

Compared with the fiscal period ended June 30, 1930, all classifications of construction but one showed increases during the period ended June 30, 1931. There were 552 more repair jobs, 125 more new buildings erected, 111 more dwellings and 57 more apartments. There were 43 less business buildings constructed however.

Permits were issued during the latest reported period for 1,153 one-family houses, an increase of 105 compared with the figures of the previous and the 113 permits issued for apartment houses, designed to accommodate 1,885 families, likewise represented increases of 57 and 557, respectively.

Of the total valuation for the most recently reported period, $25,386,685 was for new construction and $4,765,039 for repairs. Valuation of new building by section was distributed as follows: Northeast, $3,739,100; southeast, $1,905,375; northwest, $19,633,710; southwest, $108,500. Valuation of repairs: Northeast, $862,740; southeast, $507,910; northwest, $3,172,499; southwest, $221,890.

During the past fiscal year, permits were issued for erection of 2,280 signs, an increase of 455 compared with 1930. The bureau of the office having to do with examination of elevators made 4,534 triyearly inspections, an increase of 1,386 above the preceding fiscal period. The bureau approved 117 new elevator installations, a decrease of 27 from the prior period.

"Unfortunately," this section of the report concludes, "eleven accidents, an increase of one, occurred on elevators during the past fiscal year. But one of the accidents proved fatal, while injuries resulted in the others. Examination and investigation showed that in but few instances were the accidents due to faulty mechanism, while in the others they were due to carelessness on the part of the mechanic or helper in making repairs or installing new equipment."

FRIENDSHIP HOUSE CHILDREN VACATION BOUND

WEIGHTS DIRECTOR SEEKS MORE AIDS

Additional Equipment and Personnel Asked; Rise in Visits Reported.

Additional equipment and personnel are requested by George M. Roberts, superintendent of weights, measures and markets, in his report for the fiscal year just ended to the District Commissioners. The brief, which was submitted yesterday, states that present facilities are inadequate to "carry on activities which clearly come within the scope" of the duties of the office.

During the past year inspectors of the weights and measures department made 14,265 official visits to business establishments, an increase of 360 over the preceding year, according to the report. Because of special investigations conducted, 2,863 surprise inspections were made.

A total of 3,430,265 examinations of various commercial scales and measuring standards were recorded for the year, an increase of 50 per cent over the previous period. Of this number, 3,409,106 were approved, 2,492 adjusted before being approved, and 2,468 condemned with permission given to repair, while 18,691 were confiscated and destroyed in accordance with law.

Testing Laboratory Needed.

While explaining that 1,880 examinations of new kinds of measuring devices were made, Mr. Roberts said many more would have been conducted had facilities been available. Complaint is also made that the department lacks a testing laboratory.

Special investigations of 935 business establishments were made last year, the report states, and 676 tests were made from 298 places of business to determine whether full weight or measure was being sold.

From these inquiries 121 prosecutions were instituted. None of the defendants was acquitted and fines totaling $1,000 were levied. Investigations as to weight and measurement were made of package food, bread, milk, ice, gasoline and other commodities.

Question on Coal.

The report reviews at length the investigation into the question of whether Washington coal dealers could sell their product by the short ton as well as the long ton, specified in the District law. It even includes the text of the opinion submitted by Judge John P. McMahon in a test case in Police Court. The weights and measures office had been sustained.

Operations of the four markets by the District Government is reviewed, and several improvements are suggested. The fish market needs uniform and modern fixtures, Mr. Roberts states.

"It would be extremely beneficial to consumers in the District and to farmers throughout the surrounding territory, who bring produce into Wasington for sale, if all retail market places for farmers were consolidated in not to exceed two convenient locations, where modern marketing facilities for farmers should be provided," the superintendent says. "The benefits derived by consumers would pay a tremendous dividend upon the necessary investment."

Howard U. Head to Talk At Episcopal Conclave

An address on "Interracial Relations" will be delivered by the Rev. Dr Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, before the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church at Denver, Colo., September 22.

Invitation to Dr. Johnson to make the address is believed to be indicative of a change of policy on the part of the Episcopal Church because hitherto the church has taken a conservative attitude on racial problems. Dr. Johnson is recognized as one of the most eminent colored orators in the United States.

Intruder Thought Capital Policeman

Presence in Photographic Room of Press Association Investigated.

Police last night were investigating circumstances surrounding the discovery of a man unwarrantedly using the facilities of the Associated Press photographic workroom and who, when ordered to leave, exhibited a police badge.

Not long after the incident became known, The Post learned that the man involved is believed by police officials to be an Eleventh Precinct patrolman who recently was convicted on serious charges before the Police Trial Board, but was later reinstated when the evidence against him was determined to have been improperly obtained.

Detectives A. D. Mansfield and Harry Cole are said to have responded to the call put in by the Associated Press employe. Inspector Burke, chief of the Detective Bureau, early last night said he had not yet received a full report on the affair and would not make a statement.

BARRED BY HOSPITAL, MAN IS NEAR DEATH

A colored man lay near death in Gallinger Hospital last night after he had been refused treatment at Casualty Hospital for injuries sustained in a fall from a truck near Upper Marlboro, Md. An interne at Casualty diagnosed his condition as "drunk," causing a delay of nearly an hour before the man could receive medical attention.

The man, David Brown, 45 years old, whose home is at Marlboro, was rendered unconscious by the fall. He was brought here for hospital treatment by William Walker, a white man, of Upper Marlboro, and several other residents of that place.

Dr. John E. Bowers, of Brandywine, Md., who gave Brown first aid treatment shortly after the accident, said last night that he did not appear to be intoxicated and did not smell of liquor, but that his right side appeared to be paralyzed and that he needed immediate hospital treatment.

On arrival at Casualty Hospital, Mr. Walker and others said, the interne refused to treat Brown after a cursory examination, saying he was intoxicated. The men who brought him here, however, said they could smell no liquor on Brown. They then took him, still unconscious, to the Ninth Precinct police station, where no liquor odor was noticed either, police say. After communication with headquarters, Mr. Walker and the others were told to take the man back to Casualty and, if again refused treatment for him, to take him to Gallinger Hospital.

Brown, police say, was again refused treatment at Casualty and taken to Gallinger, where he was found to have a fractured skull and other injuries which made his condition critical. Gallinger physicians also said they could determine no evidence of the man's having been under the influence of liquor.

92 Per Cent of All Cars Stolen Here Recovered

More than 92 per cent of all automobiles stolen in Washington in the last year have been recovered and returned to their owners, it was declared yesterday in a statement by the District of Columbia Division of the American Automobile Association.

The association claims the record of the number of stolen cars recovered is the highest in more than 10 years. The statement pointed out that this record may be largely attributed to the Dyer act, which makes it a Federal offense to move stolen machines across State lines.

Job-Seeker's Watch Taken As He Aids 'Hungry' Man

Martin J. Walker, of Columbus, Ohio, has lost all faith in the gratitude of man. Mr. Walker arrived in the city day before yesterday, looking for a job and, in the meantime, he had rented a bed at one of the city's missions. He met quite a number of men there and struck up a friendship with several.

Yesterday morning Mr. Walker was walking up Pennsylvania avenue after a very satisfying breakfast, when one of his newly acquired friends accosted him and asked for the loan of $1 with which to buy something to eat. Mr. Walker complied with the request and turned around to leave.

The newly found friend, however, insisted on hauling Mr. Walker back and likewise insisted on shaking his hand, with numerous expressions of gratitude from his lips.

Four blocks away Mr. Walker discovered that his watch, chain and penknife had disappeared. While it is purely circumstantial evidence, Mr. Walker insists that his effusive friend "lifted" them.

NEW SPEED LIMITS PRACTICALLY SAME

22 Miles an Hour Downtown and 30 on Certain Highways Set.

While there was talk of abolishing general speed laws in the District prior to the passage of the new traffic act, the new regulations adopted yesterday by the District Commissioners upon recommendation of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer set up practically the same limits as heretofore.

A speed of 22 miles an hour for all downtown thoroughfares and of 30 miles an hour for certain designated outlying highways is retained in the new rules. The speed restriction on bridges is lifted, at the suggestion of the highway department, except where signs specifically set a limit.

That the speed limits do not apply authorized emergency vehicles when operated in emergencies is specifically set forth. The drivers are required to "sound audible signal by bell, siren, or exhaust whistle."

This provision adds a warning, however, that the regulation "shall not relieve the driver of an authorized emergency vehicle from the duty to drive with due regard for the safety of all persons using the street, nor shall it protect the driver of any such vehicle from the consequences of a reckless disregard of the safety of others."

A seven-mile speed is set for all vehicles in an alley or when crossing a sidewalk.

A fifteen-mile limit is imposed for solid tire and tractor trucks and for all motor vehicles on passing a school while children are entering or leaving, a playground, a street car loading platform of safety zone, and when approaching a street railway crossing when a view of the intersection is obstructed.

Pneumatic-tired trucks are permitted to travel at 22 miles an hour instead of 18 as heretofore.

Armor-Piercing Bomb Designed.

John W. Currell, inventor of the aerial bomb used by the American military, yesterday submitted to Maj. Gen. Samuel H. chief of the Army Ordnance Department, specifications for an incendiary bomb which will pierce armament. The missile, which is 6½ inches long and weighs 2 pounds, will pierce its object before exploding. Mr. Currell lives at 521 Fourth street northwest.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE FRESH AIR FUND FOR SUFFERING BUSINESS MEN.

WITH more than 5,000 business men now romping about the green fields in the sunshine far away from it all, the Fresh Air Camp for Suffering Business Men is now at the peak of success. Removed from all atmosphere of business and kept by rigid camp rules from all telephonic contact with their brokers, customers, creditors and clients, these fortunate business men are now experiencing the first untroubled period in months.

* * * *

There was a regrettable incident at the camp yesterday when one of the boys, through force of habit, smuggled in some red ink and was caught putting down figures on a tablecloth, but under the stern discipline of the camp he was speedily expelled. One of the iron rules is that no business man may play with red ink while at camp.

* * * *

It is difficult for the boys to throw off responsibilities. They have become so accustomed to trouble and worries that for the first few days they do not seem happy without them. They beg for published reports of poor car loadings, additional bank troubles and gloomy items from the wheat belt, but the camp director is pretty stern. In some cases he has to let them have a little bad news for a day or two, as the sudden change from business cares to complete unconcern might prove too abrupt.

* * * *

TAKE the case of Mr. X——. Mr. X was a copper magnate. When he arrived at the camp he had become so accustomed to bad outlooks that it was necessary to read him a lot of depressing news the first day and then taper off gradually. After the fifth day he was surprised to find he could go a whole day without any bad news whatever. Now he is one of the happiest men in camp. The color is back in his cheeks and it would do your heart good to see him out behind the barn sailing a toy boat in a little puddle and apparently without a care in the world.

* * * *

Another case is that of Mr. B., an orchid importer. Before the bust Mr. B. was one of the most carefree men in America. Ever since the big smash he has been losing weight and going all to pieces. His case was called to the attention of the Fund and he was whisked away to the Fresh Air Camp, where he and a sable coat importer while away the hours fishing, berrying and throwing rocks at woodchucks. You would never know them. In a few weeks they will be fit to return to the city and assume their worries with a new vigor.

* * * *

Contributions continue to pour in. In fact, the fund has reached a point where, by economies, it is possible to send two (medium size) business men away at the rate of two for $25. A long and a short business man (if there are any long business men today) can be sent away for $27.50.

* * * *

Previously acknowledged	$26,299.92
1,000 Scotsmen	.10
The British Treasury	.20
Little Brighteyes	1.00
A Racketeer	5,000.00

OIL AND OATS.

Mr. Harry Sinclair, oil magnate, is to dispose of his racing stable. There is so little money in the oil business these days that if an operator could afford any oats he would eat 'em himself.

It has been decided to picture the surrender of Cornwallis in the Yorktown pageant, but it may still be done under an assumed name.

Victorian era styles are coming back strong this winter; bustles, big sleeves and even hoopskirts being possibilities, but we won't believe the girls are sincere about going old-fashioned until they return to lingerie with ruffles.

GAS FUMES SETTLE OVER TWO SECTIONS; MANY ARE MADE ILL

TELEPHONE COMPLAINTS SWAMP POLICE STATION

Gas Company Crews Cover Territory But Fail to Locate Trouble.

Scores of residents throughout the Southeast and Southwest sections of Washington were driven from their homes last night, when gas fumes, escaping from an unknown source, settled over the two districts. Scores of telephone calls to police and the Washington Gas Light Co. complained of the fumes.

The odor was first noticed shortly after 9 o'clock in the vicinity of the United States Army War College on P street near Four-and-one-half street southwest.

It was at first though that sewer gas was escaping and residents paid little attention to the odor.

Fumes Increase in Intensity.

However, as the smell became more pungent, persons in the community called police, declaring that the odor was producing sickening effects. As the fumes increased in intensity, they spread over a wider area, and by 10 o'clock residents in the Southeast section began to complain.

Within two hours, the Fourth Police Precinct reported that more than a hundred complaints had been received. The Washington Gas Light Co. was notified and they declared that several crews of men were already investigating. They said many persons had called them, thinking that the odor was coming from a broken gas connection in their homes.

By 11 o'clock the fumes had become so strong that residents of the two sections were unable to retire, and were forced to the street. Police scout cars and emergency vehicles from the gas company cruised about the streets for several hours attempting to locate the source of the mysterious odor.

Many Are Made Sick.

Although physicians and hospitals in the two districts declared that no one had been to them for treatment, many residents said they had become deathly ill from the effects of the fumes.

John Vernon, of 477 F street southwest, said he was in the kitchen of his home when he first noticed the odor. He declared it was a sickening smell, and he thought at first it was sewer gas. Shortly afterward, Mrs. Grace Riley, also of the F street address, complained of feeling ill. As the odor became stronger, the entire household was forced into the street.

At a late hour last night the odor had not been found, and telephone calls continued to swamp police and officials of the gas company.

Manslaughter Warrant Sworn for Auto Victim

A manslaughter warrant was sworn out yesterday for Joseph O. Santucci, of Brookland, D. C., who is still in Gallinger Hospital suffering from injuries he received in an accident when Miss Margaret Lauer was killed.

According to police, Santucci was the driver of a car which overturned near Hall Station, Md., in front of the home of Sheriff W. C. Hopkins. An inquest into this death will be held by Judge Thomas D. Griffith on September 8.

Probability that changes will be made in the 1933 estimate of Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, which asks an appropriation to establish signal lights at 54 intersections, loomed yesterday as Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District commissioner, began a study of the proposals.

While explaining that he had not had time to study the traffic director's proposals, Gen. Crosby said that he was opposed in general to an increase in the number of signal lights in the District unless specific need were shown.

Funds should be appropriated, however, for improvement of the present signal light system, he said. The modern flexible progressive system recently placed in operation on Rhode Island avenue particularly interests him. Sunday he took the first opportunity since his return from a vacation to watch it work, but he said the slow movement of Sunday traffic prevented him from forming a definite opinion.

The estimates of Mr. Van Duzer for 1933 contain a request for $111,341 for installation of new signal lights and the improvements of present signals. Fifty-four new intersections, including a large portion of Pennsylvania avenue between the Capitol and Fifteenth street, are listed as needing lights. The appropriation would also cover the modernization of signals at 77 intersections.

When the estimates were made public about a month ago, the traffic director explained that the proposals were entirely tentative and that the placement of lights at the points designated would depend upon the results of a survey now under way.

AUTHORITIES SEEK CHURCH FIRE CAUSE

While the pastor and other officials of St. James Episcopal Church began plans for repair work to the edifice, which was damaged by fire to the extent of approximately $25,000 Sunday night, fire and police authorities sought to determine definitely the origin of the blaze in an effort to apprehend those responsible.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Atkinson, pastor, whose dash into the flaming structure saved the Blessed Sacrament and several other valuable objects, said last night a temporary altar would be installed in the parish hall and services would be carried on until the church is restored.

One theory that thieves seeking sacramental wine in the church accidentally fired the structure was considered the most logical by investigating authorities. After a previous depredation of a quantity of wine stored in the edifice, burned matches were found on the floor and it was believed that vandals on a like quest had lit matches in the chair cloakroom, igniting the inflammable woolen cassocks and surplices of the choir which were hung around the room.

Father Atkinson last night was still marvelling at the "miraculously" little damage done to the heavy crucifix which fell from above the altar to the floor. He also expressed gratification that more of the valuable stained glass windows of the church were not damaged or broken. A temporary roof soon will be thrown over the structure to replace that practically deleted by the fire. The temporary covering will suffice to prevent damage from the elements, it is believed, while restoration work is pushed.

FIRST THREE EVENTS START TOURNAMENT ON MODEL AIRCRAFT

The first three events of the 1931 District of Columbia model aircraft tournament were held yesterday morning at Constitution Hall. The competition, a four-day affair, with sessions today, tomorrow and Friday, is conducted annually by the District of Columbia Model Aircraft League, and is sponsored by the Community Center Department and the Playground Department. It is officially sanctioned by the National Aeronautical Association.

The three events completed, all indoor, were the hand launched, rising off floor and the helicopter. Each was run off in three divisions, aces, pilots and junior pilots. About 35 boys competed between the ages of 9 and 17.

Frank Salisbury, jr., 1024 Vermont avenue northwest, went into the lead in the ace class by winning the helicopter and the rising-off-floor events and placing third in the hand-launched flights. He is defending his championship, won last year, and in winning the helicopter event his model stayed in the air 1 minute 50 1-5 seconds, breaking the old record of 1 minute 29 1-5 seconds.

Edward Grannis Second.

Second place in the ace class went to Edward Grannis, 1615 Kennedy street northwest, who has gained a classification as an ace after having been a novice less than a month ago. He won first in the indoor hand-launced flight, third in the helicopter and fourth in the rising-off-floor events.

In the pilots classification, first honors were won by Robert L. Wiehle, of 2612 Cathedral avenue northwest. He placed second in all three events in his class. Second place went to John Mehlig, of the Shoreham Hotel, who won the helicopter and placed third in the hand-launched event.

Darwin Krucoff, of 100 Sixth street northwest, leads the juniors pilots class, having won the helicopter and having placed second in the hand-launched and third in the rising-off-floor events.

Other Contests Slated.

As there are six indoor and six outdoor events, it is possible that the competition will be won by one of the fliers who at present is not in the lead. The three additional indoor contests will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock at the Macfarland Community Center. All the outdoor events will be held today and tomorrow at Bolling Field. The hand-launched scientific, the dynamic and the feature, the seaplanes rising off water, events will be held today. Tomorrow's schedule includes outdoor, rising-off-ground, gliders and helicopters flights.

John H. Williams, of the Community Center department, is in charge of the tournament, assisted by Miss Elizabeth K. Peeples. Judges and timers are: Paul Garber, John Heinemann, Maj. Henry Heston, E. L. Cooney, H. S. Harbour, R. G. McCarthy, B. De Bosky, Mrs. Thelma Williams, Miss Dorothy Kelso, H. H. Cleary, W. S. Griest.
